

2 suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian center

by WANDALYN RICE

Two men were hospitalized Wednesday with suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

A 36-year-old Schaumburg resident was reported in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A 29-year-old from south-suburban Bolingbrook was listed in good condition and may be discharged within the next few days.

Hospital officials, who did not identify the men, said further tests are needed to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

Hospital officials said they do not know where the Schaumburg man contracted the disease. Most victims of the disease in Cook County have been residents of the southern suburbs.

OFFICIALS OF the Illinois Dept. of Public Health said the two men's names were among 17 added Wednesday to the list of suspected or confirmed encephalitis cases. Ten of the new cases are in Cook County, but only one of them has been confirmed.

The newly confirmed case is in Harvey. Other new cases were reported in Berwyn, Oak Lawn, Blue Island and Chicago.

The total number of cases reported statewide in the current outbreak is 107, with 73 in Cook County. A total of 21 cases, 10 in Cook County, has been confirmed. Blood tests running 10 days apart are required to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

In other developments in the epidemic, a team of seven specialists from the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., arrived in Chicago Wednesday to help state health officials look for the source of the disease.

The team will collect and classify birds and mosquitoes in an attempt to locate the disease source. Encephalitis is transmitted from birds to human beings through mosquito bites.

Dr. Mark Lepper, head of a state task force on the disease, said five areas in the state have been identified as centers of the disease.

The areas are:

- Bolingbrook, Park Forest South and the southern end of Will County.
- Peoria and Tazewell counties.
- Madison and St. Clair counties.
- Champaign and Macon counties.
- Wayne, Richland, Jefferson and Clay counties.

County mosquito abatement districts have stepped up their anti-mosquito programs. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows have scheduled additional mosquito-spraying programs.

Symptoms of the disease include headache, high fever and mental confusion. Most victims recover spontaneously, but in serious cases the disease can result in coma, brain damage and death.

Grant game becoming art in village

by KURT BAER

A news analysis

Arlington Heights is learning the game of "grantmanship" the hard way — from the inside out.

In the last two months, the village has collected $1.25 million in state and federal funds for two large local projects — purchase of the Hill-Behan Lumber Co. property, Arlington Heights Road and Northwest Highway, and the acquisition of 113 acres for Lake Arlington.

The $1.25 million nearly equals one-half of what the village collects each year from its property taxpayers.

Together, the grants are the largest allocation of state and federal special project money ever given to Arlington Heights. Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said they are the result of a new sophistication among village administrators in making grant applications.

"We have (grant) consultants on our doorstep every day — people who want to get in on the action," says Hanson. "And it's not that we have anything against consultants. But they have to get the basic information from me, or the village engineer, so we might as well take the time to do it ourselves."

A KEY MAN IN Hanson's determination to "do it ourselves" is James J. Holzwart, a man hired 10 months ago to specialize in state and federal grant applications.

Although the $750,000 grant application to buy the Hill-Behan property predated Holzwart's hiring by four years, the $499,790 grant from the Illinois Dept. of Conservation for Lake Arlington was steered through bureaucratic waters by the 27-year-old administrator.

"The open space (Lake Arlington) grant was particularly satisfying, because there was competition for that money from a lot of communities," Holzwart said. "There are some state and federal grants to which you are basically just entitled to, while others you really have to work for."

The Illinois Dept. of Conservation awarded $5 million in open space grants to 58 different communities last Friday. The maximum payment to any single town was $500,000.

"Arlington Heights and Glenview (which also got a $500,000 grant) received one-fifth of the total state appropriation, and that's kind of amazing," Holzwart said.

HANSON SAID efforts already are underway to acquire the 113 acres east of Windsor Drive and south of the Commonwealth Edison right-of-way for Lake Arlington. Guidelines for buying the Hill-Behan property should be released soon, he said.

Arlington Heights has not always been so fortunate with its grant applications.

In 1973, the village withdrew its application for a $70,000 federal planning grant at the urging of former Assistant Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning.

Dist. 25 teachers OK new contract

Teachers in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 voted Wednesday to accept a contract for the 1975-76 school year.

The new contract calls for raises in base salaries of 5.7 to 6.5 per cent, in addition to the annual raises of 4 to 6 per cent given to teachers with an additional year of experience. James Modce, president of the Arlington Teachers Assn., said 74 per cent of the teachers voted to accept the contract.

Teachers and board members have been negotiating a new contract since April. The agreement must now be approved by the Dist. 25 Board of Education.

THE BASE SALARY for beginning teachers will be increased 5.7 per cent from $8,800 to $9,300. The base salary for teachers who have been granted tenure in the district will be increased 6.1 per cent to $9,550, and teachers who are at the 10th step in the salary schedule will receive a 6.5 per cent increase on a base salary of $9,800.

The new contract also includes:

- A plan for improved health insurance. Modce said the Dist. 25 administration is working now on the details of the plan and is consulting with several health insurance companies.

- A revision in the teachers' grievance procedure which will give teachers more time to file a grievance, and will give the superintendent more time to settle the matter before it is taken to the board of education.

- A new system for evaluating teacher performance. Teachers have been rated on a checklist system of about 20 items. Teachers have been dissatisfied with the plan and formed a committee last September to develop a new system. Teachers now will meet individually with principals to set up goals for the school year and will be evaluated on the basis of these goals.

Plane crash kills 2

by LUISA GINETTI

A single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a soybean field in Wheeling Township Wednesday shortly after takeoff from Palwaukee Airport, killing both persons aboard.

Killed in the crash were Eugene McDaniel, 11010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo. The county coroner's office said it had not determined which victim was the pilot.

Jack Harrington, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the cause of the crash had not been determined. A witness to the crash said the four-passenger private plane made what appeared to be a normal takeoff at 2:49 p.m., turned left and then nosed up and crashed in the field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling Township, Harrington said.

Harrington said the plane made no contact with the Palwaukee tower before the crash, but investigators believe the plane's engine stalled. Weather conditions were apparently not a factor in the crash, officials indicated.

The witness, whose helicopter was on an instructional flight at the time, landed next to the downed plane, and the pilot dragged one of the victims about 10 feet from the plane, County Sheriff's police said. Shortly after the victim was removed from the wreckage, the smoldering plane burst in flames, officials said.

OFFICIALS AT THE scene said both men apparently were killed instantly in the crash. One man was burned beyond recognition, and the other was mutilated severely, officials said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration, the state police, the coroner's office and the county Sheriff's office were on the scene for nearly three hours before the bodies were removed.

Harrington said he did not know the plane's destination, but an official at Palwaukee said the plane was not based at the airport and had only landed a short time before.

The plane had taken off from Dacy Airport in Harvard, Ill., about 40 miles northwest of Wheeling, officials there said. A Dacy airport spokesman said the plane took off from Dacy about 1 p.m. for Palwaukee on an apparent business trip. He added the plane probably was returning to Dacy when it crashed.

The spokesman said McDaniel and Medlinger were friends, and McDaniel was a flying instructor.

Wheeling Fire Dept. trucks were among the first rescue units on the scene and extinguished the fire. Paramedics also were on the scene but left shortly after the victims were pronounced dead.

TWO PRIESTS FROM nearby St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling, arrived at the site about an hour after the crash. Father Donald Simpson said he and Father Thomas Moran administered last rites to the victims.

Chicago man, 18, drowns in lake

A Chicago man, whom companions identified as Jon Hoeschen, 18, drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming with friends in a gravel pit north of Wheeling in unincorporated Lake County. Vernon Township firefighters, who recovered the body after a three-hour search, said the drowning was the second there in the last two weeks. An Elmwood Park woman, Hilda Vargas, 18, drowned Aug. 24, while trying to swim to an island, officials said. Bill Kissane, 18, of 5835 Higgins Rd., and George Kevorkian, 17, of 6228 Roscoe, both of Chicago, said Hoeschen drowned after falling off an inflatable raft. They described him as "not that good a swimmer." The three and two other friends came to the lake early in the afternoon, and Hoeschen went off by himself to take his raft across the lake, they said. Kissane said he and Kevorkian were swimming several hundred yards away when Hoeschen, "started yelling for help, and we thought he was goofing around at first." His friends then went to find help, alerting Vernon Township firefighters who were training in the area. Chief Ted Tarr, Vernon fire chief said divers from Grayslake, Lake Zurich, Libertyville and Countryside fire departments joined his department in the search.

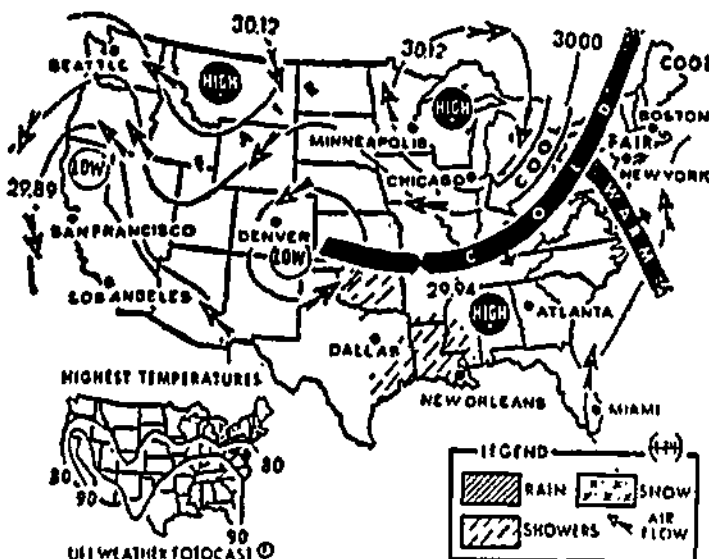

Football fans lose

For a football enthusiast, there's nothing like settling into an easy chair in front of the television, with a beer in hand. But football fans on the Buffalo Grove Village Board will have to lug their TV sets to board meetings if they want to watch Monday night games. Once again, as in previous years, football resulted in a debate of whether to move the Monday night board meetings to Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday nights. Village Pres. Edward A. Fabish broke a tie vote on a suggestion by Trustee Thomas Mahoney to start the Sept. 15 meeting earlier so he might watch the football game. Some trustees indicated an earlier meeting time might pose a hardship, so Fabish voted against the proposal. The decision wasn't an easy one for Fabish, a Chicago Bears fan. He, too, entertained the idea of sitting at the 40-yard-line, 15 rows east, to watch the Bears... on a Monday night. "I've been a ticket holder since '46... that's why I have such good seats," Fabish said. "I don't think I'll have any trouble getting rid of them," he said with a sigh. Fabish said some of that game may be salvaged, however, because he asked Village Mgr. Daniel T. Larson for a light agenda that night.

Alarm saves woman's life

The panic alarm in a new senior citizens apartment complex, the first such emergency system, in Elk Grove Village, was credited by fire officials Wednesday with saving the life of an 85-year-old woman who suffered a heart attack. Elita Behrmann, Cheekwood Court, suffered the attack Tuesday afternoon. The elderly woman was able to trip a panic alarm system in the apartment which alerted the village fire department to the emergency. Fire Lt. Herman Marguard said the time saved by simply pulling the alarm, rather than dialing the fire department, was significant. "The first few moments after a person has a heart attack is critical, and the fact the department received immediate notice of the emergency probably saved her life," he said. Once the alarm was sounded, fire department paramedics were able to give the woman emergency aid and transport her to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, where she is in stable condition and improving.

MSD forced to collect by U.S. law

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Federal regulations soon will force the Metropolitan Sanitary District to bill homeowners for sewer service.

The sewer bills, paid on a regular basis like other utility charges, would be in addition to the sanitary district's property-tax levy.

District officials are studying federal regulations that require user charges for sewers and soon may hire a consultant for $300,000 to design a collection system for the new charges.

One result of the user-charge system, the officials say, will be to shift a greater percentage of the sanitary district's sewage-treatment costs from business and industry to homeowners.

THE SANITARY district has been fighting the user-charge system in Congress ever since it was first proposed. And while district officials still hope the requirement will be softened by future congressional action, they are now being forced to weigh the system against the threatened loss of millions of dollars in federal grant money.

At a meeting Tuesday, the sanitary district trustees learned if they don't begin the user-charge system soon they will have to pass up as much as $237.3 million in federal grants.

The federal government has threatened to withhold 20 per cent of every sewer grant it awards in Cook County until the district adopts a user-charge system.

Locally, the 20 per cent withholding applies to the $136.5 million grant that would pay three-fourths of the cost of the O'Hare water reclamation plant in Des Plaines.

THE DISTRICT must build the O'Hare plant and upgrade other treatment facilities to meet various federal clean water requirements.

A decision on hiring the consultant may be made at today's sanitary district board meeting.

The federal user-charge system is designed to correct the current system of paying sewage charges on the basis of property value. Sanitary district officials said one result of the user charge system will be to shift a higher percentage of the cost to homeowners.

Under the current system residential property with a market value below $20,000 has been almost entirely subsidized by industry for its sewer service, sanitary district studies show.

WHILE CORRECTING the inequities in the present system is a desirable goal, the sanitary district argues the federal system fails in practical application.

Installing meters on every home to measure exactly how much water is going into a sewer is such an expensive proposition that it would cancel any profit from the user charges, they say.

Also, basing sewer-use charges on the water meter readings penalizes the homeowner who waters his lawn frequently or uses water in other ways that keep it from entering the sanitary sewer system.

The use of meters also doesn't tell the strength of the sewage. Obviously a family with a garbage disposal and a frequently used washing machine puts more pollutants in the sanitary sewer than a family that doesn't have those appliances.

Two other facts about the user system may also cause problems:

• Schools, park districts, churches, municipal buildings and others that are exempt from property tax would be required to pay a user charge for sewer use.

• The overhead cost of creating a user system can mean only a slight drop in real estate taxes once the user fee is started.

Residents of Hinsdale which recently began a user-charge system found that despite their $12 monthly user fee, real estate taxes to the local sanitary district didn't drop at all.

Continued property taxes will also be necessary to pay for other sanitary district operations such as reservoirs and stream maintenance, storm sewer systems, services to undeveloped property, paying off old bond issues and operating the locks on the Chicago River.

Even industry, which might think the user charge will mean reduced tax bills, won't benefit much from the new system. Another federal program, also being required by the federal government in the near future, will require each industry to pay a share of the cost of building each new treatment plant in the district. The program, called "Industrial Cost Recovery" would refund part of the construction cost of the plant to the sanitary district and to the federal government.

Kissinger home; Arabs denounce pact

From Herald news services

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Washington Wednesday night, wrapping up 15 hectic days of Middle East shuttle diplomacy. He was greeted by President Ford at Andrews Air Force base.

Ford hailed the agreement as "of great importance not only to the parties involved but to the entire world." Ford said the agreement was possible because "both sides felt the risks of peace were in the long run preferable to the dangers of war."

His triumphant return, however, was marred as Syria — Egypt's main ally in the 1973 war against Israel — denounced the Egyptian-Israeli interim peace agreement as a "major setback for the progress of the Arab struggle."

A statement issued by the leadership of the governing Baath party, and the agreement, negotiated by Kissinger, constituted a violation of the resolutions of Arab summit conferences, which forbade negotiations, peace and recognition of Israel.

The statement was issued only hours after Kissinger paid a brief visit to Damascus, during which he failed to win President Hafez Assad's support for the accord.

In Lebanon, meanwhile, Palestinian guerrillas, enraged by the U.S. negotiated Egypt-Israeli agreement, sponsored protest strikes and demonstrations that tied up the major cities of Beirut, Tyre, Sidon, and Tripoli in the north.

A Popular Democratic Front spokesman told one group of demonstrators the "palestinian revolution is capable — and determined in solidarity with other Arab national liberation forces, to foil and repel all partial imperialistic and capitulationist solutions..."

Under the agreement, Israel will give up 3,500 square miles of the Sinai peninsula. Four-fifths of the territory will become a new U.N. buffer zone, where up to 200 American civilians will operate three manned, and three unmanned, electronic early warning stations.

Kissinger was scheduled to brief President Ford Thursday morning, then fly to New York to spend Friday and Saturday mornings at a United Nations General Assembly special session.

Earlier in the day, Republican and Democratic congressional leaders gave support to President Ford's proposal to send a detachment of U.S. civilians to the Mideast to monitor the Sinai agreement between Israel and Egypt.

Leadership backing for the administration's proposal — a key to the pact — was tendered despite fears about stationing Americans in the volatile area.

Ford won the support of Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott and House GOP leader John J. Rhodes during a 45-minute meeting at the White House shortly before Congress ended its month-long recess at noon.

A short time later, Speaker Carl Albert and House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill indicated their backing but waived outright support until a full briefing by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Thursday morning.

The only outspoken holdout was Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield who has said repeatedly he opposed the stationing of about 200 Americans in the Sinai.

Scott, Rhodes, Albert, and O'Neill all predicted Congress would approve the plan.

Israeli parliament votes approval of peace accord

from Herald news services

The Israeli parliament in Jerusalem Wednesday approved the interim peace agreement with Egypt by a vote of 70 to 43 with seven abstentions after nine hours of often-heated debate before a jam-packed public gallery.

Former Defense Minister Moshe Dayan voted against the agreement negotiated by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, as did his ally in the Rafi faction of the Labor party, Mordechai Ben-porat.

Also voting against was opposition leader Menachem Begin who said "this is not a step towards peace but towards further pressure and towards further Israeli withdrawals."

"We must face the facts," he said. "The truth is, this was a total surrender of the government to American pressure."

But Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, in opening the debate before the Knesset special session at noon, said "from an overall security viewpoint, Israel will be stronger both militarily and politically."

Reading from a prepared text, Rabin said the stationing of U.S. civilian technicians in the U.N. buffer zone between the forces of both sides was a key element of the pact.

He said the Americans would be there "in the service of peace, to guard an active peace."

"Israel accepts that no American citizen must remain in the area if fighting erupts," he said.

Meanwhile, an Egyptian delegation headed by Maj. Gen. Taha el Magdoub flew into Geneva from Cairo to sign the interim Sinai agreement with Israel Thursday. A police helicopter buzzed overhead and police sharpshooters patrolled Geneva airport roofs as the delegation arrived.

The Israeli delegation, led by Mordechai Gazit, director general of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's office, was scheduled to arrive Thursday.

As preparations for the peace signing brewed, Israeli war planes streaked across the border with Lebanon for the second day to bomb Palestinian targets near Tyre. Israeli artillery units also shelled villages in southern Lebanon.

A Lebanese communique in Beirut said six Israeli fighter-bombers attacked the Bourgholliyeen refugee camp and that seven civilians were wounded in the 10-minute raid. The raiders destroyed five houses and damaged crops around the camp which houses about 5,000 persons, mainly Palestinians but some Lebanese.

TEACHERS WITH placards parade outside the Chicago Board of Education office Wednesday. The striking teachers formed picket lines at the city's 669 schools and branches, forcing the cancellation of classes for about 530,000 city students. The teachers voted the strike Tuesday.

669 public schools remain closed

From Herald News Services

Striking Chicago school teachers were joined on picket lines Wednesday by a variety of supporters and the city's 669 public schools did not open for the scheduled first day of classes.

Although 530,000 school children were told not to report to classes, School Supt. Joseph Hannon asked principals, school staff members and any teachers who chose not to honor picket lines to be at their area schools.

Chicago Teachers' Union President Robert Healy said 97 per cent of the city's teachers were on strike or refusing to cross picket lines.

Aside from picketing city schools, a peaceful group of 300 union members demonstrated in front of school board offices in the Loop area.

No trouble was reported at any of the schools.

Negotiations continued between the union and school board. The prime issues are money, some 1,500 teaching jobs which the board proposes to eliminate and class size, which the board proposes to increase because of financial problems.

Mayor Richard J. Daley said he did not think the two sides were "too far apart" and expressed hope the school board would move quickly to end the strike.

Some 371 teachers went on strike at three high schools in Joliet.

In Elgin, teachers said they would strike Thursday if no contract agreement is reached.

In Urbana, a strike continued for the seventh day with no negotiations scheduled.

Teachers in Belvidere returned to classes Wednesday after a six-day strike, although no contract settlement was reached.

In Louisville, Ky. meantime, the Jefferson County-Louisville School System today goes into the largest new court-ordered racial busing program in the nation amid threats of a massive boycott. Elaborate security plans have been formulated for handling any disruptions in the program.

Evidence in JFK death points to conspiracy: pair

A former Pentagon official and a photographic analyst Wednesday presented what they said was evidence of a conspiracy to kill President John F. Kennedy in Dallas in 1963. Col. L. Fletcher Prouty and Richard Sprague said the photographic evidence led to the conclusion that: five minimally, perhaps six shots were fired; there were at least three firing positions, more like four; no one fired any shots from the window; and Lee Harvey Oswald fired no shots.

Prouty and Sprague claim Oswald was framed. They urged support for a congressional resolution to be reintroduced by Rep. Henry Gonzales, D-Tex., to reopen the investigation into Kennedy's death.

Bill would delay any construction strike

Labor Secretary John Dunlop announced Wednesday legislation to overhaul collective bargaining in the construction industry by establishing a national labor-management committee that could impose a cooling off period of up to 30 days in any strike. Dunlop said the bill, written during months of secret negotiations with labor and management, would be introduced in the House and Senate in a day or two. An aide predicted it would pass like a "greased pig."

STP accepts ban on advertising claims

STP Corporation, maker of motor oil additives, Wednesday accepted a Federal Trade Commission order banning use of advertising claims alleged to be false and misleading. Two of the five FTC commissioners declined to support the cease and desist order saying, "This order is too weak." Chairman Lewis A. Engman said, "STP oil treatment is of no significant value to the majority of cars which regularly use the proper grade of oil. I accordingly have difficulty in accepting an order which does not explicitly require STP to qualify its future claims." He was joined in dissent by Commissioner M. Elizabeth Hanford.

U.S. seizes Canadian fishing vessel

Capt. He was charged under both criminal and civil statutes.

It established a special committee to find a "lasting solution" to the 13-year-old revolt.

B52 explodes in flight, crashes -- 3 dead; 4 hurt

AIKEN, S. C. (UPI) — An Air Force B52 exploded in flight and crashed about 20 miles from the Savannah River Atomic plant Wednesday, reportedly killing three of the seven crewmen aboard and injuring the other four.

Officials at Barksdale Air Force Base, La., said the Stratofortress, manned by a crew from the 58th Bombardment Wing at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, N. C., was on a routine training flight and carried no weapons.

There was no immediate explanation of what caused the explosion aboard the craft, but the Federal Aviation Administration, which was monitoring the flight, said the plane last reported it was flying at an altitude of 28,000 feet.

David M. Peek, information director at the Savannah River plant, said there was no danger at any time to the plant or personnel working at the nuclear laboratory.

FBI shows Nixon Hiss case roll

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI, criticized by Richard M. Nixon in 1948 when he was a congressman making his name in the Alger Hiss case, Wednesday released documents showing Nixon got information from Whittaker Chambers and leaked it to newspapers or the FBI.

The documents, released under the Freedom of Information Act, picture Chambers as giving leads to the House Un-American Activities Committee — of which Nixon was a member. Nixon then would rap the FBI for not getting information, the records show, or leak it to FBI agents. Nixon, then a California Republican congressman, entered national prominence on the case against Hiss, a former State Department official accused of being a communist spy. With Chambers — himself a confessed spy — testifying against him, Hiss was convicted of perjury in 1950. Nixon, his chief committee accuser, became vice president in 1952.

Hiss served 44 months in jail, but always denied guilt. Now 70, Hiss recently was reinstated to the Massachusetts bar and said he hopes to clear his name 25 years after Chambers branded him a traitor in a case involving the "pumpkin papers."

The records released by the FBI under the Freedom of Information Act show the Un-American Activities Committee getting tips and agents reading about them in newspapers.

The file is made up mostly of memos to and from Director J. Edgar Hoover and FBI bureaus in 1948. There also are newsclips related to the memos. The documents were screened and information exempted under the Freedom of Information Act was blotted out in photocopies given to reporters.

One newspaper clipping in the file — whose opening paragraph was partially illegible because it was worn — said, "Rep. Richard . . . R-Calif. . .

today criticized the Federal Bureau of Investigation . . . for its inability . . . Alger Hiss and Whittaker Chambers in . . . years of investigation."

A memo dated Dec. 2, 1948 — when Hiss was suing Chambers for libel — said FBI agents were tipped by a New York Sun reporter that Chambers had given a New York court "startling documents extremely damaging in their nature to Hiss' civil suit against Chambers."

The memo said the court "impounded" the documents. "This ties in, of course, with information received from Congressman Nixon yesterday," it said.

PUSH COMES TO SHOVE and the walls, floors, windows and chimney all came tumbling down. A village owned house at 15 W. Fremont St. was razed Wednesday. Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson ordered the demolition due to its deteriorating condition. The $1,000 demolition job was paid for out of the village's parking fund.

Radical company unions seek acceptance by police

by STIRLING MORITA

To members of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Combined Counties Police Assn. is a bit radical.

To John Flood, CCPA president, the FOP is too much like a "company" union — too much a part of the establishment.

Some members of the local FOP chapters have indicated they worry about the reputation of police when they hear of job actions by their brethren. They are quick to point out, when seeking collective bargaining rights, the FOP has a no-strike philosophy.

Flood, CCPA founder, compares his union to a Rolls-Royce and the FOP to a Volkswagen when it comes to police-labor relations. Flood says when a policeman has ridden in the luxury car, he never wants to go back to the "bug."

"SURE, I'M A radical," Flood says. "We're a controversial organization, because we're an action organization."

Joseph Vortuno, president of the state FOP lodge, explains, "Sometimes, you can catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

Of 10 police departments in the Northwest suburbs, those in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg are members of FOP while those in Wheeling, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect are in the CCPA fold. Palatine, formerly CCPA-oriented, does not acknowledge either union.

A move by several members of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept. to start a CCPA chapter more than three years ago was blunted when controversy broke out among the police chief, mayor, aldermen and some policemen.

The two organizations are the only ones available locally to police. In Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, FOP chapters are seeking official recognition from village officials.

FOP CHAPTER presidents emphasize they joined the organization because it is a fraternal order.

Sgt. Charles Poolien, president of the Rolling Meadows FOP chapter, says "As far as we're concerned, it's (FOP) more of a professional organization. We've heard nothing good about CCPA. It (FOP) is more professional in the way it's run. They don't have a bunch of radicals ready to storm the establishment."

Patrolman Richard Akerman, Hoffman Estates, FOP lodge president, said, "We're a fraternal organization — nationwide. We don't believe in striking on negotiations and endangering the safety of the public."

An officer in the Schaumburg FOP lodge, Patrolman James Kuzel, explained, "We have a two-fold commitment to the man in blue and to the people he serves as well. We're a community-minded organization."

Flood points out CCPA also is involved in community activities, such as sponsoring sports teams or contributing to charities, but such controversial actions as this year's uniform strike in Skokie grab headlines.

FLOOD STARTED the union in 1969 while serving on the Wheeling Police Dept. "because we needed a voice," He said he went to the FOP, and "they didn't give us anything."

Municipal administrators are more afraid of CCPA, Flood noted. "Police, by and large, are scared to organize. They're scared to come to us, and that their administrators won't like it."

Some policemen have wanted to meet secretly with CCPA officials in forest preserves, he added. "They (administrators) know we're a strong organization. We have a militant reputation because we stood up and fought. We're not beggars," he said.

"There are two things working against us — fear and lack of knowledge on the policeman's part about negotiations," Flood said.

Flood said he would not advocate a police strike in a major city like Chicago. He said all the fears about chaos resulting from a strike are generated by politicians.

IN A SUBURB, supervisory personnel and Sheriff's police could combine to put more men on the street than before the strike, he said.

"We don't like to strike. We don't like job action, but what do you do when they say no to collective bargaining?" Flood added.

Dist. 59 rolls rise by 43

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 enrolled 43 more kindergarten students than anticipated, according to first day enrollment figures which showed 1,013 kindergartners.

Supt. Roger Bardwell presented the figures to the school board Tuesday, saying enrollment is not dropping as quickly as the district expected. Taking preregistration figures and census statistics, the district had projected that 970 kindergarten students would enroll this year. Last year 1,112 kindergarten students entered school.

The total first day enrollment figure for the district was 10,255 students, compared to 10,525 last year — a 2.6 per cent decrease. Bardwell said about 350 students usually register in the district during the first month of school. He said the total enrollment picture is encouraging even though the district is down 270 students from last year's first day enrollment figures. The district had anticipated enrolling 300 fewer students, he explained.

HE SAID HIGHER enrollment figures will change the five-year enrollment projections presented to the board in July.

Those projections, compiled from a spring census of preschoolers and current enrollment figures in the district, show the administration anticipates a 33 per cent decline in enrollment by the 1979-80 school year. The figures predicted enrollment would drop from last year's 10,699 students to 7,279 students in 1979-80.

Bardwell said a breakdown between elementary and junior high schools shows enrollment dropped by 407 students in kindergarten through grade 5, and increased by 137 students in grades 6-8.

The district also has 11 more special education students enrolled this year, with a total of 93 students in special education programs.

6 more firefighters to start work soon

Six additional firefighters authorized in the 1975-76 Arlington Heights budget will start work in November.

The new firefighters will make possible the formation of a third company of specially-trained paramedics.

The village has ordered a third paramedic ambulance with intensive care equipment and radio monitoring devices that transmit the patient's vital life signs to the emergency room at Northwest Community Hospital.

Dist. 59, parks in money dispute

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 officials say Elk Grove and Arlington Heights park districts owe the school district more than $15,000, and a meeting has been scheduled to determine why the money has not been paid.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services, told the school board Tuesday in Elk Grove Park District owes about $13,000, partially for utility costs from operating the swimming pool at Lively Junior High School. He said Arlington Heights Park District owes the district about $2,500 in custodian fees.

Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights Park District director, said Wednesday the park district does not owe Dist. 59 any money. He said the park district maintains the school grounds at Low School, and in return, it is allowed to use school facilities. He said the school district also is allowed to use park land at the school site for playground activities.

THORNTON SAID the park district has agreed to pay for additional cus-tomial fees when the school is used at a time when custodians normally are not on duty. "We have paid for these additional charges. We don't owe Dist. 59 a nickel," he said.

He said when the park-school agreement was set up 10 years ago, the park district paid $15,000 to expand the school's multi-purpose room into a full gym. The park district also paid for gym equipment, he said.

Jack Claes, Elk Grove Park District director of parks and recreation, said, "I don't think those are the right figures. We have already paid them $4,000 of an annual obligation and are prepared to pay $4,000 for this year when our taxes come in."

He said the park district agreed to pay $4,000 a year for pool utilities. The fee is supposed to be reviewed after three years to determine whether it is the correct amount, he said.

Dist. 59 Supt. Roger Bardwell said school officials will meet with the park districts to review the figures and the park-school agreements.

Village awaits U.S. funds for senior citizens housing

Local officials are still waiting for formal approval of $3.4 million in federal funding for senior-citizen housing in Arlington Heights.

Victor Walchirk, executive director of the Cook County Housing Authority, announced in July that the funding had been approved and the formal notification was all that was needed to begin negotiations for the land.

Walchirk said Wednesday the authorization still has not arrived and construction of the 119-unit development could not start until next spring at the earliest.

"We have not as yet gotten the approval from HUD (U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development). I am hoping, certainly, to hear from them in the next 30 days," Walchirk said.

HE SAID federal officials had approved the basic plans for the six-to-nine story senior citizens housing development. The development, when finally approved, will be built on a one-acre site west of Highland Avenue between Miner and Wing streets.

Walchirk said after the official authorization is granted, negotiations would be entered to purchase the land. He said most of the landowners have agreed to sell to the CCHA which will buy the land with federal money.

Negotiations and possible court action of condemnation proceedings will push the groundbreaking back until next spring, Walchirk said.

Before work begins on the project, persons living on the project site would have to be relocated, according to federal guidelines, he said.

ANOTHER STEP to be taken is approval of design and architectural plans of the development, he said.

Federal officials had delayed approval of the project earlier this summer because they believed construction cost estimates were too high. Walchirk said the situation was resolved after a series of meetings between CCHA and HUD officials.

The village applied to the CCHA in 1970 for elderly housing. The village board designated CCHA as its agent in dealing with HUD.

SEVERAL DELAYS, including a freezing on housing funds and a site selection squabble, have postponed the project. The Wing Street site was eventually chosen by village officials and approved by HUD.

Federal guidelines make the housing available to persons 62 years or older with incomes not exceeding $4,900 and couples with a combined income of not more than $5,600.

Rent for the one-bedroom apartments is expected to be about $60 a month.

grant application touched off a controversy involving Hanson, former Village Pres. Jack Walsh and members of the master plan committee.

At the time, Walsh said that henceforth, all decisions to apply or withdraw grant applications had to be made by the village board. Madeline Schroeder, former chairman of the master plan committee and now a village trustee, criticized the action as an impediment to future village planning.

AT THE TIME, Kenning said the application was withdrawn because of a lack of progress in negotiations with the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

This spring, the village board rejected a proposed application for $125,000 in federal funds available under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Board members said they were afraid that "strings" were attached to the grant money, including a required low-and moderate-income housing assistance plan.

Hanson said he will ask the village board again to consider applying for the community development funds as soon as the federal government publishes its timetable for 1978 applications in the five-year grant program. If it applies for the money, Arlington Heights still could receive $2.4 million over the next four years in community development funds.

Other Arlington Heights projects being targeted for large federal and state grants are:

- Arlington Heights Road underpass and pavement widening. Total cost is estimated at $5.8 million, with $3.9 million pledged under the Federal Aid Urban Systems program and $600,000 from the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.
- A 119-unit subsidized senior citizens housing project planned between Wing and Miner streets. The project is budgeted at $3.4 million from HUD.
- Palatine Road underpass at the intersection with Rand and Arlington Heights roads.
- Extension of New Wilke Road from Central to Kirchoff roads.

Color TV, jewelry stolen from home

Arlington Heights police are investigating a burglary in which a color television set and jewelry were reported stolen Tuesday night from the Phyllis Grossinger home, 23 E. Seegars Rd.

The television set was valued at about $470, but the amount of jewelry taken was undetermined.

Entry was gained through a window, police reported.

Table-tennis contest won by local youths

Faan Yeen Liu, 15, and Faan Hoan Liu, 14, both of Arlington Heights recently won the junior team ping pong championship of the Canadian Open in Toronto.

Also on their team was Kurt Lloyd of Southfield, Mich. Faan Hoan placed second in the division for boys under 15 years of age.

Bloom cleared of rape charges

Eric A. Bloom, Palatine, arrested in connection with the rape of a Hoffman Estates girl in July, has been cleared of all charges.

Last week, an associate Circuit Court judge found "no probable cause" in a preliminary hearing for Bloom on charges of rape and unlawful restraint.

Jeffrey R. Baker, 22, of 708 Rand Grove Ln., Palatine, who was arrested along with Bloom, was bound over to the grand jury after the preliminary hearing.

$1.5 million loan OK'd by Dist. 59

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has approved borrowing $1.5 million to pay expenses in the education fund.

The district expects to have a deficit of $1.4 million in the education and building funds at the end of the year, according to the $15.5 million budget approved by the board Tuesday. To cover these expenses, the board approved issuing teachers' orders, a method of borrowing money through the bond and interest fund to pay teachers' salaries.

The anticipated deficit includes figures for teacher salary increases approved by the board Tuesday. The new contract gives teachers a 4 per cent cost-of-living increase in addition to the 4 per cent raise for an additional year of experience in the district. The 4 per cent cost-of-living raise is costing the district about $267,000. Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel, said the total cost of the contract's increases will be determined in about two weeks.

TEACHERS WILL be paid through teachers' orders starting Sept. 12. Six pay periods will be covered by the orders this year with the final payment being made Nov. 21. The board also will decide by that date whether another $250,000 order will be issued.

Teachers must cash their pay checks at Mount Prospect State Bank which will issue the orders. The district must pay back the orders at 5.25 per cent interest per year. The payment schedule will determine the tax increase which will result from issuing the orders.

The board can be prevented from issuing bonds to pay back the orders if 10 per cent of the voters petition the board to hold a referendum against the orders and the referendum passes. The petitions must be submitted within 30 days of when the board decides to get bonds to pay the orders.

Enrollment climbs 29%

More than 20,000 at Harper

by WANDALYN RICE
Enrollment at Harper College has gone over 20,000 students this semester, an increase of 29 per cent from last year.

The increase is the largest experienced by the college in a single year since the school moved from temporary facilities to its Palatine campus in the fall of 1969. College enrollment last year was about 16,000.

Of the total, 12,111 are taking courses for credit at the college, while 8,000 are enrolled in noncredit courses, according to college officials. The largest increases in areas offering credit courses are in business, social sciences and engineering.

IN ADDITION, the number of students taking courses full-time at the college — those enrolled for at least 12 credit hours — has increased to 62 per cent of all students taking classes for credit. Last year, just 39 per cent of the credit students were taking classes full-time.

Enrollment at the college's new Willow Park Center, an extension center offering 90 day and evening classes in the Willow Park Shopping Center in Wheeling, is more than 1,400, much higher than expected by the college, according to college spokesman Pat Lewis.

Lewis said, "We were thinking that if we got between 500 and 1,000 students at Willow Park we would be doing well." Enrollment at the college's other new extension center at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights is 1,060, he said. Only evening classes are offered at the high school. LEWIS SAID the increase in the number of students enrolled full-time at the college "is a reversal of previous trends." He said the number of "full-time equivalent" students, determined by average number of hours being taken by students if all students were full-time is now 8,978, just about the 7,000 anticipated by the college for the year 1980.

Lewis said college officials are now studying the college budget and staff to make changes needed to accommodate the additional students. Lewis said recommendations will be made to the college board of trustees next week to hire additional full-time teachers.

Harper's size brings the college even with Illinois State University in Normal, a four-year school, in number of students.

Hi: I just had to let you at Paddock know, that was the best $5.00 I ever spent. My four puppies were gone by the 2nd morning and I sent at least fifteen puppy-seekers on after that to two neighbors whose dogs also were the moonlight madness of a long-legged fence-jumper!

Milwaukee-Chicago
turbotrain route set

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Amtrak officials in Washington said Wednesday turbotrain service between Milwaukee and Chicago is expected to begin Oct. 26 on a twice daily basis.

The final details have not been completed, but Amtrak officials confirmed schedule changes were being planned with officials in Wisconsin and Michigan.

Turbotrain service between Milwaukee and Chicago has been operating on an experimental basis for one round trip on Sundays. It is expected the two new turbos will replace two regular Milwaukee-Chicago trains.

Leo F. Barrett, Amtrak district sales manager here, said ridership was 25,007 during August, compared with 24,300 for the same month a year ago on trains serving only Milwaukee and Chicago.

The August ridership was also up from July when the figure was 22,770.

State Farm hikes auto insurance

by LEA TONKIN
State Farm Mutual Insurance Co., the largest auto insurer in Illinois, announced Wednesday an 8.8 per cent increase in auto insurance rates effective Oct. 1.
The increase will cost State Farm's 864,000 Illinois auto insurance customers an average of $17 a year, although rates will vary depending on driving habits, location and type of car, the company said.
State Farm said it lost $1.4 million on Illinois insurance operations in the first half of this year, despite an 8 per cent rate increase in April.
"Our projections indicate the losses will get worse in the months ahead," said a company spokesman.
SHARP INCREASES in medical costs and auto-repair charges were blamed for the rate increase. State Farm said prices of automotive parts such as bumpers, fenders and grills have jumped 61.3 per cent since 1971 and hospital costs have gone up 50 per cent.
The company said the rate increase

Stock prices up sharply; gain 8.6 pts.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A rally late Wednesday afternoon drove prices sharply higher in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.
The meandering Dow Jones Industrial average ended with a gain of 8.60 points to 832.29. It had been off around five points at the outset and ahead about two around noon before sliding again.
Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.55 to 86.03. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 15 cents. Advances overtook declines, 682 to 643, among the 1,747 issues crossing the tape.
The volume, which picked up in the afternoon, totaled 12,260,000 shares, up from the 11,460,000 traded Tuesday.
MOORE McCormack Resources soared 8 1/4 to 67 1/4 after the company declared a two-for-one stock split and raised its dividend to 40 cents a share from 35 cents.
Copperweld, trading for the first time since last Thursday, was the second most active issue, climbing 7 1/4 to 42 in active trading on 104,100 shares. Imetal, a French firm, has made a $42.50-a-share tender offer for all of Copperweld's shares.
Texaco led the Big Board actives, off 3/8 to 23 7/8 on 228,000 shares, including a block of 99,000 shares at 23-7/8 S. S. Kresge was third, up 7/8 to 31 on 179,000 shares.
IBM gained 1 1/2 to 182 1/4. The company announced programs to extend the use of System 32 to hard goods industry users and to support first-time computer users in the candy and tobacco industries.
American Telephone & Telegraph, which filed a 12-million-share offering with the Securities & Exchange Commission, gained 3/4 to 47 1/8 in active trading. United Nuclear, which filed a one-million-share offering, lost 5/8 to 14 7/8.

will average 8.8 per cent statewide but it listed the Northwest suburbs as getting an average 10 per cent hike.
Policyholders in Wheeling and Elk Grove Village will receive 7.6 per cent increases, the company said. Figures for other individual suburbs were not listed.
The State Farm spokesman said that until the April premium increase, rates were 3.6 per cent higher than in 1971. The rates will be 12.7 per cent higher than 1971 premiums due to the new increase.
THE AVERAGE COST of auto accidents in Illinois increased sharply during the past year, although the frequency of accidents declined, the company said. "We paid 22 per cent more for the average collision claim during the first half of this year than than we did a year ago," the spokesman said. "The cost of the average property claim was up 19.2 per cent and the average bodily injury claim was up 13.9 per cent."
The State Farm report of heavy underwriting losses mirrors an earlier announcement by Allstate Insurance Companies, Northbrook. The company suffered a $7 million underwriting loss in the first five months of 1975, on Illinois auto insurance claims. Allstate announced a 9.9 per cent average increase in auto insurance premiums effective Aug. 1.
Inflation, combined with an increase in the auto accident frequency, signal what may be the worst year in history for auto insurers, said a spokesman for the National Association of Independent Insurers (NAII) Des Plaines.

At least $250 million in underwriting losses hit U. S. insurance firms during 1975, the trade association spokesman said. "But first quarter results this year predict even greater losses by year-end," he said.
A SURVEY OF auto insurance company second quarter results, slated for release this week, will show continued losses, the NAII spokesman said.
The association's first quarter study indicates "accident frequency has begun to climb again in recent months while inflation has continued unabated," the spokesman said.
Claim costs on all types of coverage averaged 22.5 per cent higher in 1975 than in the same quarter of 1974. Bodily injury liability costs increased 10.7 per cent, property liability costs rose 15 per cent, collision costs increased 29.4 per cent and comprehensive coverage costs were up 24.9 per cent. The figures are based on a survey of 10 companies who insure 45 per cent of all autos in the U. S.
Motorists can curb auto insurance costs by choosing a policy with higher deductibles, comparison shopping for insurance, driving safely, observing the 55 m.p.h. limit and using seat belts, the NAII spokesman said.

Chicago area in line for more state park facilities

by LEA TONKIN

The Illinois Dept. of Conservation plans to expand state park facilities serving the Chicago area, said Charles Tamminga, the department's newly-appointed associate director of public lands and historic sites. "Our strategy for Chicago metropolitan area recreation is to ring the area with a series of state parks," Tamminga said. "They're not to compete with local park districts."

Among the new park facilities slated to open in 1978 is the Lake Des Plaines area adjacent to McHenry Dam, McHenry County. Biking, hiking, fishing and picnicking will be allowed on a limited basis at Lake Des Plaines.

Tamminga said the department is attempting to balance the need for intensively used park areas and the preservation of more primitive areas in the park system. "We are constantly pressured to make parks all things to all people," he said.

Illinois Beach State Park near Zion is among the park areas designated for heavy public use. The nature preserve at the site will be maintained, however, Tamminga said the department will expand summer interpretive programs as public interest increases.

Landmark meeting Friday

Preservation of environmental and historic landmarks will be discussed at a conference Friday and Saturday at the University of Illinois campus, Champaign-Urbana. The meeting is sponsored by the university departments of architecture, geography, urban and regional planning, and history. Ernest Connolly, associate director of the National Park Service, will be the keynote speaker. For additional information contact Lachlan F. Blair, Urban/Regional planning, 909 W. Nevada St., Urbana, Ill. 61801.

Energy conference set

Environmental effects of nuclear power development will be discussed at the Third Annual Illinois Energy Conference on Nuclear Power in Illinois, Sept. 11-12 in Chicago. Projection of U. S. energy needs, nuclear safety and plant siting will also be discussed. The meetings will be held at the Pick-Congress Hotel. For additional information call James P. Hartnett, Energy Resources Center, University of Illinois in Chicago, 896-4490.

Soil, water survey talk Wednesday

Information about the Final Acres Program for the Soil Survey of Cook County will be presented at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg.

Home buyers, developers and other persons can use the surveys to determine potential sources of water damage and soil hazards.

Soil surveys are part of a program conducted by the National Cooperative Soil Survey in Cook County, the University of Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station and the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service, in cooperation with the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Scientists representing the U.S. Soil Conservation Service conducted the area survey. For additional information, contact Ron Gebhardt, district conservationist, in Lake Zurich, 438-8319.

33% tax-assessment bill now law

Gov. Daniel Walker Wednesday signed into law a bill requiring all Illinois counties to bring their property tax assessment rates to 33-1/3 per cent of fair market value over the next three years.

The measure, passed by the Illinois General Assembly last spring after the Illinois Supreme Court said it would set all assessment rates at 50 per cent if no action was taken, will mean higher tax bills for some Southern Illinois and rural counties.

All counties will have three years to comply with the new law. It is expected that someone would file suit challenging the bill because it would reduce revenues in counties having higher than a 33-1/3 per cent tax rate.

Cook County currently is taxing property at 33.83 per cent, slightly above the new mark. Neighboring Lake County's current property tax assessment rate is 32.48 per cent.

2 escape County Jail

Two more inmates escaped from County Jail Wednesday, bringing to 34 the number of persons who have broken out this year.

Authorities said the two men, both armed-robbery suspects, may have escaped while helping unload a truck which delivered food from the jail kitchen to the House of Correction.

Winston Moore, corrections director who has been under fire for the previous escapes, said the guard assigned to supervise the loading of the food truck apparently did not take an accurate count.

Road near Dixon crumbles

The Illinois Toll Highway Authority said Wednesday there is a problem with cracking on about 4.7 miles of the new East-West tollway near Ill. Rte. 52 east of Dixon. Edward Marsalek, deputy executive director of the toll authority, said toll road officials have called in experts from the American Concrete Pavement Assn. and the Portland Cement Assn. to try and determine the cause of the problem.

The toll authority has withheld $1.2 million due the Denton Construction Co. of Grosse Point, Mich., until responsibility for the problem is established.

Illinois briefs

Anderson ruled the death of John P. Stricklen, 18, of Ottawa, a suicide. He said a note left by the student indicated he was despondent over the death of his father last Thursday. Anderson said the note was found in Stricklen's room on the fifth floor of Wright residence hall.

Coal mine bonanza seen

Coal companies operating in Illinois are building new mines that will pump some 3,000 new jobs and from a quarter-billion to half-billion dollars into the state's economy, an industry official says.

Otis Gibson, president of the Illinois Coal Operators Assn., said the first 10 new coal mines already under construction or committed to construction will employ 3,000 persons and produce about 23 million tons of coal a year.

Judge halts rock concert

Circuit Court Judge William Vanderwater of Kane County Wednesday ordered Aurora Downs and promoters of a rock concert scheduled for this weekend to stop all plans to hold the event. Seals and Croft, the Allman Brothers and Hartsfield were to appear at the concert, scheduled for Saturday night.

Vanderwater issued an injunction "prohibiting the defendants from further advertising, promoting, selling tickets for, in any way further preparing for, holding or attempting to hold any rock concert."

The Village of North Aurora, where Aurora Downs is located, requested the injunction because of a city ordinance specifically prohibiting "rock concerts."

Vitamin claims are overblown

Could you please help me with a couple of vitamin questions? Is vitamin B-2 the complexion vitamin, and will B-2 really help one keep his weight down as I've been told?

Vitamin B-2 is riboflavin. Its most important role is in the complex enzyme system that enables you to tear down your food into carbon dioxide and water to release energy. Vitamins are not energy sources, they function to enable the body to release energy from food, specifically carbohydrates, fats and proteins.

When you have enough for its important role, taking additional amounts will do nothing for you at all. It is like having enough matches to light a candle, an extra box won't help once the candle is lit.

Deficiencies of riboflavin are quite rare, because it is so plentiful in our diet. Milk and milk products are a very rich source. Milk exposed to sunlight loses part of its riboflavin. It is also present in meat, of all kinds, cereals, including enriched breads, flour, macaroni and spaghetti. It is in broccoli, collards and spinach. It is hard to eat anything like a decent diet without getting enough riboflavin.

by Lawrence E. Lamb

If a deficiency does occur it tends to affect the special areas of the skin, around the eyes and the mucous linings as around the lips.

Vitamin B-6, pyridoxine, also affects the skin and complexion. It is involved in enzyme systems used in metabolism. You get it in meats, vegetables and cereals, and it is almost impossible to have a B-6 deficiency if you eat anything like a balanced diet or these food groups.

There is absolutely no truth in the statement that B-6 causes you to lose weight. The truth is that a deficiency of it might cause weight loss because of interfering with normal metabolism.

Excess amounts of B-6 are not stored in the body. They are rapidly eliminated, so taking large doses of B-6 just wastes your money. I am aware of the current highly advertised fad of using B-6 in weight control regimes. It is pure hokum. All of these schemes work only from an associated diet that restricts calories one way or another, or because they cause you to eliminate body water, not calories, or finally because they make you sick.

Herald opinion

Plan could be made workable

The County Zoning Board should not duck the issue of low-income housing in suburban areas.

Representatives from all levels of government in recent years have shown responses to the issue that range from coughing and looking away to outright panic.

The zoning board's recent action on low-income housing is disappointing in view of the opportunity provided by a new zoning ordinance for the county to exercise leadership on this crucial question.

Alex R. Selth, zoning board chairman, announced last week that the board has eliminated from the proposed ordinance an incentive for developers to build low-income housing in unincorporated suburban areas.

The incentive would have allowed a 10 per cent increase in density for developments offering low- and moderate-income housing.

Selth said overcrowded developments would intensify opposition to low-income housing in suburban areas. But the board is not eliminating similar density incentives for open space and recreation facilities, apparently because the board has the experience with those measures needed to judge their value.

Selth believes the county's new zoning ordinance should be neutral on low-income housing and that federal agencies financing such housing are better able than the zoning board to determine the suitability of various sites.

We urge the board to reconsider its position.

The concept of zoning incentives is a novel measure that could be used to ensure a small percentage of units for low-income families in residential complexes built under county jurisdiction.

Scattering low-income families, rather than concentrating them in a few developments, would help avoid community opposition. The density incentive would encourage developers to cooperate by giving them more units to sell or rent.

And because the new zoning code is viewed as a model ordinance likely to be adopted by some suburban municipalities, a successful test of the density incentive could have widespread beneficial impact.

5 life saving heroes

Jacl Glassmaker, Kim Sarnoff, Ronald Olsen, John Jarosz and Kenneth Chmielewski are all Northwest suburban residents. All are life savers.

Mrs. Glassmaker and Kim are responsible for saving the life of Nicole Fanshier of Hoffman Estates, who got caught in deep water while wading in a neighborhood lake. Kim, who was with Nicole, ran for help and found Mrs. Glassmaker, en route to a party. Mrs. Glassmaker dove into the lake, partly clothes and all, and pulled Nicole to safety. When asked about it later, Mrs. Glassmaker said, "I really didn't think about it. . . . It happened so fast you don't think about it."

The three gentlemen became heroes while doing their jobs. They are Mount Prospect firemen (Olsen also is a paramedic).

They responded to a call at the home of Paul and Judy Lasinbat, where they found Mrs. Lasinbat in labor. Sensing that delivery was imminent, Olsen assisted and found the child with the umbilical cord wrapped around his neck, presenting the possibility of suffocation.

The firemen responded in such a way that the delivery was safe for both the baby and mother and, according to a Northwest Community Hospital obstetrician, they probably saved the baby's life.

Because of the reaction of all these people, two young children are alive today.

We salute these life saving heroes and hope others follow their lead when called upon to help a neighbor.

Appliance industry helps control costs

The home-appliance industry has taken a welcome voluntary step to help us control the growing cost of energy.

The industry recently announced it would support a program to improve the energy efficiency of heavy appliances by an average of 20 per cent by 1980.

Industry officials report the program will mean an initial price rise on such appliances as refrigerators, water heaters and television sets, but in the long run, the move is expected to cut the cost of energy for those appliances.

The program is in response to a threat by President Ford that mandatory standards would be set if the industry failed to develop its own. Regardless of who initiates the program, we're going to benefit if the program cuts into the amount of energy we use and thus helps trim those rising electric and gas bills.

Try some other door! See Uncle Sam!

Paramedics 'special kind of men'

Recently, it was my misfortune to have to make use of the Hoffman Estates Fire Department emergency ambulance service. I was terribly ill, and in great pain and frightened! The two paramedics who came to my house and gently ministered kindness and compassion are some special kind of men for whom I cannot adequately summon an expression of thanks befitting their generosity of spirit. I have only recently begun reading your newspaper and in that short time span have not seen one person's letter of praise for these gentle, generous men. Perhaps if you would write an article concerning these stalwarts, having them explain why they have chosen to share their warmth and strength with persons in immediate distress rather than hoarding it for themselves and their family as most of us do, then perhaps some of the other folks who read your paper would rally 'round and show some support and appreciation for the few people who will always be there in an emergency.

No one told him to hold my hand and smooth my sweating forehead all the way to the hospital — I can't imagine anything too much more repugnant than smiling into a face that looked like mine at that time, but he did! He offered to make sure my husband was on the plane home and that someone was meeting him at the airport — what thanks did he get? At the risk of telling you your job, may I respectfully suggest you come over and interview these magnificent specimens of humanitarianism and share your findings with us.

Also, as long as I'm writing to you, I think you did the right thing in putting that accused child molester's name and the accusations on the front page. As the mother of two grammar school-age children, I appreciate the warning never to welcome that man into my home. To me, the murderer is a bit less of a criminal because his victim doesn't suffer. When a young forming child goes through an experience like that, however mild, it stays with that little person all their life and reflects in every friendship, whether sexual or not, that that little (or later big) person experiences. If the victim is fortunate they will have someone in whom they can trust to help them understand how deep the fear is and how much of their life it touches and, most importantly, how to use it for good and to get rid of the ways it affects them badly.

There is no excuse for these inhuman beings to perpetrate their crimes upon innocent, forming, groping children. There are all kinds of mental health facilities at their disposal; and at the other end of the spectrum, there are houses of prostitution which cater to the other than ordinary sexual whims of their patrons which could, I assume, find some appropriate diversion for these inhuman beings. If I were judge of a case such as this, and the person were found guilty, the person would be put under intensive rehabilitative psychiatric care for no less than five full years with no chance for parole.

Thanks to a life saver

We have a sincere wish to express our grateful thanks to Mrs. Jacl Glassmaker of 1500 Revere Circle, Schaumburg; Kim Sarnoff, the Hoffman Estates policemen and firemen and the Buehler YMCA for saving our daughter from drowning.

Saturday, Aug. 23, Nicole (5 in September) went to South Twin Lake to feed the ducks with Kim.

It was hot, and she forgot the danger as she waded. Having gone a distance, she couldn't touch bottom and was unable to swim to shore. Kim called her and she called Kim.

Seeing some adults on the street side of the lake, Kim asked them to help her friend.

Mrs. Jacl Glassmaker, a former swimming instructor, quickly reported her shoes and swam out to Nicole who had gone under at least five times. Using one arm for swimming and with Nicole's arms around her neck, she made it to shore worrying about giving artificial respiration to so small a person. Jacl asked that the police and firemen be called and while Nicole vomited and cried had Kim get us.

Pamela J. Johnson
Hoffman Estates

The police arrived as we did and the firemen soon after. Nicole's color had returned and though she was cold and frightened she was alive thanks to Kim, Nicole's Buehler swimming lessons and especially Jacl Glassmaker.

Canada invasion ended in fiasco

by SAM FOGG
United Press International

America's first expeditionary force invaded Canada 200 years ago this month — a valiant venture that almost succeeded but finally collapsed in defeat.

The subsequent failure of the rebel forces to take the citadel of Quebec put an end to any realistic chances that Canada would become a 14th colony in rebellion.

But the two-pronged American military effort came close to its goal. Montreal surrendered without a shot to Colonial forces from Ticonderoga led by Brig. Gen. Richard Montgomery. The capital stronghold of Quebec was within a grasp of capture by a second expedition under Benedict Arnold.

Ill-luck, ill-timing, ill-weather combined to thwart the effort and kept the province of Canada in British hands as a military base for the next six-and-a-half years of American Revolution.

The invasion thrust northward was launched Sept. 4, 1775, when Montgomery led a flotilla of boats and 1,000 men across the Canadian border to the aux Nolk on the Richelieu River, headed for Montreal.

On Sept. 11, the other plier of the American invasion left Cambridge under Arnold to move up the Kennebec River through the Maine wilderness with Quebec as its target.

Opposing the invasion was the King's Gov. Guy Carleton with few more than 1,000 British regulars spread thin for the defense of Quebec, Montreal and the quickly built fortress of St. John's on the Richelieu. The genteel governor also had to rely on the help of French-Canadian militia and Indians, allies who were tepid toward the British cause at best.

Carleton's earth fortification and garrisoning of St. John's with 700 troops, however, provided the first disruption of the American strategic timetable. It took Montgomery from early September until Nov. 2 to lay siege to the river fort and obtain surrender of the British troops, including a young officer, Lt. John Andre of later Benedict Arnold fame.

Rambunctious Ethan Allen, the hero of Ticonderoga, didn't help matters when he took off on an unauthorized foray to seize Montreal. He and 110 of his followers wound up captives of the British.

With the surrender of St. John's, Montgomery marched his men to Montreal and entered the city unopposed on Nov. 13. But the province's forceful commander, Carleton, had slipped away and a ferocious early Canadian winter was on its way.

To the east, Arnold's army of 1,200 men fared even worse in a 185-mile struggle through the Maine wilderness. Almost from the day of departure from Fort Western (now Augusta) on the Kennebec, they had to portage their 400-pound bateaux and supplies over heavy rapids and around obstacles such as Norridgewock Falls.

Rain and sleet struck on Oct. 1 and the Americans waded waist deep through the water, their clothing covered with ice "a pane of glass thick." They surmounted the Great Carrying Place to reach the Dead River and found the area flooded for miles.

Bateaux were wrecked and discarded. Provisions spoiled and starvation came. Men ate candles and later chewed on moccasins leather and cartridge cases.

Dysentery and diarrhea took their toll. Men who could scarcely stand when they got to their feet in the mornings slogged on "a stumbling march through the day."

Lt. Col. Roger Enos in the rear guard marched three companies of men home.

The army survived when an advance force led by Arnold found supplies at a Canadian settlement and the Americans struggled to the walls of Quebec. What had been planned as a 20-day march had taken 45; of the 1,000 who started out, only 700 remained.

With Carleton and his men snug in their bastion and confident of the arrival of British troops in the spring, Arnold and Montgomery were beset by another major problem. The one-year enlistments of many of their men were to expire Jan. 1 and a high percentage of them were ready to skedaddle home.

The two American leaders had little recourse but to try to capture Quebec by force and in the early morning hours of a freezing Dec. 31, Montgomery and Allen led separate detachments in a surprise attack on the lower town. The British had anticipated them, however, and had fortified the narrow, dark streets leading to the Heights. At the head of his men, Montgomery was instantly killed by a cannon shot. His second-in-command panicked and turned back even though the British defenders before him had fled.

On the other flank, Arnold was wounded in the leg by a musket ball and was carried, protesting, to the rear. Leadership fell to Capt. Daniel Morgan, a brawny Virginia rifleman who bore the lashmarks of a British army flogging on his back.

Morgan energetically led the Americans over barricades with scaling ladders and they scattered British defense forces to lay open the way to the upper town. But with victory in sight, he heeded the cautious advice of his subordinates and paused to wait for Montgomery's men to join him.

The hesitation proved fatal. The British regrouped and cut off Morgan's retreat. After furious fighting in the cul de sac, the Americans surrendered and the assault was done for. Morgan and 476 fellow officers and men were captives.

Reduced to an army of 600, Arnold pulled back across the river. Reinforcements arrived in March but so did an ineffective American commander, Brig. Gen. Daniel Wooster, who was fond of his bottle and disliked Arnold from their Connecticut days.

Smallpox swept through the camp and Wooster's successor, Gen. John Thomas, died of it. Fresh British troops and warships were expected soon. Another enlistment hitch was due to expire April 15.

The invasion of Canada had collapsed. The fledgling American army had learned the taste of defeat. It also had begun to learn to soldier.

Today is Thursday, Sept. 4, the 247th day of 1975 with 118 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

German composer Anton Bruckner was born Sept. 4, 1824.

On this day in history:

• In 1609, Henry Hudson discovered the island of Manhattan.

• In 1781, Spanish settlers founded the city of Los Angeles.

• In 1969, Brazilian terrorists kidnapped American Ambassador Burke Elbrick. He was released three days later when the Brazilian government freed 15 political prisoners.

• In 1971, a jetliner crashed in the Alaskan mountains, killing 111 persons.

A thought for the day: American novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald said, "In a real dark night of the soul it is always three o'clock in the morning."

Depressing similarities of surveys

Surveys that attempt to measure the quality of education have a depressing sameness in their results.

Inevitably, surveys find that children from middle-and upper-class homes do better than children from poor economic backgrounds. The suburbs outscore both the inner city and rural communities consistently.

In addition, many tests seem to show that the ability of students to master the basic skills is declining. Scores of college entrance tests are dropping and numerous parents are becoming concerned about the achievement of their children.

Recently the Education Commission of the States, a Denver-based organization which studies educational trends, released some results compiled by the National Assessment of Educational Progress, one of the group's projects.

Tests of 9, 13, and 17-year-olds and young adults produce much the expected results.

RESULTS OF THE National Assessment tests in math have been well publicized. Tests found many students and adults could not balance check-books, compute correct change or determine the most economical size of a product.

The test results also showed that suburban students score better in math than the national average, and considerably better than inner-city students. Tests in reading, science and social science showed the same pattern, although deficiencies were not as great in many of the national results as they were in math.

All these results are predictable and consistent with everything we know about education. A couple of findings in the National Assessment report are not quite so predictable, however, and make an interesting commentary on what separates suburban students from those who live in other areas.

THE NATIONAL ASSESSMENT on music, which tried to determine musical interests and activities of students, was the one place in which suburban students scored below average. Students from the inner city and rural areas said they listened to more music on television and radio than students from the suburbs. However, suburban students were more likely to play an instrument than the other two groups.

On the topic of "citizenship," suburban students generally outscored those in other groups, except in one interesting instance.

streetlight, reading the Communist Manifesto — or even Hans Brinker.

More likely you might find them perusing something deliciously salacious — say a magazine with explicit depiction of male phalluses and naked women and slyly enticing "want ads" — which is what Max Scherr made of his revolutionary publication.

NOW FROM the West Coast comes the news that the employees of the Berkeley Barb are trying to organize a union. After years of either voluntary labor or remuneration that sometimes reached the level of $15 per week, the dedicated staffers of the Berkeley Barb are beginning to conclude that they have been ripped off.

Young revolutionists, before they attach themselves to a guru, should record this fact in their minds:

Max Scherr, who made himself a key figure in a "new revolution" of the 1960s, is now involved in a lawsuit over who should get what from the disposition of his publication, the Berkeley Barb. One of the issues in dispute is whether the publication is worth $500,000 or $1 million.

The revolutionary gets his barbs

The revolution is dead, if it ever lived at all.

The great revolutionary movements of history have had spokesmen who carved a place in history for their ideas, whether true or false.

Thomas Paine wrote "Common Sense" and rallied thousands to the cause of independence for the American colonies. Karl Marx wrote "Das Kapital" and infected millions with the dedication to the war on capitalism.

The radicals of the 1960s, however just their cause, found themselves with news sheets like the Rolling Stone and the Berkeley Barb.

THE ROLLING Stone, essentially a music-review publication which prided itself on giving vent to all sorts of kooky viewpoints, has survived to become an "in" publication for the younger set — and has even produced such rather significant writers as Dr. Hunter Thompson, with his own peculiar view of the political world.

The Berkeley Barb, however, has proven itself to be a vehicle of crass exploitation of, of all people, the working class.

The Barb was originated in the mid-1960s by a self-styled radical named Max Scherr. According to one account, Scherr used to amuse himself at the age of 14 by reading the Communist Manifesto to his chums in Baltimore, under a streetlight.

If you happen to have a child in the neighborhood of 14 — or if you have been 14 yourself — I suggest that you consider the probability of a group of youngsters of that age sitting under a

Delay, diffuse, delegate--you win

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

And, now, here's The Committee Game — invented by Halas L. Jackim, professor of education at the State University of New York College at Oswego.

It's just in time for all brave souls ready to throw themselves into committees around college or the schoolhouse in the new academic year.

Jackim's game, based on 23 years of infiltrating committees, should help all the school committee members — from PTA to school board, lunchroom, field trip and what-not. In the Chronicle of Higher Education, he tells about rules, etiquette and scoring system. The purpose of a committee, as he sees it: "To prevent the development of significant decisions; to delay or diffuse an issue by making it unrecognizable."

The thing about etiquette: just remember to "show disgust for any act aimed at achieving a speedy discharge of a committee's mission."

Also: "Resist all attempts to delegate individual responsibility. Rather, insist on committee action for every little bit of committee business."

From five to 15 may play the committee game; the greater the number, the more confusion.

SOME EXCERPTS from the Jackim scoring system:

• 5 points for converting the obvious meaning of a statement into something different by approaching it from a creative oblique angle.

• 5 points for forgetting an earlier decision and bringing it up for renewed discussion.

• 10 points for throwing in a new term, preferably from a foreign language.

• 10 points for injecting an irrelevant issue.

• 5 points for canonizing the need for student participation.

• 5 points for citing a study, book, or other authority and quickly changing the subject before being questioned about it.

• 5 points for gesticulating with glasses, pipe or pen.

• 5 points for telling the group that it has a communication problem.

• 5 points for taking twice as long as needed to say something.

• 15 points for phrasing a statement in such a way that a player opposed to it fails to recognize it and votes for it.

• 25 points for wearing down the opposition to the point where it will vote for anything simply to adjourn the meeting.

P.S.: Jackim says players can be disqualified if they persist in their effort to clarify the committee's goals.

Mid-Suburban showcases new look in cross country

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross Country Editor

The Mid-Suburban League is showcasing its new look this autumn — separate North and South conferences — and in cross country the change takes on special significance.

It means that somebody besides Fremd will have a chance to win a trophy. North and South dual meet champions will put their titles on the line in the MSL meet Oct. 21.

Also, for the first time in 1975, girls will be running cross country competitively. A girls race will be featured during MSL dual meets, beginning today with Prospect at Schaumburg, Hersey at Hoffman Estates, and Rolling Meadows at Elk Grove. In addition, Wheeling will host St. Viator.

Fremd must still be regarded as the favorite to take North conference and league honors — if only off the Vikings' 1974 third-place state finish. But coach Ron Menely's perennial MSL winners will be severely tested by a rugged Palatine team in the North and several rising powerhouses in the South.

Fremd will be "catchable" because 1974's district and sectional champs lost four harriers to graduation. This year's team has two juniors and a sophomore in the top three.

"This is the year to get Fremd," said Hoffman coach Jim Swift, whose own team could do the chasing. "They're a little thin this year, but next year they'll be back strong."

Another reason the Vikings might be caught is the continued improvement throughout the rest of the league. Plenty of schools will show off title contenders. Palatine has amazing depth; Conant, Prospect, and Schaumburg boast a formidable group of juniors; and Forest View has some top individuals.

If there is a favorite's choice in the tightly balanced South, it would be Hoffman, a team that tied for fifth in conference last year without any seniors. This season Swift has a quintet of returning lettermen — Sam Cox, Dave Porzel, Ed Elliott, Steve Lind, and Kevin Rooney.

"Cox is our most proven runner," said Swift, "but the rest of the team will be closer to him this year. Everybody should be up there with him."

Individually, everybody in the league will be chasing John Filosa, Fremd's sensational junior. Eleventh in the state meet as a sophomore, Filosa has been working hard all summer and turned in a 2:34 marathon last month in the Paavo Nurmi classic.

Filosa and fellow junior Dan Tischler will join sophomore Bob Rateliff to give the Vikings a core of underclass runners. Dean Elleman, Fremd's only senior with any real varsity experience, is the fourth man. Menely is searching vigorously for a fifth man.

"We're not going to be as down as some people figure," warned Menely on the eve of the season. "I don't think I've ever had a group come in to the season in such good shape. We've got the base."

"We've got two goals this year," the Fremd coach continued. "Number one, we want to qualify for state — and I think we'll be in there. Second, we want to win conference. We've won it three or four years in a row and we feel we've got an obligation there."

Menely is also optimistic about his girls' program, headed up by coach Vicki Keith. Top harriers for Fremd are Lori Lagerhausen and Lois Johnson.

Palatine's nucleus of seniors Dave Horwath, Pete Kearns and Mike Monson and junior Tony Vargas will be fortified by a pair of outstanding sophs, Chuck Elliott and Tom Johnson. Other top prospects on coach Joe Johnson's team are Brian Kessler, Jeff Slemmon, and John Dahlgren.

Conant, which finished in a second-place tie last year with Palatine, returns two varsity juniors, Pat Hagen and Jeff Krautwurst, and adds third-year harriers Dan Cummings and Jeff Walter. Coach Jack Ary also welcomes the addition to the varsity of sophomores Bill Baird and Jim Schopp. Baird was MSL soph champ last year as a freshman.

Schaumburg's superb sophomore team of a year ago will make up the heart of the Saxon's harrier squad. Steve and Bruce Anderson, Randy Lewis, Bill Solik, Bob Reuter, and Rich Stanish will join seniors Larry Viola and Mark Glabinski.

Prospect's Matt Lawson and Jack Pittman, a pair of tested juniors, will be instrumental in the Knights' title challenge. Another junior, Pat White, will be slowed by an injury. Bill Hrbek, Jerry Kelley, Tim Soper, and sophomore Mark Smith are other Prospect hopefuls.

Forest View's hopes are pinned on junior Darryl Robinson, fifth last year in the MSL conference meet. Robinson and senior half-mile champ Steve Schellenberger should provide some excitement for the Falcon followers this season.

Adjustments at Wheeling

by KEITH REINHARD

Back on track?

This is a big question being asked around Wheeling these days as the Wildcat football program regroups for another season. Wheeling gridders have put together several off campaigns and fans are wondering aloud if the pendulum is about to swing back in the other direction.

It's a question that looms particularly prominent in the mind of one Gerry Cline, who not coincidentally is doing the most right now to prompt a positive response. Previously a successful prep coach in California and more recently an assistant at Prospect, he is the one taking the Cat helm and assuming the big task of righting the ship.

"I think it would be kind of premature to start waving a banner already although we are optimistic about improving on the last couple of years," Cline began. "The newness of the whole thing is the key. It'll take a few games before this wears off and we can take a more objective look at the program and its promise."

By newness, Cline isn't just talking about striking up friendships with the coaches either. Every head man has his own system and while the rest of Wheeling is adjusting to his, Cline has the job of learning the names and merits of a host of new youngsters.

There's more too. "We have several kids out for football the first time at the varsity level and a number of others assuming entirely new positions from last season. There's a lot of learning going on all over the place here and it's how well this progresses that will probably determine our success over the year."

A key example of the new approach is 6-2, 195-pound George Raupp, one of a dozen returning lettermen and a player already making an impression on Cline. He was a guard last fall but Raupp has been converted to center this season while the coach lauds him as having the potential to be one of the offensive linemen in the area.

Flanking Raupp will probably be guards Dave Nelson (6-0, 180) and Tom Lueders (6-1, 189) and tackles Greg Berkeley (6-1, 215) and Al Paski (6-2, 215) although veteran Doug Peterson (6-3, 225) will be getting a crack at one of the tackle berths.

At tight end the team is deep, with Tim McGinn (5-10, 165), Larry Fry (6-0, 175) and Steve Smalley (6-1, 180) in the running. Smalley last year battled for the quarterback position, but he has left that job up to another returnee, Glenn Barry (6-0, 175) and will probably concentrate more on defense this year.

Joining Barry in the backfield will be fullback Curt Rathje (5-10, 185) and halfback John Piff (6-0, 160)

HARD-SERVING Dave Johnson puts the ball in play during Monday's semifinal match in men's open division of Paddock Tennis tourney. Johnson edged top-seeded Paul Wei in a third-set tiebreaker before losing to Steven Levons in the finals, 6-4, 6-3, at Arlington High.

while the probable starting offense will be rounded out by split end Bob Terryberry (6-1, 165) and flanker Mike Dollen (5-8, 150).

Rathje and Piff along with Leuders are the only juniors likely to see early heavy action on this mostly senior squad.

Defensively, the game will change but not many of the performers. Raupp is slated for middle guard, Berkeley and Peterson have been tabbed for tackle, Smalley and Rathje will team with Jeff Stinson (5-9, 175) at linebacker, Nelson or McGinn will work with Mark Larson (5-10, 170) at end and Terryberry, Dollen and Keith Pecka (6-4, 170) will roam the secondary.

Other names to watch for are place kicker Scott Jones (Rathje will handle punting chores), split end and defensive end Bucky Black, and tight end Jan Simonson who is lost for the present time to a knee injury.

While the learning goes on, Cline sees several other keys to the Wildcat future taking form. With two-thirds of his starting lineup going both ways, durability will be important along with the need for more depth.

"I hope some of our underclassmen come along quickly but, in the meantime the regulars appear to have the conditioning for the long haul."

And the new coach summarized as he prepared the 'Cats for their opener at Rolling Meadows next Friday and an upswing from last year's 1-7 slate: "I think we'll be a more explosive team and while we're not going to run by people, I believe we'll have decent speed. We're going to be a steadier club too, and that's very important."

New coach, new hopes at Conant

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Aldous Huxley has nothing on John Ayres and the Conant Cougars. It is a brave new world at the Hoffman Estates school as Ayres, who has a reputation for righting floundering football programs, puts his magic touch to a team that was 1-6 in the Mid-Suburban League South Division last year.

"I think the reason I've been successful as a coach is by treating football for what it is at the high school level — a game," Ayres said. "I'm going to work my butt off and so is my staff and my team, but I like to make football fun and enjoyable for the players."

Ayres was hired from Fairbury-Cropley High School last spring after a successful (14-4) two-year stint at the central Illinois school. He isn't expecting miracles but he is pleased with what he found upon coming north.

"I didn't expect to find a great deal of talent but I have found several things to work with," he said. "Enthusiasm throughout the squad and a great deal of desire from the upper classmen."

"That's quite a bit to work with if you ask me. I think if you watch us all year you'll see a steady improvement with each game."

Ayres' rebuilding skills will be put to an extreme test when Conant hosts Buffalo Grove in the opener Friday night. The Bison were 7-1 in their first full varsity campaign and have enough good football players back to be given serious title consideration.

"If the kids aren't awed by Buffalo Grove, and I don't think they will be," Ayres said, "I think with some breaks we can be in the game."

"Right now we're working with a lot of inexperienced players and it's going to take time for them to develop."

The movers and shakers from the Conant offense last year have all graduated. Quarterback Bob Borczak, who was the Cougar MVP last year, is gone, a loss of 567 yards passing and 163 rushing.

Ayres is looking hard at two candidates for Borczak's job as the opener approaches.

"We've installed a completely new system this year and I'm looking for the quarterback that can take control of the team and run the offense," Ayres said.

The eager hands looking to run that offense are senior Tom Hupert and junior Scott Schaefer. Neither have had a lick of varsity experience but both look capable of running the plays in practice.

Running plays in practice and running them in a game are two different coin flips, though, and whomever does get the quarterback job will get some protection from an offensive line that includes four seniors and a junior.

Senior Wayne Reed will handle the

Take a peak in Playboy — Illini, 'Cats picked as losers

If you want some good reading this month, take a peek at September's Playboy.

Specifically, pages 145 to 148. If you happen to get distracted along the way, the article's 27 pages past the foldout.

Oklahoma — holder of the longest winning streak — is picked No. 1. No surprise there.

Back in the 1960s — to many people's surprise — this magazine actually tabbed Iowa to go 9-1 and win the national title. Instead, my alma mater went 10-0. I lost respect for my team and Anson Mount's predilections after that.

Obviously, the state's top teams — Illinois and Northwestern — were nowhere in sight. Besides missing from the top 20, neither is among the "Possible Breakthroughs." Instead, Wisconsin, Purdue and Iowa (!!!) are there.

Illinois and Northwestern are dead last in the Big Ten with 2-9 marks. But how can you trust a prediction story that leaves Notre Dame out of the top 20?

Don't despair, Illini and Wildcat fans. Just cancel your subscriptions and buy another magazine.

Dan Beaver — 'Hefner All-American'

There's some good news for Illini grid followers coming out of Hefner's magazine — placekicker Dan Beaver is a pre-season All-American choice.

Also, in a section marked "This Year's Supersophs," Kurt Slegler is tabbed as one of the top four quarterbacks in the nation.

Farmer area player sidelined at Illinois

Bad news from Champaign last week — John Norton was sidelined indefinitely.

Norton, who played for Arlington before going on to star in junior college two years, was a top candidate for a tackle spot. Then his scapula (shoulder blade) was fractured.

Several other area players have had injuries over the last few years at Illinois. While others were somewhat frustrated by several position changes, Area Illini almost seemed flummoxed.

Monday night football at Champaign?

Even after spending $1½ million, there some "bugs" in Illinois' Astro-Turf. A section near the left sideline has sunk slightly.

"There are a lot of good features," said athletic director Cecil Coleman, "but for that kind of money, we expect a bit more than we got."

Meanwhile, Coleman's making plans to have lights installed for practice and intramural play, but only half enough candle power for night games and one-fourth the needed light for network TV.

The NCAA allows just three regular TV appearances for a team in a two-year period, but that doesn't count night games or bowl games. Coleman is anxious to investigate the idea of a Monday night TV game within the next two years.

Let's see pros working for union scale

Turning to pro sports, could you imagine a superstar like Joe Namath only earning a yearly salary of $125,000 from the Jets?

That would be the maximum if the National Football League exercised its option, certified by the National Labor Relations Board, to set a union scale of wages.

Rookie quarterbacks would start at about $25,000 with four-year veterans making $35,000 and superstar signalcallers being the only ones over the $100,000 mark.

Running backs would start at $24,000 with four-year men earning $32,000 and guys like John Brockington taking home $100,000.

Average pay for a four-year player would be around $30,000.

"If that happened," said Ed Garvey, executive director of the players association, "I don't know what the players would do."

I know what the fans would do — enjoy the game more.

Home court good in MSC tennis

The home court ruled in the first day of Mid-Suburban Conference tennis and if the trend holds through today's second round of competition, only two teams will remain unbeaten in the league.

The six winners in Tuesday's play all treated their visitors to convincing losses, the closest being Wheeling's 4-3 trimming of Buffalo Grove. Hersey thumped Forest View 7-1, Prospect knocked off Rolling Meadows 6-2, Fremd thrashed Elk Grove 6-1, Arlington stunned Conant 8-0 and Palatine beat Schaumburg 6-1.

Prospect and Palatine will return to the home court today with the Knights taking on Forest View and Wheeling traveling to the Pirates' perch.

Other league games will find Hersey at Elk Grove, Rolling Meadows at Buffalo Grove, Fremd at Conant and Hoffman Estates at Schaumburg.

Cubs bomb Cards; Sox lose in 10

The Chicago Cubs and White Sox wore split personalities after Wednesday night baseball games.

Pinch-hitter Pete LaCock hit a grand slam homer of reliever Bob Gibson with two out in the seventh inning Wednesday night in St. Louis to give the Chicago Cubs an 11-6 victory over St. Louis and move the Cardinals five games back in the National League East race.

Gibson began the seventh after the Cardinals scored five runs in the sixth to tie the score at 6-6. He walked Jose Cardenal with one out and Mike Tyson threw wildly on Champ Summers' single to put runners on first and third. Gibson then walked Andy Thornton but got Manny Trillo to hit into a force out at the plate. Gene Hise, running for Summers, scored on Gibson's wild pitch for a 7-6 Chicago lead.

Pinch-hitter Jerry Morales was walked intentionally to load the bases and the count went to 3-2 on LaCock before he blasted a drive over the right field wall for his sixth homer of the season and the first Chicago grand slam of the year.

The loss dropped Gibson's record to 3-10 while the win went to Chicago reliever Buddy Schultz, who took over with two out in the sixth to record his first major league victory.

Lou Brock drove in three runs with a two out bases-loaded double as St. Louis pulled from a 6-1 deficit to tie it in the sixth. Cubs' starter Willie Prall, who pitched the first 5-2/3 innings in his major league debut, was pulled in favor of Tom Dettore who loaded the bases setting the stage for Brock's double.

Meanwhile, Al Cowens tripled home two runs with two out in the 10th inning to give the Kansas City Royals and rookie right-hander Dennis Leonard a 5-4 win over the Chicago White Sox in Chicago.

The win, Leonard's 12th against five losses, ran his winning streak to seven games. Marty Pattin pitched the last inning for his first save.

Amos Otis opened the 10th for the Royals with a single, but was forced at second when George Brett's drive bounced off losing pitcher Dave Hamilton and set up a play at second base. Mayberry singled to move Brett to second before Cookie Rojas struck out. Cowens then tripled deep to left-center for his game-winning hit.

Back-to-back homers by Brett, his ninth, and Mayberry, his 30th, which tied Reggie Jackson for the league lead, gave the Royals a 2-0 lead in the fourth.

The White Sox got one run in the sixth on Ken Henderson's single, Bill Melton's double and Mike Squires' infield out. They moved in front 3-2 in the seventh when Jorge Orta stroked his eighth homer after Jerry Hairston singled.

The Royals tied it off Hamilton (5-3) in the eighth on Brett's double and Mayberry's run-scoring single.

White Sox manager Chuck Tanner was thrown out of the game for the fifth time this season after arguing called fourth ball to Kansas City's Frank White in the seventh inning.

COSTLY PICKOFF. Cubs' Andy Thornton dives back into third ahead of St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons' throw which hit the baserunner and permitted Thornton to score one of 11 Cub runs.

THE CHICAGO BEARS acquired veteran wide receiver Bob Grim (left) from the Giants in exchange for defensive tackle Dave Gallagher.

The Chicago Bears, moving swiftly to shore up their pass receiving corps, Wednesday traded defensive tackle Dave Gallagher to the New York Giants for flanker Bob Grim and an undisclosed draft choice.

Grim, 30, was an all-pro with the Minnesota Vikings in 1971 before going to New York in the trade that returned quarterback Fran Tarkenton to the Vikings. In eight NFL seasons, he has caught 155 passes for 2,367 yards and 14 touchdowns. Last year, the 6-foot, 200-pounder caught 20 passes for 466 yards.

The deal came just eight days after Bears General Manager Jim Fluke purchased speedy end Ron Shanklin from the Pittsburgh Steelers, suddenly giving the Bears two of the more respected pass catchers in the NFL.

The Bears also cut four veterans and a rookie and placed them on waivers to bring the squad size to the National Football League limit of 49.

The departing veterans and their years of service were free safety Garry Lyle, eight years; guard Ernie Janet, four years; kicker Miro Roder, three years, and wide receiver Wayne Wheeler, two years. Also lopped was guard Rick Anthony, who played with Orlando in the World Football League last season.

In addition, to the 49 on their roster, the Bears also have three members of the College All Star team in camp, Mike Hartenstein, Virgil Livers and Walter Payton. The All Stars will be counted on the roster for the first time when the next cut is made to 46 Tuesday.

'Winds not at fault'

The legal counsel for the Chicago Winds said Wednesday it was the league — not the Winds' owners — which failed to meet its financial commitments and forced the club's downfall.

The attorney, Kenneth Zak, denounced the NFL for "improperly and unfairly" damaging the reputations of the Winds owners in statements issued when the club was disfranchised Tuesday.

The league stated that two of the Winds' investors withdrew the $175,000 they had on deposit with Zak, and the remaining investors refused to replace the money. The Chicago group was headed by Eugene Pullano, a businessman.

Zak said, "The investors who were referred to as having withdrawn were not part of the Chicago group but were brought in by the league as part of the responsibility which the league assumed to help fund the Chicago Winds."

"The failure to obtain the additional investors was the responsibility of the league and not the Chicago group," he said. "As a result of the announcements which have been made the personal and business reputations of the Chicago investors and their families have been improperly and unfairly damaged. These people have not defaulted in their obligations to the league in any manner."

Hawks anxious for varsity debut

by PAUL LOGAN

It's probably fitting that the youngest school in Dist. 211 — Hoffman Estates — should make its varsity football debut against the oldest — Palatine.

Hoffman's celebrating its third birthday; Palatine's its 104th! When the Hawks of head coach Bill Gourley take the field Saturday, they'll be counting on a brief but successful tradition to help them get by one of the most tradition-laden schools around.

The Hawks didn't lose a game as sophomores. As juniors, they were 6-0. And, unlike some new schools, Hoffman didn't play a varsity game at the end of the jayvee season. So they're plenty hungry. So's their coach.

"When you work with the same group of kids two years, you kind of want to see what we've accomplished," said Gourley.

The last time Gourley coached a varsity team (1965 at North Chicago) it finished with a perfect record, posted six shutouts and only gave up 15 points. Gourley had an 18-5-1 record in three years there with two league titles and a second.

ley's realistic about the challenge ahead of his youthful team:

"If we get five shutouts this year, it means I've been going to church three times on Sundays."

"We weren't facing the people with the offense we're going to face now . . . sophisticated offenses. We'll have to be prepared to do more things . . ."

And it will have to do "more things" with less personnel than usual. Hoffman only has 30 healthy players (one's injured). Besides being small in number, the team is also small in size, averaging 165.5 pounds.

"They've gotten tired of hearing how small they are," said Gourley, whose squad met and defeated several teams that were much bigger than themselves last season. "It doesn't bother them anymore."

1975 HOFFMAN ESTATES FOOTBALL SCHEDULE
Sat. Sept. 6, PALATINE, 2 p.m.
Sat. Sept. 12, ROLLING MEADOWS, 2 p.m.
Fri. Sept. 19, at Forest View, 8 p.m.
Fri. Sept. 26, at Gurnee, 8 p.m.
Fri. Oct. 3, at Prospect, 8 p.m.
Sat. Oct. 11, CONANT, 2 p.m.
Fri. Oct. 17, at Elk Grove, 8 p.m.
Sat. Oct. 25, at Schaumburg, 2 p.m.
Sat. Nov. 1, FRED, 2 p.m.

The Hawks' offense made opponents look little in '74, outscoring them 230 to 21. En route to this lopsided total, the Hoffman attack ran 70 per cent of the time.

"Establishing a running game was one of the things we wanted to do as a junior team," he said. This year Gourley's hoping to run only 60 per cent of the time because of the improvement of quarterback Wayne Jackson (5-foot-10, 175).

"Wayne's done a nice job for us in the pre-season. I'm really happy the way he's come along."

"He has a feeling for what I want offensively . . . We certainly won't be afraid to throw the ball."

Joining Jackson in the backfield will be fullback Joe Parille (5-11, 163), tailback Dave Lipko (5-9, 155) and either Bill DiPuma (5-8, 143) or Tom Schmalz (5-5, 150) at wingback.

Making up the line will be split end Kevin Stalley (5-11, 167), tight end Tresey Todd (6-0, 175), guards Frank Gurecki (5-10, 165) and Jim Thomas (5-11, 180), tackles Jim Broucek (6-0, 283) and center Doug Rush (6-0, 173).

As they did last year, the Hawks will be running out of the 'I' formation with, pretty much of a multiple type offense. However, the defense will be more sophisticated.

Starting on defense will be tackles Broucek and Tim Lebert (5-10, 193), ends Thomas and Mike Byers (5-11, 175), linebackers Gurecki and Parille, middle guard Chad McCreary (5-9, 155) and halfbacks John Borczak (5-10, 147), Stalley, John Staback (6-0, 165) and DiPuma.

What will 1975 bring? Gourley isn't making any predictions. The Hawks must stay healthy because of the numbers situation.

"Quite frankly, as far as I'm concerned we're a question mark for everybody," he added.

Gourley will be assisted by David Pentz, Larry Niwa and Mike Batina.

Conant under new grid leadership snapping and at 6-foot-1, 200 pounds he is the biggest man on the Conant front wall.

Seniors Bill Behringer (6-0, 180) and Kevin McGrath (6-0, 200) will line up at tackle. Senior Ron Burhite (5-8, 180) and junior Jeff Johnson (5-11, 175) will man the guard positions.

The Conant backfield has high hopes with the new diversified play-book and the running of Steve Stompanato. At 5-11, and 135, the senior will fill Ayres' I-Back slot as well as return punts and kickoffs.

Stompanato, who was used mostly as a return man last year and was always a break away scare, is the only player with rushing yardage from last year. Stompanato ran for 216 yards in 48 carries in 1974.

Worst disaster

On Feb. 26, 1918, an estimated 604 were killed in what was the worst disaster linked to sports in recent history. Some stands at the Hong Kong Jockey Club race course collapsed and caught fire.

Senior Dan Neswold will operate at flanker and Mark Furling, (5-9, 165) will be the Up-Back.

Mike Frisch (6-3, 150), who started for the Conant basketball team, and Tim O'Neil (6-1, 155) will be the split ends.

On defense Rich Johnson (5-11, 180), Tom Izze (5-11, 165) and Jeff Cleys (6-1, 195) are battling for the tackle slot. Behind them will be linebackers Jeff Johnson, Mark Galleis (6-0, 165) and Dave Jablonski (5-7, 155).

The tackles will pinch around middle guard Carl Paulson (5-7, 150) and the defensive ends will be senior Chris Schroeder (5-9, 150) and junior Jim Helsen (6-0, 160).

Tony Stompanato, younger brother of Steve, Frisch and Burhite will control the air lanes in the defensive secondary.

Harmon forecast returns

The Harmon Football Forecast, which has achieved a most respectable position after 18 seasons of service, returns to Herald sports pages this morning with the first of its weekly collegiate prognostications.

Harmon predictions will appear each Thursday or Friday in the Herald, depending on when the college games are scheduled.

It may be abbreviated, but this first week of collegiate football should be very interesting. Last year's surprise power in the Southwest Conference, Baylor, takes on Mississippi. Georgia tussles with Pittsburgh in a North-South battle and in a Monday night attraction, Alabama meets Missouri.

In addition, five of seven teams which have been promoted to Division I status will be in action for the first time as major college football teams. Mississippi has not been the Southeast Conference strongman it once was and has a tough assignment against Baylor, Harmon's seventh-ranked team in 1975. The Rebels will get off to a poor start. Make it Baylor by 17 points.

It should be almost a coin-flipper between the Pitt Panthers and Georgia Bulldogs. Georgia finished 6-5 in the regular season last year. Pitt was 7-4. Make this meeting Georgia by two points.

Alabama-Missouri inaugurates Monday Night Football, which comes into full swing when National Football League teams begin their Monday games later this month.

Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide, still shaken after losing to Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl last January, will come back strong. Missouri, 7-4 last year, isn't ready to pull such a great upset. So... Alabama by 10 points.

Five new additions to major college football who will play on Saturday are Arkansas State, Ball State, Central Michigan, Northeast Louisiana and Southwest Louisiana.

Central Michigan won the National Collegiate Division II championship last year. Despite graduation losses, Central should whip Western Michigan by 27 points.

Southwest Louisiana is picked the only loser in the group as we've favored Long Beach State by nine points.

Modern practice dictates low card lead

What do you lead from a three-card suit? The old rule was to lead the top unless headed by an honor, in which case you would lead the lowest.

The modern expert practice is to lead the bottom from three small. Today's hand shows the advantage of the modern practice.

West opens the deuce of spades against South's three notrump. East rises with the ace and leads the suit back.

Now put yourself in South's position. If his opponent makes old-fashioned leads, he knows where the queen of spades is. He rises with his king and loses the club finesse, but it doesn't cost him his contract. West's queen blocks the suit. There might even be an unexpected dividend. West might drop his queen to unblock and thereby establish South's jack.

South might make the same play against a modernist, but he would be guessing well — not playing a cinch.

What to know about selling your home

by LEA TONKIN

Setting a reasonable price can be a family's most difficult chore in a home sale.

That's the opinion of Terence Bolger, president of T.A. Bolger Realtors, headquartered in Rolling Meadows. A seller should understand the procedure of determining a home's fair market value and other steps in a home sale, Bolger said. "The ultimate price will be determined by a buyer," he added.

Compare the selling price of similar homes, consider location, the condition of the single-family house or condominium unit and other features in a pricing decision. "Also, you should know your competition," Bolger said. A "for sale by owner" approach can be used. Bolger said a homeowner can risk delay in selling a home or the problem of pricing a home too high or too low for the market, however.

"It's common and recommended to talk to different brokers," Bolger said of an owner's next move once the decision is made to sell the house through a real estate firm. A seller may receive various opinions on the market value of the house. Commissions, home sale guarantee programs and other features can vary among realty firms.

A seller will be asked to sign a listing agreement, when the choice of a real estate firm is made. It is generally a 90-day agreement. The asking price, date of possession, the realty company's commission and a list of personal property included in the sale should be specified in writing.

"We charge 7 per cent," Bolger said of the real estate commission on the final sale price. "It is negotiable between the seller and broker."

Bolger said a salesperson or broker can start showing the home immediately within 24 to 72 hours of the listing agreement, the home listing will be distributed in an area multiple listing service.

THE MAP MULTIPLE Listing Service (MLS) and the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors MLS link area firms in a program that should increase a seller's opportunities for a speedy sale. Through an MLS, a home is listed by an agent for one firm. Then it may be shown by the listing sales person or broker and representatives of MSL firms throughout the area.

Bolger estimates the time between the listing agreement date and a sale is generally three and a half to four weeks. "Some sell in the first couple of days. Some take longer," he said.

A seller can increase the attractiveness of his home to potential buyers by fixing leaky faucets and other minor problems and maintaining a neat appearance in a home, Bolger said. "Things they're going to throw out anyway when they move out should be thrown away," he said.

When the time comes for the house to be shown to prospective buyers, Bolger said, the owners should stay in the background. Sellers may greet the broker and buyers at the door. Buyers prefer to visit a house unaccompanied by nervous onlookers, however.

The listing broker should have a key to the house. The key can be loaned to other brokers. Generally, a realty agent will call before buyers are brought to the house.

A POTENTIAL buyer's decision to make an offer to purchase the house will trigger a series of events, said

Area's population boom declined during 1970-73

The population boom that hit northwest Cook County in the 1960s continued at a slower pace from 1970 to 1973, a Continental Bank survey shows.

Area population increased by an average 21,282 persons a year during the 1960s, said Charles F. Willson, vice president of area development at Continental Bank, Chicago. The rate decreased to an average 11,324 residents a year for the 1970 to 1973 period, he said.

The Northwest area defined in the Continental Bank study is bounded by Lake, McHenry, Kane and DuPage counties, O'Hare Airport and the Des Plaines River. The study is part of a series which the bank's area development department updates on a regular basis.

THE BANK survey indicates residents living in the "Golden Corridor" from Des Plaines to Barrington account for more than 52 per cent of the population of northwest Cook County.

"Substantial commercial and industrial development has accompanied the area's rapid suburbanization," the report said. "Construction of the Northwest Tollway and O'Hare Airport within the area helped to make this one of the most dynamic and economically viable areas of metropolitan Chicago."

Twenty-four per cent of the employed area population work in Chicago and 91 per cent work in Cook County. Manufacturing is the leading employer, accounting for 31 per cent of the area's working residents.

Residential construction of some 8,100 units a year is reported for the period 1970 to 1973. The rate is among the highest in the entire metropolitan area.

CONTINENTAL'S studies of Chicago and suburban Cook County also showed:

Charles F. Willson

• From 1970 to 1973, the population of central Chicago increased by three-tenths of one per cent to 1,740,500. This was the first measured increase since the 1950 census but was still 19 per cent below the 1950 level.

• The construction of single-family homes on Chicago's South Side almost equalled the construction of apartment units from 1970 to 1973. During this time, 2,791 homes and 3,304 apartments were constructed, which is comparable to the ratios in most suburban areas.

• Northern Cook County depends more on Chicago for employment than any other suburban Cook County area. Sixty per cent of northern Cook County's work force works in Chicago, with 11.5 per cent employed in the central business district.

• From 1970 to 1973, south Cook County experienced a population increase of 8 per cent to 452,000, closely following the county's high of 8.6 per cent in the northwest suburbs.

• To accommodate southwest Cook County's increased population, more than 3,800 dwelling units have been constructed every year since 1970. Generally, the construction of apartments has exceeded home construction, particularly in the communities which are closer to Chicago.

Realtors back changes in clean air bill

Clean air and water pollution control legislation drawn up in the U.S. House of Representatives is supported by the National Assn. of Realtors (NAR). The association urged Congress, when it returns from a recess, to adopt the House approach and reject the U.S. Senate proposed amendment to the Clean Air Act of 1970.

The association said the issue is whether Congress will consider regulations affecting only clean air and water, or whether the amendment will be used as a means of imposing federal land-use controls.

The Clean Air Act requires control of "indirect sources" of air pollution. It provides for review of planned developments such as shopping centers, highways and parking lots which may attract automobile traffic. Permits would be required for the construction of the facilities and other measures taken to alleviate pollution.

The House bill to amend the Clean Air Act would delay the indirect source controls until the auto manufacturers meet exhaust emission control standards. The NAR favors the delay. The parking facility does not pollute the air, but the auto traffic attracted to the development does cause pollution problems, the association said.

Credit unions offer mortgage loans

Illinois credit unions may offer first-mortgage real estate loans under a law signed Aug. 28 by Gov. Daniel Walker.

HB 773 provides that mortgage loans of up to $50,000 may be offered at an interest rate that does not exceed a quarter of one per cent below the rate allowed under usury law. The current state usury ceiling, or limit on mortgage loan interest rates, is 9.5 per cent.

Credit union loans will be allowed for secured non-real estate loans to $20,000 or 12.5 per cent of capital surplus.

The new law raises the limit of unsecured loans to $5,000 or 5 per cent of the lending credit union's unimpaired capital and surplus, whichever is less.

HOUSING CONSTRUCTION INDICATOR

PERMITS ISSUED SEASONALLY ADJUSTED AT ANNUAL RATE

PERMITS FOR NEW homes and apartments in the Chicago metropolitan area increased during July, indicates a construction indicator chart prepared by Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Chicago.

Housing starts up in July: survey

Permits for new homes and apartments in the Chicago metropolitan area increased for the second consecutive month during July, said the Bell Federal Savings Survey of new building.

Schaumburg ranks fourth among area housing leaders. Permits for 225 single-family houses were issued in the municipality for the first seven months of 1975.

The total number of new area housing permits issued increased to 2,094 units during July, compared to 1,760 permits issued a year earlier. Single-family home permits rose 24 per cent from 1,176 to 1,457 units during the period. Apartment permits totaled 637 units, a 4 per cent increase above July 1974 results of 614 units.

Suburban area single-family home permits increased from 921 permits to 1,078 units in July, 1975.

For the first seven months of 1975, the combined total of permits issued for single-family homes and apartments was 8 per cent lower than figures reported a year earlier. The 11,881 unit figure compares to 12,960 for the first seven months of 1974.

Upturn in sales reported

A sudden and dramatic upturn of used home sales activity is reported by the four area offices of Century 21, Arlington Realty. July sales of 67 homes amounting to $3.3 million set two new, all time records for the 25-year-old firm.

The number of home sales and the dollar volume were both more than double the same figures for July 1974, and were the highest ever posted for a single month. The previous record high for a single month was April of this year with $3.2 million. After a slow first quarter of 1975, when sales fell 10 per cent behind the first quarter of 1974, a sudden and sustained upswing beginning in April and continuing through July, has rocketed the seven month volume to more than $15.9 million, or 30 per cent ahead of the same period a year ago.

In posting the record July sales, two of the firm's four offices posted sales in excess of $1 million. North Arlington office (Bob Anderson, manager) and Palatine area office (Terry Leighty, manager) were both in the million plus category. For the North Arlington office, it marked the fourth month in a row with sales topping the million mark.

The average sales price for Century 21 homes sales is $53,474. Average for the entire northwest suburban area is $48,500, up approximately $3,000 from one year ago.

Listing activity is keeping pace with home sales, according to Herb Carl, co-owner and general sales manager for Century 21, Arlington Realty. New exclusive listings taken by the firm are up 31 per cent over last year.

Real estate facts

by Virgil E. Grand
President, Northwest Suburban Board of REALTORS®

Every piece of facial tissue is not "Kleenex." Every cola-type soft drink is not "Coke." And everyone in the real estate business is not a Realtor.

The term Realtor is a registered service mark — just as "Kleenex" and "Coke" are registered trademarks — which identifies professionals in real estate who subscribe to a strict Code of Ethics as members of the National Association of Realtors.

Realtors are further identified by membership in local boards and state associations. In our area, the local organization is Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, with offices at 1655 S. Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights. The Illinois Association of Realtors has offices in Springfield.

Members of the national, state and local Realtor organizations display the Realtor identification — the stylized "R" — or the name Realtor in their signs, advertising and business cards.

Persons in the real estate business who are licensed by the state to sell real estate but are not members of the National Association and its state and local organizations — by their own choice and for whatever their reasons — are not Realtors, and are incorrectly identified when called by that name.

Members of the National Association of Realtors pledge to abide by the Realtors Code of Ethics, which demands high professional conduct. The essence of the Code is the Golden Rule, contained in the preamble: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them."

The Code is enforced through professional standards committees which are maintained by local boards. These, in effect, are grievance committees charged with the responsibility of hearing complaints and arbitrating disputes. The public as well as members of the board can bring complaints before the committee. Disciplinary action can consist of suspension or expulsion from membership. A licensed real estate broker who is not a Realtor is governed only by state licensing controls.

Through the Code of Ethics, the National Association is working to unify and standardize the practices of its members. Thus the term Realtor has come to connote competence, fair dealing and integrity in business relations.

What does all this mean to the public? First, the public has a definite interest in protecting the Realtor service mark because the term designates professionals in real estate who subscribe to a strict Code of Ethics which governs their relations with each other and with the public.

Furthermore, the term identifies persons in the real estate business who are affiliated with well-organized real estate activities; who have available to them the accumulated knowledge of more than 60 years of education, experience and research in real estate business methods and standards; and who, in the judgment of their peers in the business, have personal standards and business competence of sufficient merit to warrant entrusting them with the important fiduciary relationships involved in real estate transactions.

Research underway to protect cities

Research to protect cities and their inhabitants from natural hazards such as earthquakes and high winds is under way in the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

As cities and their populations grow, so does the damage which natural disasters can cause. For research on building design to protect against such hazards, the National Science Foundation has awarded $476,500 to UIUC.

Heading the research are Profs. Nathan M. Newmark and William J. Hall, internationally-known in the fields of earthquake engineering, structures and materials engineering, and soil dynamics. Other UIUC civil engineering faculty involved are Profs. A. R. Robinson, W. H. Walker and D. A. W. Pecknold.

The engineers explain that the same facts apply in designing structures to withstand earthquakes, winds, wave forces, landslides, floods, ice and explosions.

Their goal is to develop simplified, new or improved design techniques. The research will utilize the university's extensive computer facilities.

It will involve simplified analysis and design methods, taking into account the strength of materials under earthquake or wind stress and the limits of materials under forces which exceed their elastic strength.

Also involved will be design which takes into account interaction between above and below ground parts of a structure and the surrounding soil or rock.

The need for new engineering design was highlighted by such events as the 1971 Los Angeles earthquake; 1970 Lubbock, Tex., tornado; Gulf Coast hurricanes; 1970 earthquake in Peru, and 1964 Alaska earthquake.

Mobile home shipments increase

June mobile home shipments of 20,330 posted the fifth consecutive monthly production gains and a modest gain over the previous months. 20,270 mobile home shipments, reports Bill Weide (Fleetwood Enterprises), chairman of the Manufactured Housing Institute.

Shipments throughout the remainder of 1975 are expected to continue at a seasonally adjusted annual rate at around 220,000 to 240,000 mobile homes.

Preliminary figures from Elrick and Lavidge for the month of July are 20,000 mobile home shipments. While this figure represents the first down turn in production after five consecutive gains, it is significantly narrowing the gap between 1974 and 1975 shipments. The 20,000 preliminary July figure is 38 per cent behind July, 1974 as compared to 43 per cent in June.

Fix-it book cuts costs

by MERLE E. DOWD

Along with the disappearance of the general handyman for a variety of reasons, service costs for everything from repairing a leaky faucet to checking a clothes dryer have jumped skyward at an astounding rate. Travel costs boosted by the increase in gasoline prices plus shortages of skilled servicemen conspired to raise servicing expenses for keeping our electrical and mechanical servants in working order.

To fill the gap, mechanical magazines have for years bombarded their readers with a succession of auto repair, home appliance servicing and home fix-up articles. These articles were good but sporadic. You could seldom find what you wanted quickly. Often the specific help you needed was missing.

But the need was there. To fill that need, Time-Life Books developed a compendium of fix-it information that can't help but save you money. Called "How Things Work In Your Home (and What to Do When They Don't)," the book delivers on the title's promise in words and drawings. In short, the book is a money-saver for anyone with either existing fix-it skills or an interest in learning.

If one picture is worth a thousand words, then the multi-colored exploded and cutaway drawings are easily worth 10,000 words. Combined with a simply-worded text, the cutaway, functional drawings do two things —

• They show the inner workings of practically everything from a simple faucet to the complexities of an oil furnace and automatic dishwasher in exhaustive detail.

• They inspire confidence that you really can understand how gadgets, appliances and home machinery work and that you can fix them yourself. Unless you can see yourself completing a repair or satisfactorily replacing a part once you rip into something that isn't working, you won't begin the job. Instead, you'll throw up your hands and call a serviceman.

On the same day I was leafing through "How Things Work..." our electric dryer suddenly quit producing heat. The drum turned, and the fan blew air through the tumbling clothes. But the heating elements remained cold.

"Aha," I said. "Let's see how well the book works." I asked our 16-year-old to tackle the job. He began removing access panels. With the help of the book and a wiring diagram, he traced the heating circuit to an open connection. Sure enough, a wire had burned through and interrupted the circuit. A short section of heat-resistant wire and two wire connectors were all he needed to repair the dryer — cost, 75 cents plus sales tax. A service call could easily have cost $18.

Most appliances can be fixed by simply replacing whatever component, wiring or piping malfunctioned. With the many clear drawings plus an organized trouble-shooting guide, you can probably repair at least two-thirds of the problems that afflict your mechanical and electrical servants.

Where do you get parts? From the same sources as the serviceman — a parts warehouse with a stock of the most often needed replacements. Or, you can order parts from the manufacturer by mail.

A serviceman seldom repairs faulty components. He will almost always remove the troublesome component and replace it with a new or rebuilt unit. You can do the same, usually with a minimum of tools. The trick is in finding the trouble. Here you need help — either from an owner's manual that may have accompanied your equipment or from a book such as "How Things Work..."

Or, be prepared. Write the manufacturer of your appliances for a service guide and illustrated parts list along with the name of a local supplier of replacement parts.

Cruise package prices could vary with season

Q. "My husband is about to retire and we are considering an ocean cruise. I have a number of brochures and note cabin prices vary considerably. How should we evaluate differences? Are shore excursions included in the prices?" — Mrs. D.S.

A. Cruising offers delightful — and relatively expensive — relaxation. First, recognize that quoted prices include practically everything on board ship — cabin, food and entertainment. Not included are beverages, tips and individual purchases. Shore excursions or tours are not generally included either, but the ship's staff arranges shore trips and you can buy tickets aboard ship.

Prices vary according to the season, length of the voyage and cabin accommodations. Experienced, cost-conscious cruise passengers prefer low-cost cabins. Since these are usually sold out first, plan ahead. Off-season rates may be as much as 20 percent below in-season rates. To price cruise packages on a common basis, figure the cost per day.

Many cruise patrons prefer lower deck, inside cabins because they cost less and they spend very little time in their cabin — mainly to sleep and change clothes. Out of the cabin, every passenger enjoys the same amenities — food and entertainment.

— How do I buy food?

Q. "I didn't pay much attention when mother was cooking and I lived in a dorm at college. Now that I'm married, I realize I know practically nothing about buying meat and other foods. We don't have much cash since my husband is still in graduate school. When can I get a course in food shopping?" — P.B.

A. Probably your best bet is to study the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's "How to Buy Food" series of folders and pamphlets. Fourteen bulletins describe in words, photos and drawings how to buy dairy products, eggs, dry beans, fresh vegetables, canned and frozen vegetables and fruits, beef, poultry and lamb. Your university library will likely have these.

If a Cooperative Extension Service office is located near you, ask for free copies. If copies are not distributed free (some offices do — others don't), you can get the full series bound in one book, "How to Buy Food for Economy and Quality," from Dover Publications, 100 Varick St., New York, N. Y. 10014. The book sells for $1.50, which is just over 10 cents for each folder. If you bought the folders directly from the Government Printing Office, the total cost would be about $3.50.

— Tips on Tire life

Q. "Will running the tires on our station wagon at the pressure noted on the sidewall get more mileage? With tires costing more all the time, what other tips can I follow to extend tire life?" — E.D.

A. Care and attention definitely pay dividends in extended tire life. However, the pressure noted on the sidewall is the maximum pressure for carrying the maximum load for which the tire is designed. Use that pressure only when carrying heavy loads.

Space limitations prevent detailing every known trick for getting more miles from each tire. However, the Department of Transportation issued a no-nonsense Fact Sheet, "Three Rules for Maximum Tire Life," a couple of years ago.

In words anyone can understand, the Fact Sheet tells you just about everything you need to know about getting more miles from your tires, as well as how to read and use the data molded into the sidewall. For a free copy write to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, U.S. Dept. of Transportation, Washington, D.C. 20690.

— What's standard?

Q. "Rather than rent a car, we plan to buy a van in Europe. After touring we will bring the car back to the U.S. The savings over renting a van look good, but I'm wondering if the car will meet U.S. emission standards. Will we have to equip the van with a catalytic converter after it arrives here?" — M.F.

A. Presumably you have set up the deal through a U.S. dealer or broker. Cars to be imported to the U.S. are built to meet our emission standards, including normal installation of a catalytic converter.

However, you're likely to run into one problem. Few service stations sell unleaded gas in Europe, and continued use of leaded gasoline will poison the catalyst in the converter. You will probably need to replace the converter soon after you arrive back in the U.S.

The Environmental Protection Agency ruled recently that, beginning with 1976 models, catalytic converters must be replaced if cars were run on leaded gasoline before importation — at a cost of about $150.

1976 cars go public this week

DETROIT (UPI) — The U.S. auto industry begins introducing its 1976 models this week in hopes of ending its worst sales slump in more than 40 years.

Industry analysts predict 1976 model year sales at 7.5 million to 7.6 million. Import sales may hit 1.6 million next year, the analysts said.

President Lee Iacocca of Ford Motor Co., second largest automaker after General Motors, will begin a three-day show Tuesday by outlining Ford's hopes for 1976. He is expected to announce or indicate the 1976 Ford prices.

BUYERS AND competitors want to see how Ford's prices compare with those of GM, GM, the only big Detroit company to announce 1976 prices, has increased new car prices by an average of $206, or 4.4 per cent, and on trucks by an average $357, or 7.3 per cent.

With GM accounting for more than one-half of all vehicle sales, industry experts believe Ford, Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Co. increases will be about the same.

On Wednesday, Ford will formally preview its 1976 cars. Detroit is expected to end 1975 with sales at about 6.8 million, down from last year's hapless year and nearly three million off the record 1973 sales. Industry sources said the slump is the worst since the Depression years of the early 1930s.

Latest figures show that about one out of every five new cars sold in the United States is foreign made, primarily because of low price and good gasoline economy.

With that in mind, U.S. car makers probably will move toward smaller, subcompact cars in the next few years. The Chevrolet Chevette is the first U.S. minicar.

With the 1975 model year nearly over, U.S. carmakers have built only 4.1 million new cars, off more than 15 per cent from the same date last year.

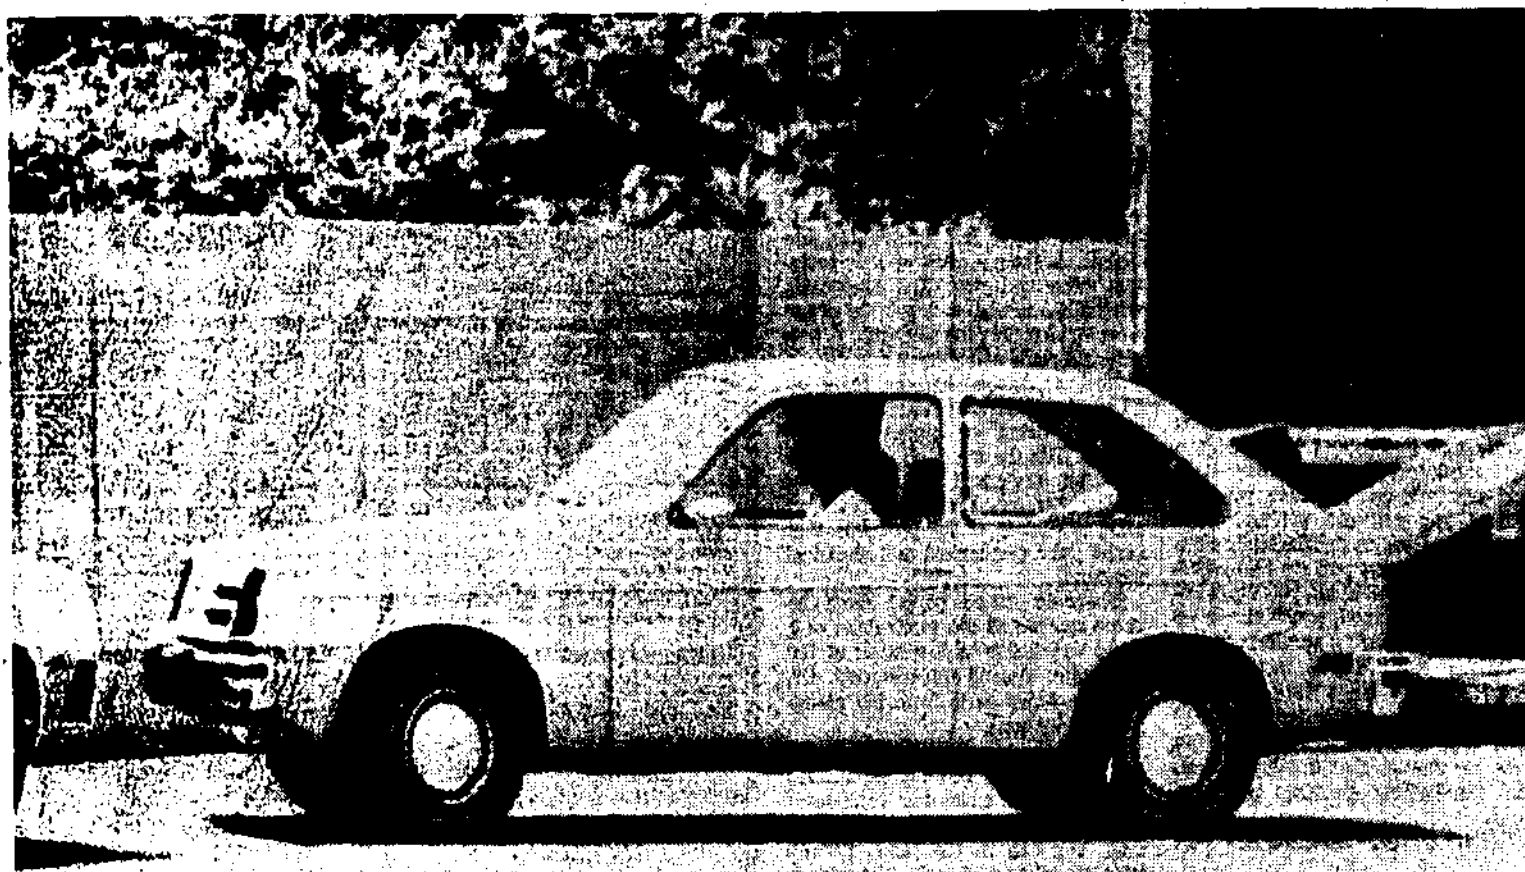

Lieberman makes two 24-hour sales

Lieberman Inc., Realtors announced that during the months of June and July their Buffalo Grove office alone had sales over 2 1/4 million including two 24-hour transactions during July in which the firm listed and sold exclusively two residential properties in less than 24 hours.

Both properties were located in the Lake County portion of Strathmore and were sold by Jack Garber. One home was listed by Bill Anderson and the other was listed by Earl Sauter, all with Lieberman's Buffalo Grove office.

Firm moves office

J. E. Bernard and Company, Inc., Air Export Division, has moved from 1111 Nicholas Boulevard, Elk Grove Village, to O'Hare Airport, Continental Cargo Building. "This move will enable us to provide our customers with a higher level of service for both import and export air movements, as we will be able to ship and receive freight 24 hours a day," said Ralph A. Trankina, vice president. The office hours in the new location will be 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

U.S. AUTO competitors are a bit envious of the new mini-Chevrolet Chevette, which has been in the factory since mid-August. Chevette will provide the first real test of the American car buyer's willingness to slip into something smaller during the coming years. It will go on sale about Oct. 2.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

When the time comes for you to put your house on the market, it pays to make it as salable as possible. This does not include major remodeling, as the cost of this can seldom be fully recovered in an increased selling price.

Buyers are apt to be impressed with little things, for better or worse. A dripping faucet, a door latch that doesn't catch, a burned-out light... all give the impression that the property is about to collapse. Buyers lose interest in such a place, fast! Try to see your home as buyers will see it and fix up those little faults.

We'll be glad to inspect your property and suggest things you should do. List with us and we'll help you get top dollar for your property.

How to select, place smoke detection devices

"Know what you're buying when you select a smoke detector for your home." That advice comes from O. L. Hogsett, University of Illinois Extension safety specialist.

Knowing what to look for in a smoke detector prevents hasty purchases from high-pressure salespersons or advertisements using scare tactics, Hogsett says. And he advises comparing at least three products before purchasing.

An ideal fire-detection device satisfies the following requirements: early warning, easy installation, reliable, self supervising, easy maintenance, inexpensive purchase and installation costs, not subject to false alarm, long lasting and minimum alarm rating of 85 decibels at 10 feet.

"Look for a smoke detector that comes with a description of its capabilities, operation and installation requirements and expected lifetime of its parts," says Hogsett. "And only purchase equipment listed or approved by nationally recognized laboratories such as Underwriters Laboratories and Factory Mutual Engineering Corporation."

Understand the extent of the guarantee on the equipment and who will honor it. Hogsett reminds that a service guarantee is no help if there is no firm available to do the work.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission points out that your house electricity may be unreliable during a fire. So you may want to consider a battery-operated detector. But be sure it is equipped with a warning device to notify you when the bulb or battery needs charging.

There are two types of smoke detectors on the market today. The ionization unit uses a radioactive source to produce electrically charged molecules (ions) in the air, Hogsett explains. The photoelectric type uses a photoelectric bulb (like the "electric eye" in many automatic doors).

For a safe escape, the alarm must warn occupants before smoke or toxic gases accumulate.

The ionization type detects smoke before it is visible. When smoke enters the small inner chamber of the unit, the electronic sensor detects the minute change causing the alarm to sound. In contrast, the photoelectric unit emits a beam of light that sets up an electric current in the detector. The alarm sounds when smoke obscures the light and reduces the current.

According to Hogsett, the average reaction time for the ionization unit is 25 seconds compared to 53 seconds for the photoelectric type.

Hogsett warns that even the best smoke detector is useless when not installed in the right location. The location must allow the alarm to awaken all sleeping persons — through closed doors if necessary.

He gives the following guidelines for locating your smoke detector units or units:

Attach detector to the ceiling.

Locate detector outside of, but close to, all bedrooms.

Use more than one detector in two-story dwellings.

Locate detector at the top of stairs in center of hall.

Attach detector on basement ceilings at entrance to stairway.

Locate detector in central passageway near bedrooms in mobile homes and trailers.

If there is more than one bedroom area in any home, there should be a detector at each. If possible, a detector should protect the exit path so it will sound the alarm before thick smoke prevents escape.

According to Hogsett, knowing where not to install smoke detectors is equally important. He offers these tips:

Do not locate in kitchen. Broiling or baking foods may cause unnecessary alarms. A hallway location outside the kitchen will detect serious fires.

Do not locate in the garage. Automobile exhausts are concentrated combustion products and may trigger false alarms.

Do not locate in front of air registers or where open windows or doors can direct high air currents toward the unit.

Do not locate in rooms or attics where the temperature is likely to go below 40 degrees or above 110 degrees F.

Do not locate inside closets or small utility rooms.

Make certain the detector is in working order by blowing smoke from a match into the ionization chamber (or in front of the electric eye for the photoelectric-type detector) until the alarm sounds. Test your units at least once a month and always after you have been away from home for more than three days.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission recommends replacing batteries at least once a year — even if the warning device for weak batteries has not sounded, Hogsett advises. And replace photoelectric bulbs about once a year.

MRS. NANCY STEWART of Buffalo Grove examines the Kitchen-Aid trash compactor she recently received from Kitchen-Aid. In a survey conducted by Kitchen-Aid in the Chicago & North Western depot, Mrs. Stewart listed a trash compactor as the appliance she most wanted and Landwehr's Home Appliances, Arlington Heights as her Kitchen-Aid dealer. Dan Angell, sales manager of Landwehr's, made the presentation.

Physicians consider medicondos

A "medicondo" — something for physicians to consider.

So suggests Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Pennamco, Inc., Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization.

"Condominium office buildings for doctors are steadily growing in popularity in populous areas of the country."

"Dissatisfied with rental offices that lack flexibility and individuality, physicians are discovering that the medicondo is an ideal arrangement for their patients as well as for themselves," Dennison says.

A medicondo offers numerous advantages besides being a promising investment with potential tax benefits.

Dennison lists a few of the pluses:

Privacy. Office space is frequently raised one level above ground, eliminating draped, closed-in or shaded windows.

Parking. Since most medicondos reserve the ground level for doctor/patient automobiles, it means easier, quicker and less expensive access to these offices.

Flexibility. Doctors may now move their heavy and unwieldy medical equipment to various rooms with greater ease.

High ceilings and larger rooms. Both doctors and patients appreciate that "unclosed-in" feeling. Many professional offices in rental buildings are notoriously cramped — not a pleasant feeling for those with a claustrophobic orientation.

Decorating can be far more imaginative — using colors that impart a restful, relaxing air, instead of "rental white." Proper lighting, custom designed, creates a less harsh atmosphere.

Some medicondos have exercise rooms for physicians. Good for taking a much needed break without leaving the building — where they can privately indulge in shop talk.

Individual heating and air conditioning systems alleviate too cold or too warm examining rooms. This is an oft-heard patient complaint.

A kitchen to prepare snacks for doctors and nurses is a time-saving amenity.

"Many physicians — eager to provide the utmost in convenience, function and comfort to their patients as well as themselves, plus making a potentially rewarding investment — will do well to ponder a medicondo," Dennison concludes.

Jim Duncan, vice president of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors in Des Plaines. Once the buyer signs a contract to purchase form, the offer should be presented to the seller as quickly as possible.

The selling salesman will contact the listing salesman, who makes an appointment to present the offer. A seller may accept the offer and sign the agreement. He can reject the offer or make a counter-offer. Price and possession date may be negotiated. The selling salesman takes any new offer back to the buyer, who may sign it, make another proposal, or reject the offer. Any offer or counter-offer can be withdrawn only until it is signed.

Duncan said many sellers hire an attorney to check contracts before they sign the agreements. An attorney is needed unless the seller can prepare the necessary legal documents to close the sale.

An offer to purchase is generally contingent on the buyer's ability to line up financing. When financing is arranged, buyers sign mortgage documents, the lender generally orders a search on the property title and a closing date for completion of the transaction is set.

THE CLOSING is often held at the financial institution where the buyer obtained a mortgage loan, Duncan said. The seller and his attorney, the buyer and his attorney, a representative of the lender and the realty office are generally participants in the session. The seller receives a certified check for the sale price, less the payment for existing loans and a real estate broker's commission. Selling and listing brokers split the commission.

An escrow account will be set aside to ensure that the seller moves out of the house on the proper date. If the seller delays the move, a penalty will be paid to the buyer from the account.

Virginia Knauer, special assistant to the President and director of the Office of Consumer Affairs for the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, advises home sellers to check a local library for books on real estate procedure, and to consult an attorney about any written agreements. Some realty agents will favor a multiple listing service approach or the exclusive listing for one firm, she said.

Sellers should consider alternatives in the financing of the sale, Mrs. Knauer said. There are tax advantages in financing the mortgage yourself, if you do not need the entire cash sum immediately.

Contact the Veterans Administration (VA) or Federal Housing Administration (FHA) offices for information on mortgages backed by the agencies, Mrs. Knauer advised. Lending institutions charge "points" or special fees on these loans. A point is one per cent of the loan amount. Be sure your contract with the seller limits the number of points you'll pay.

All day reviews scheduled

The State of Illinois is giving examinations in Chicago on September 22 for those seeking to be licensed as real estate salesmen or brokers. Real Estate Education Company has scheduled two All Day Reviews to prepare students for that state exam. One All Day Review will be held near O'Hare September 13, at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge, 8201 Higgins Road. The second All Day Review will be held September 15, the day before the state exam, at the Ascot Inn, 1100 South Michigan Ave., Chicago. Buffalo Grove office to expand

After only seven months of operation, Quinlan and Tyson's new Buffalo Grove office will be expanded.

William B. Martin, senior vice president and general manager-residential sales, said the sales office in the Buffalo Grove Mall Shopping Center will be increased 50 per cent in size.

In addition, Martin said that Quinlan and Tyson has begun recruitment of four more real estate sales representatives to bring the sales staff up to 18 full-time professionals.

The staff expansion will make the Quinlan and Tyson office the largest real estate facility in Buffalo Grove, Martin stated.

"The public's acceptance of our newest office since its opening in January has enabled us to move ahead with plans for an even larger and better facility to serve buyers and sellers in the Buffalo Grove area," Martin said.

The major expansion was planned after a record sales month in May in which Buffalo Grove rolled up total sales of $1.2 million. "This large sales effort showed the need for a larger facility to meet the demands for service in the area," Martin stated.

Martin praised Robert Griffith, office sales manager, for his leadership. Griffith, who formerly was a sales representative in the Arlington Heights-Mt. Prospect area office, has already topped the $1 million mark in sales for 1975, the third straight year he has accomplished that feat. He also is a member of Quinlan and Tyson's $2 Million Club.

The Buffalo Grove area office is the eleventh office opened by Quinlan and Tyson in its 91-year history. It is one of four northwest suburban offices. The other area Q&T offices are Arlington Heights-Mt. Prospect, Palatine and Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates.

3 cited for sales

Three members of Baird & Warner's Mt. Prospect office, 31 E. Prospect Ave., have been cited for outstanding sales activity, according to Robert G. Walters, senior vice president and general manager, residential division.

Charles Moser, local sales manager, James Murphy and Robert Stefani, sales associates, have participated in contracts for the sale of properties valued in excess of $1 million. Moser reached the mark by the end of June, and Murphy and Stefani by the end of July.

All three members of the company have been consistent winners of sales awards, and are longtime residents in the area.

Requests for VA loans increase

Broadened opportunities to purchase condominium units with Veterans Administration guaranteed loans resulted in 146 requests for project approval during the first three months of the program, the VA announced today.

Since April 1, the VA has been permitted to approve condominium projects for guaranteed loans without the previous stipulation that Housing and Urban Development (HUD) must have previously insured loans in the same project.

Removal of the HUD clause was included in the Veterans Housing Act of 1974 which also made more than four million veterans, whose GI home loans have been paid in full, eligible for new loans guaranteed by the VA.

Requests for condominium project approval through June 30 were received by 27 VA regional offices. The largest number of requests, 20, were processed by the Washington, D.C., regional office.

Of the total VA requests, 88 were for existing projects constructed as condominiums, the remaining for new or proposed projects. Horizontal projects were the most popular structure with 103 requests. Low-rise projects accounted for 31 requests while the remaining 12 were for high-rise construction.

The number of high-rise submissions are expected to increase as developers become more familiar with the VA program and processing requirements, a VA spokesman said.

Merna Meyer

Merna Meyer sells $1 million

Merna Meyer of Quinlan and Tyson's Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates area office has sold more than $1 million of property this year.

She topped the million figure in August, it was announced by Ken Koy, office sales manager.

This is the second year that Mrs. Meyer has gone over $1 million. She topped the magic level in 1973 when she led all office sales representatives in total volume to win the Quinlan and Tyson Award of Excellence.

Mrs. Meyer, who now has a career sales total of $4 million, was named to Quinlan and Tyson's President's Circle in 1973 for her outstanding achievements.

She and her husband, Wilfred, have two children, and live in Schaumburg.

Construction industry shows gains

The U.S. construction industry showed continued improvement during June, reports the F. W. Dodge Div. of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

Contracts for future construction totaled $9.3 billion during June. The figure is 13 per cent gain from the June, 1974 level, the Dodge report said.

Most key areas of construction remained stable or increased during June. The Dodge Index of total construction indicates a 29 per cent increase in construction activity during the second quarter of 1975 compared to first quarter results.

"But more importantly, it marked the end to a six-quarter decline in the construction contract total," the report said. The nonbuilding sector of the construction industry — public works and utilities — led the recovery.

Contracting for highways and sewers showed a substantial increase during the past three months, the Dodge report said. The nonbuilding contracts amounted to $3 billion in June. For the first half of 1975, the contracts for highways and sewers reached $14.1 billion, a 24 per cent increase above the comparable period in 1974.

Residential construction contracts totaled $3.1 billion during June. The total is a 9 per cent decline from figures a year earlier. Single-family housing surpassed the year-ago level, although apartment construction declined about 50 per cent for the period.

June contracts for nonresidential building amounted to $3.2 billion, a 10 per cent increase above year-earlier figures. Gains in contracts for hospitals, schools and public buildings are reported.

Two appointments made

Don L. Dize, president of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago (HBAGC) has announced the appointment of Theo. C. "Ted" Doufexis as executive vice president.

The association serves the eight county area of northeastern Illinois and is the local affiliate of the National Association of Home Builders. It numbers over 900 members through its six area chapters.

Serving with Doufexis, as associate executive vice president, will be Herschel J. Farr. Prior to joining the association in 1973, Farr had served as executive director to the Insulation Contractors Association. Previous to that time he was Director of Technical Services for the Builders Association of Chicago.

Doufexis, a 23 year veteran of the homebuilding industry, has served as executive vice president of the Residential Construction Employers Council since 1967. That body serves as labor representative for the residential construction section in the eight county area.

The best things in life start at $215 a month.

These days the best things in life are hard to come by, at any price. So an apartment that includes most of them for as little as $215 a month has to be on your list.

At Country Lane we've put together all the little pleasures of apartment life at a price we feel is easy to live with. Each of the 11 floor plans include wall-to-wall carpeting, central air & heat, ceramic bath, a balcony, a kitchen with dishwasher, disposal, self-cleaning oven and double-door refrigerator. And every 5-story building is equipped with an elevator, laundry room, party room with wet bar and a security intercom system.

But frankly, one of the best things we offer is something nobody can put a price on. Country quiet. And it's all around us.

Developer retains tax expert

A leading Chicago housing developer has come up with a new wrinkle that should take the mystery out of the 1975 tax rebate plan for buyers of qualified new homes.

United Development Company, a subsidiary of Urban Investment and Development Co., one of the Aetna Life & Casualty companies, has hired a professional tax preparation service to guarantee that buyers get the full credit they are entitled to.

The Guaranteed Income Tax Credit service is being offered by United to new home buyers at Village on the Lake, a condominium complex in Elk Grove Village, with extensive recreational facilities.

United has retained E. Mason, Inc., a tax preparation service with 13 Chicago-area locations, to prepare the 1975 federal income tax rebate for buyers. The preparation fee will be paid by United.

Robert Frommer, president of United, said the incentive plan was created both to provide buyers the assurance that they will receive the full benefit of the special legislation which provides a tax rebate of five per cent up to $2,000 on qualified new homes purchased this year.

"Filing a tax return without any such special considerations can be confusing enough," notes Frommer. "Add the procedure for claiming the tax rebate and it's certainly more than possible that many homebuyers will miss the full benefit of this legislation. Our tax consultant will prevent that from happening."

Village on the Lake has three two-

RICE: the world traveler

Looking for ways to save money in all aspects of our living is new to some of us. But in a world that has not always known affluence, scrimping and saving have been a way of life. This is evident in the cuisines of many nations. And what's so interesting is that this "economy" food tastes so good! We aren't even aware that the recipes were developed to stretch and make the most of "precious" foods like meat.

Every Oriental main dish begins with rice, the original budget stretcher. Next there is something served in a delightfully flavored sauce.

The Greeks go about it in a little different way. It's still meat, vegetables (the ones popular in that country) and rice. But you get a whole new effect by cooking the rice in with the meat and vegetables. And so it goes, rice helping in many ways to make the week's food budget last for seven days — and with all of the romance associated with foods from foreign lands.

PILAF A LA GRECQUE

| 2 tablespoons vegetable oil | 1/4 teaspoon pepper |
| 3 cups cold cooked rice | Soy sauce |

Saute pork, onions, and cabbage in oil until tender crisp. Add rice and pimientos with liquid. Cook only until heated. Make a well in the center of the rice and add the egg, stirring constantly. When egg is of soft scrambled consistency, start incorporating it into the rice-vegetable mixture. Add seasonings. Serve immediately with soy sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Hand-me-down recipes favored by local cook

by LOIS SEILER

Everyone's favorite is the high, light and handsome German Sweet Chocolate Cake baked by Pat Mollsen of Mount Prospect. Long enjoyed by her husband, the cake recipe is one acquired by Pat from Dr. Mollsen's mother and it is now requested by all the Mollsen children for their birthdays.

Regal in appearance, this three-layer cake is delicately chocolate flavored, with a white filling and frosting that is creamier than whipped cream. A thin layer of raspberry preserves spread between the layers adds just the right tang. The cake must be chilled until serving, and can be made a day ahead, if desired.

Baking has long been Pat's favorite hobby, and she candidly admits she's not bashful about asking friends for recipes. She requested a cookie recipe from an Amish lady because it had been a favorite of her husband's since childhood days. While Lizzie had always baked them on a wood-burning stove and never measured the ingredients, she explained her method and Pat and Clifford worked at duplicating the cookies with successful results.

THE COOKIES RISE and spread while baking, becoming quite large. Not too sweet, they are soft and cake-like in texture with an appealing flavor and taste delicious hot from the oven.

Another of Pat's specialties is a cream cheese pie which she learned to make from her mother. "For years mother thought she had a tremendous secret recipe, until Sara Lee came out with a pie that tasted almost identical," Pat chuckled.

Happy with all their mother's baked delicacies are Tam, 11, Katherine, 9, Dan, 8, Beth, 4, and baby Michael, 2. In addition to cooking, Pat enjoys all sports and craft work and will be a Bluebird leader in fall.

Rice differences count

Rice comes in various forms. It is important to know the differences if your rice dish is to be a success.

The amount of water required to cook rice varies with the age of the grain. For the first six weeks after harvest, eight cups of water and eight cups of rice are the proper proportions. The amount of water then rises steadily. When the rice is 11 months old, eight cups of rice need 10 cups of water.

There are also differences in the types of rice. Brown rice, which retains its bran coat and germ, is much slower to tenderize, although more valuable nutritionally, than highly polished rice.

AND GRAIN hybrids also vary. Short or medium grain types should be used in recipes calling for sauces, rings, croquettes and puddings because they cook up tender and moist. Long-grain types are best for salads, soups and main dishes where each grain should be tender and fluffy.

Pre-processed (or converted) rice are also on the market today — follow the directions carefully.

Wild-rice is not true rice but seeds from a strictly American plant. Wild rice should not be substituted for regular rice in recipes.

RICE CAN be kept white in hard water by adding one teaspoon lemon juice or one tablespoon vinegar to the cooking water.

One cup raw rice equals three cups when cooked. One cup brown rice yields three to four cups cooked rice. If preprocessed rice is used, the volume will be less (about one to two cups cooked for one cup uncooked). This is also true for browned rice.

Rice is a good source of iron, thiamine and niacin.

Jewish New Year

Honey ushers in a sweet future

Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, is a religious holiday devoted to prayer and serious thought about the deeds of the past and plans for bettering the future.

With the holiday, celebrated this year on Sept. 6, come several traditional Jewish foods specifically associated with the New Year dinner. And each dish has certain symbolic meanings.

According to the Code of Jewish Law, fish denotes fruitfulness and plenty. The sweet flavor of many Jewish fish dishes began in ancient times when fish was transported in honey to preserve it.

Turkish Jews served the head of a fish to the head of the house as a symbol of leadership and wisdom and also as the symbol of the New Year. Sheep's head is symbolic for Jews from other countries and calf's head is traditional for Eastern Jews.

The sweetness of the New Year is symbolized by dipping slices of challah (the basic Jewish bread) or apple in honey.

THE TRADITIONAL meals include gefilte fish, meat or poultry, tzimmes or carrot pudding (as a wish for prosperity), and end with a sweet such as teiglach or honey cake.

No bitter or sour foods are served because these traits are not desired in the New Year.

Though challah is basic in the diet, at the New Year the bread is baked in a round shape as a wish for life without end and for a complete year with no interruption. Often these loaves are decorated with birds or ladders to provide a means for wishes and prayers to reach the heavens.

Here are several New Year recipes obtained from Volume I and Volume II of the cookbooks put out by Gallia Chapter of the America Mizrahi Women. The cookbooks can be purchased for $3.50 each from Eva Geritzfeld, 6600 N. Francisco, Chicago 60645.

GEFILTE FISH

5 pounds fish (trout and whitefish or pike)
3 large onions, sliced
3 eggs
3 large carrots, sliced
Cold water
Salt to taste
(about 5 teaspoons)
Pepper to taste
Fillet fish, saving skin and bones.

Put the flesh and one large onion through a food grinder, then place in a wooden chopping bowl and chop until smooth. Add eggs, 4 teaspoons salt, pepper and enough cold water to make a light, soft mixture. Place fish, bones and skin on the bottom of a deep heavy kettle. Add remaining salt, onion and carrots. Form oval cakes of the fish mixture and place in kettle with enough cold water to cover. Cover pot and bring to a quick boil. Remove cover and cook at a slow boil 1½ to 2 hours. The liquid should be reduced by half. Allow fish to cool slightly before removing to retain the shape.

CARROT TZIMMES

1 pound fresh carrots, sliced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup light brown sugar
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons margarine
1 cup carrot liquid

Place carrots in pot; cover with water and cook 15 to 20 minutes or until tender. Remove carrots and let liquid cool. Melt 2 tablespoons margarine in a one-quart saucepan. Slowly add flour, stirring constantly, until flour is cooked. Add cooled carrot liquid to flour, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and coats the spoon. Add brown sugar. Mix and add honey and salt. Return sliced carrots to sauce and simmer until mixture is well blended (5 to 10 minutes).

4 eggs
4 teaspoons oil
4 teaspoons sugar

Flour to thicken

Raisins or nuts or both for filling

1 pound honey

8 to 10 ounces glass sugar.

Mix together eggs, oil and sugar; add flour until the mixture is very thick and does not stick to your hands. Break off one-inch size pieces and roll between the palms of your hands until the pieces are long and skinny like snakes. Add 1 or 2 pieces of the filling; twist the snake around the filling and fasten together so the filling is in the center. Do this to the entire mixture. Place each piece on wax paper coated with flour. Roll honey and sugar in a three-quart pot. Add the filled snakes and cook over medium heat until brown, stirring continuously with wooden spoon. Remove from the stove and add one glass cold water to stop the action. Remove the snakes from the honey and place on wax paper to drain. Wrap in tin foil; do not refrigerate. Makes about 150 Teiglach. (Do not boil the honey until the snakes are ready to be put in it or the honey will burn.)

HONEY CAKE

1½ cups honey
1 cup strong coffee
2 tablespoons brandy

¾ cups flour (unsifted)
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ cup almonds, chopped
½ cup raisins, chopped
1 tablespoon lemon rind, grated
4 eggs
1 cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
1 tablespoon vegetable oil

Grease a 10-inch tube pan. Heat honey and coffee to boiling in a medium sized saucepan. Cool completely. Stir in the brandy, sift flour, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, cloves, ginger and nutmeg onto waxed paper; add almonds, raisins and lemon rind.

Beat egg slightly in a large bowl; add honey mixture, sugar mixture and beat until batter is smooth. Pour batter into a prepared pan. Bake in a slow (300 degree) oven 1½ hours or until the center springs back when slightly pressed with your fingertip. Cool in a pan on a wire rack for 10 minutes; loosen around the edges and the tube with a small spatula. Turn out onto wire rack to cool completely.

Chicken rids its Sunday image

The chicken industry of America, seeking to rid itself of the "over on Sunday" tradition, has been seeking more sophisticated methods of cooking fowl as well as solving the quick meal preparation so prevalent in many homes.

This recipe by George Holley, Delaware public relations and advertising executive, won him $10,000 in a national cook-off contest in Little Rock, Ark. It took just 50 minutes to prepare.

Bone and skin 2 large chicken breasts and cut into pieces 2x4½ inches. Sprinkle chicken pieces with ½ teaspoon pepper and 1½ teaspoons

by Charles Flynn

monosodium glutamate. Put ½ cup corn oil into a 10-inch frying pan. Heat over medium flame, then add chicken and saute until pieces are white and opaque (about 6 minutes).

Remove from pan and drain on paper toweling.

COOK 2 PACKAGES (10-ounce) of frozen asparagus according to package directions (4 to 5 minutes). Drain. Line the bottom of a 9x9x2 baking pan with the asparagus. Top with sauteed chicken pieces. Mix together 1 can condensed cream of chicken soup (undiluted), ½ cup mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, and ½ teas. curry powder. Pour this over chicken and asparagus. Sprinkle the top with 1 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese. Cover pan with aluminum foil and bake in pre-heated 375-degree oven for 30 minutes. Serves 4.

Acorn squash are plentiful at this time of year, so try this interesting recipe. Wash 2 medium squash and cut in half. Remove seeds. Place the squash cut side down in a shallow baking pan and cover bottom with water. Bake at 400 degrees for about 50 minutes or until squash are tender. Turn squash.

Mix together 1 cup unsweetened applesauce and 4 teaspoons brown sugar. Fill squash cavities with this mixture. Dot with butter or margarine (4 teaspoons) and sprinkle with cinnamon. Continue baking until applesauce is bubbly, about 15 to 20 minutes. Serves 4.

Fruit pot becomes tasty gift

A gourmet gift which is as fun to make and give away as it is to receive is the German Asbach Frucht-Topf or Pot of Branded Fruit.

A wide variety of fresh, frozen and canned fruits can be used in the Frucht-Topf. Earthenware or ceramic crocks, glass apothecary jars or any other covered container not of metal or plastic will work. The fruit is layered with sugar, and brandy is poured over all. As the branded fruit is used, more fruit and sugar are added from time to time to keep the pot full.

Branded fruit is delicious served as is, or chilled, over cake, vanilla ice cream, ladyfingers, vanilla pudding. The juice can be added to tea and punches, or soaked into babas or a savarin.

POT OF BRANDIED FRUIT (ASBACH FRUCHT-TOPF)

1 pint strawberries, hulled
4 peaches, peeled, pitted and sliced
6 apricots, halved and pitted
½ pound Bing cherries, stemmed
1 small pineapple, cut into 1 inch cubes sugar

2 cups Asbach brandy
Place strawberries in a large glass or earthenware crock. Sprinkle lightly with sugar. Continue layering fruit with sugar. Pour over Asbach until all fruit is covered. Press fruit down under Asbach. Cover and let stand at room temperature for 2 to 3 days. The "top" or pot of fruit is a revolving fund of branded fruit to which you can add any pieces of fresh, frozen or canned fruit from time to time. Add fruit, sprinkle with sugar and cover with more Asbach. This mixture gets better as it ages and more interesting as various kinds of fruit are added to the pot. Makes about 2 quarts.

Blueberry relish

The North American Blueberry Council recommends this recipe for Spiced Blueberry Relish: Empty two cans (14 ounces each) of blueberries (or an equal amount of frozen blueberries) into a large saucepan. Add one peeled and sliced apple, ½ cup sugar, one whole cinnamon stick and one teaspoon whole cloves. Bring to a boil, reduce the heat and simmer for three minutes.

Add four teaspoons lemon juice, two teaspoons vinegar and 1½ teaspoons aromatic biters. Stir carefully just to mix. Remove from heat and let cool. Pour through a large strainer to drain off the juice. Remove cinnamon and cloves.

Chill the blueberry-apple mixture and serve as a relish. Makes 1½ cups.

Bananas for after school lunches

September's arrival is just around the corner, bringing with it the start of another school year. Before long, hungry after-schoolers will be raiding refrigerators and kitchen cupboards looking for afternoon treats.

Food co-ops can work for retirees

Food co-ops can help retirees on fixed incomes solve budget problems, says Art Danforth, secretary-treasurer of the Cooperative League of the USA.

Until now, co-ops' most enthusiastic supporters generally have been young people, for obvious reasons. Many have large families and or low incomes. Presumably they also have the strength and stamina to cope with co-op pickup and distribution chores. This is one area in which retired persons might need help.

Harry Leichter, organizer of the Dole City, Va., Food Buyers Association, suggests turning to able-bodied neighbors, including teenagers, for aid in transporting and distributing heavy cases of food.

A food co-op consists of a group, usually about 15 to 20 families, who get together to buy food in bulk at wholesale prices. Members are responsible for picking up, sorting, weighing, packaging or bagging where necessary, and distributing the food.

PAYMENT generally is required in cash in advance. A lot of time and hard work is involved, said Leichter in an article in the AARP News Bulletin, a publication of the American Association of Retired Persons.

Many co-op members say the effort pays off in substantial savings and better quality food than they are accustomed to buying at retail stores.

Leichter says 20 families is the ideal number for a neighborhood co-op, although the larger the group, the lower the prices.

He also advises:

• Decide what you want to order, then shop wholesalers for the best prices.

• Be prepared to borrow or lease a truck if none of your members has a vehicle suitable for bulk pickups and delivery to a distribution center where each family must claim his purchases and pay for them.

Churches, community centers, schools or even the garage or basement of a member's home are possibilities for rent-free distribution centers.

Retirees with business experience would be good choices as coordinators and bookkeeper-treasurers.

Volunteers also should be recruited to take orders, distribute food and keep records.

TO COVER operating expenses, establish an annual membership fee that may be as low as $4 a family. A co-op needs money for phone calls, scales, mimeograph supplies, gas, possible legal fees and truck rental fee if you cannot borrow a delivery vehicle.

The first step, though, should be a check with your state tax office to determine what permits and licenses are required, and whether a sales tax or taxes must be collected.

Frosty fish

Plan the defrosting of frozen fish so that it will be cooked soon after it has thawed. It should not be held longer than a day before cooking.

Allow 18 to 24 hours in the refrigerator to thaw a one-pound package of frozen fish.

Frozen fish fillets and steaks can be cooked without thawing if additional cooking time is allowed, unless they are going to be breaded or stuffed. In such cases, the fish should be defrosted.

Buying a freezer?

Most families base their decision on a freezer purchase on the space and money available and the family's needs. The USDA says a compact may be the best value for a one or two-person household. Larger families need about three cubic feet per family member, or six cubic feet if large quantities of frozen food are bought regularly.

All too often, though, after-school snacks are nutritional disasters, containing only empty calories. While snacks should be nutritious, they can also be fun. Peter Bananas are good nutrition and fun on a stick.

Bananas, impaled on wooden sticks, are dipped into a creamy blend of peanut butter, honey and chocolate, and then rolled in chopped nuts for crunch. Peter Bananas freeze well so they're easy to keep on hand for any number of snackers.

PETER BANANAS

½ cup peanut butter
4 small bananas

Wooden sticks
1/3 cup honey
6 ounce package semi-sweet chocolate pieces
¼ cup milk
Chopped nuts

Impale peeled bananas on wooden sticks. Chill in refrigerator 1 hour or more. To make sauce, combine honey and chocolate pieces in a saucepan. Place over low heat. Stir and cook until mixture comes to a boil and is smooth in consistency. Stir in milk. Dip chilled bananas in mixture to coat. Roll in chopped nuts. Place on flat tray. Freeze. Makes 4 servings.

FRENCH TOASTED TUNA SANDWICH

Tuna for breakfast?

Eventually even the kids grow tired of their favorite cold cereal for breakfast and are ready to try something a little different.

Fish and shellfish, though often thought of in lunch or dinner dishes, are easy to prepare, good to eat and contribute lots of protein to breakfast menus, too.

French Toasted Tuna Sandwiches make an unusual and nourishing breakfast or brunch dish the whole family will enjoy.

The tuna mixture can be made the night before and refrigerated to save time. In the morning, the sandwiches are quickly assembled, dipped into an egg mixture and fried until golden brown. Tart-sweet applesauce is a flavorful accompaniment.

FRENCH TOASTED TUNA SANDWICHES

- 1 can (9 1/2 oz.) tuna, drained
- 1/2 cup finely chopped celery
- 1/2 cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
- 2 tbsp. chopped green pepper
- 2 tbsp. chopped pimiento
- 1 tsp. grated orange or lemon rind (optional)
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 12 slices white bread

Saving savvy

One way of saving sugar: follow the European custom of using sugar instead of frosting on cake. Sift confectioners' sugar through a dolly to make a pattern on the top.

Save money by serving a vegetable casserole with cheese sauce occasionally instead of a more expensive meat and potatoes meal.

Milk switch

Calcium intake is likely to drop during the summer when many people switch to soft drinks, replacing some or all of the milk they usually consume. Milk and products made from it make up the body's main sources of calcium, a mineral necessary to a well balanced daily diet.

Fat-proofing your children . . .

by GAYNOR MADDOX

Fat-proofing their children against becoming fat adults is a job all parents must undertake. In the last few years we have discovered that fat adults learned to be fat when they were children.

"Today we know that the only way to prevent the inevitable psychological, physical and social problems of overweight that can blight your children's lives is never to let them get fat in the first place," comments Alvin Eden, M.D., a professor of pediatrics at New York University School of Medicine and director of pediatrics at a Brooklyn hospital.

Which children are destined to grow up fat? He answers: An infant who is overfed with milk. The baby who is fed solid foods much too early. The toddler who is incarcerated in a playpen or a stroller or is bribed with cookies to finish his lunch. The preschooler who is encouraged to watch TV to give his mother some peace and quiet. The school-age child who is driven to and from school. The adolescent who actually becomes malnourished because he seldom eats with the family. He never walks when he can sit and never runs when he can walk.

A THIN CHILD almost always grows up to be a thin adult. A fat child almost always grows up to be a fat adult.

"So don't tell your child to finish everything on his plate. He may not be hungry, he may not need it. By forcing him to eat you may be starting him on the path of putting on extra weight," Dr. Eden states in his new book, "Growing Up Thin" (McKay, $7.95). He quotes leading nutritionists and pediatricians, all of whom agree that fat is not beautiful, that it may be a physical handicap and a social hindrance.

"What a lovely thin baby," he says, "should become the modern form of praise. But so many mothers still think fatness, not normal leanness, is the sign of health." "A nice fat little baby" — we must disabuse parents' minds of that unfortunate cliché. Leanness, not fatness that will probably last throughout the infant's life must become the new understanding.

HE SUGGESTS no special diets, no

crank diets, nothing harsh or painful, and humane attitude practiced with love. The infant or the toddler knows how much food he actually wants. Mother's fear that he will starve is silly and dangerous. He won't starve, Dr. Eden reminds.

He also points out that even infants need exercise to prevent getting overweight. As toddlers, they need to stretch their arms and legs, climbing and striving to walk, to discover their own strength. School children need to walk to school, if possible, to play games and to do errands. These activities will help keep their weight normal.

They need to cut down on so-called junk foods, too, because these are mostly sugar and carbohydrates and fairly, useless nutritionally. Children grow fat nibbling, remember.

"Growing Up Thin" is an important book for parents. It will startle many parents who think fatness in an infant is a sign of God's favor. It is not, according to doctors and nutritionists. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Herd's up

World cattle numbers have increased about nine per cent and hog numbers about 12 per cent over the past five years. So, why do meat department prices keep rising?

For one thing, the poor feed corn crop in 1974 led to a four per cent decrease in the total production of red meat and poultry in the United States for the first six months of this year compared with the same period last year, says the American Meat Institute. In addition, meat consumption is increasing in Europe and other parts of the world as living standards improve.

Debunking some middle age myths

by GAY PAULEY

Middle age has become a dirty word in America, where youth is exalted and the aged neglected.

But now, some researchers are re-defining that period between being young and being old. They're finding that for many, middle age is a blessing, not a bugaboo, a period to be coveted, not cursed.

"The most optimistic thing to me is that I'm hearing that this group is turning on," said Dr. Richard Kerckhoff, president of the National Council on Family Relations. "They're avoiding the dullness trap and making it a period of re-enrichment."

"I think middle age is being recognized as a time in which thousands are seeing all kinds of advantages, including their marriages, for a satisfying way of life."

KERCKHOFF, professor of child development and family life at Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., spoke on middle-age during a recent conference of the council in Salt Lake City. He enlarged on some of the points during a telephone interview.

The council is a forum for those who have interest in family relationships, whether they are educators, researchers or activists.

Middle age is difficult to define, said Kerckhoff. Some researchers call it "the period between when the children leave home and the breadwinners leave their jobs."

But society is "badly confused" about ages and how to bracket them, he said. "For convenience sake, I'd say middle age is the period between 40 and 65. But some good researchers are starting at 30. That'll shake up a lot of people."

"And some people even say middle age begins at 80."

"What we need is a functional rather than a chronological definition."

Kerckhoff fits his own definition. He's 54, married, and the father of three grown children.

IN HIS EARLY research into middle age attitudes, including both fact and fiction, he said, he found many individuals "torn apart" by the early middle years — the demands of job, spouse and children.

"It's been pictured as a dull time, trivial, the guts gone," he said. "I was surprised at how many writers expressed this . . . the attitude of settling down and settled back. Nothing interesting left. Age just ahead."

"But I find the attitude is changing. Some researchers, getting down to the nitty gritty, found 50- and 60-year-olds who did not express the desire to be 20 again. They found life satisfying, were pleased with their marital relationships, although this flies in the face of such data as the rising divorce rate."

Reduced pressures can lead "not to marital bliss but to marital blahs," he said, "because if the marriage wasn't a good one in the early years, it might not make it through the middle ones."

"THE TIME CAN be a hell of a crisis when there's not much reason for continuing to be together."

State of mind is all important — some research shows an almost "overwhelming satisfaction" with life by the 50, 60 and 70 group, he said.

Whatever the goals are "completely personal." He noted that for some, they were simple — marriage was answer enough.

But for many, it's a time for further reassessment. Who am I? What is life all about? Where am I going?

Rather than viewing the middle years as a crisis, Kerckhoff said, they can offer a chance to grow. Couples can concentrate on one another, becoming good friends as well as marriage partners.

Disagreement on prepackaging

by BARBARA LADD

If two major food chains take opposite positions on whether customers do or do not prefer prepackaged produce, how are consumers to determine whether they are the leaders or the followers?

Both Eagle and Jewel stores have conducted consumer surveys on this question in the past with different results.

Eagle stores do not prepackage fresh produce because their survey indicated consumers were against the practice, according to a spokesman at Eagle headquarters in Rockford.

Jewel markets, on the other hand, do prepackage because, said Kathy Guld, consumer specialist, their survey showed customers favor it.

An informal survey by the Herald confirmed the Eagle findings. Of 50 customers questioned at random at Eagle and Jewel stores, 90 per cent said they dislike prepackaging.

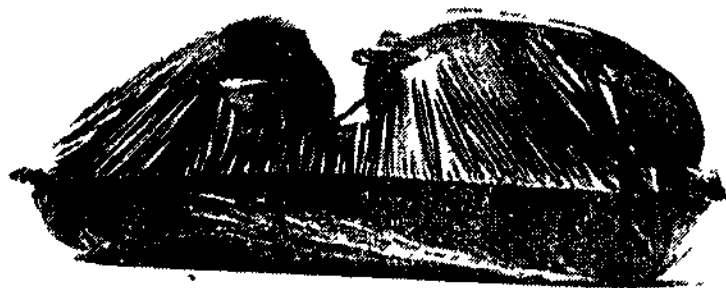

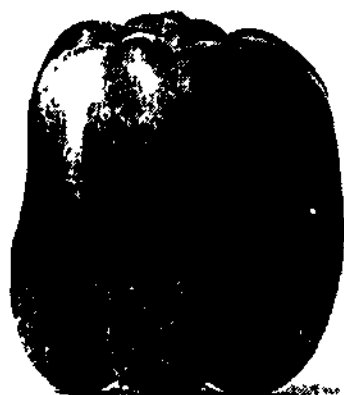

FURTHER SUPPORT of anti-packaging opinion has come from none other than another Jewel consumer representative, Jane Armstrong. In a speech at a food conference earlier this summer, she called for greater discrimination between what she said are "true consumer needs and demands with other motives." She mentioned specifically prepackaging.

At the same conference Nancy Steertz, U.S. Department of Agriculture consumer affairs director, said prepackaging of fresh produce "is most certainly not meeting consumer needs." Terming some of it "deceptive," she noted that rotten parts of fruit and vegetables may be hidden from the shopper's view.

Hiding of rotten parts was one of the reasons cited by those in the prepackaging survey who said they opposed the practice.

OTHERS MENTIONED frustration at not being able to buy the exact quantity of produce they desired. A few thought prices are higher for prepackaged fruits and vegetables. Two expressed the opinion that prepackaging is an environmental waste.

Two who said they prefer prepackaged produce could not say why.

Despite the negative reactions to prepackaging, there are advantages.

"Prepackaging is efficient for customers and for ourselves," said Bill Newby, Jewel spokesman. Customers don't have to wait in line at scales and stores don't have to hire people to stand at scales full-time weighing produce, he explained.

Larry Nauman, Dominick's representative, cited other advantages.

ONE IS THAT sanitation is improved by not letting consumers handle produce. Grimy, germ-laden hands don't have a chance to penetrate the wrappings.

"And we save about 20 per cent normally lost from handling," explained Nauman. The losses, he said, result from squeezing and bruising of fresh produce as customers try to pick "the best of the bunch" and from those cherries, grapes and other produce casually popped into the mouths of passing customers.

At least one of the 50 shoppers questioned by the Herald agreed:

"I like to pick my own produce," said Mrs. R. Larson, Arlington Heights, "but I think there's more spoilage when it's loose because people mess around with the fruits and vegetables. Maybe prepackaging is a way to get around this."

THERE IS STILL the matter of cost. In an article published two years ago the Washington Post stated that the cardboard tray and plastic film used to wrap one grapefruit cost six cents. No public studies have been made in the last 10 years that would substantiate the Post claim or give any other figures on prepackaging, but the Eagle spokesman said he felt the Post's figures could still apply. Cost of labor and handling today might even make it a little higher, he said.

Neither Jewel nor Dominick's representatives could give packaging cost figures.

Newby said Jewel began prepackaging more of its produce several years ago when Chicago passed an ordinance requiring all produce be priced by the pound. "The only way to buy is to prepackage," he said.

BUT SINCE THAT ordinance doesn't apply to the suburbs, both pound pricing and "piece" pricing exist here.

"Piece" pricing is the practice of selling items at one price, regardless of weight. For example, heads of lettuce, regardless of size, might sell for 45 cents a head.

Prepackaging of "piece" priced fruits and vegetables can result in shortchanging a consumer. For example, a package of oranges recently sold in an Arlington Heights market for 75 cents. But oranges vary in weight and so did the packages, ranging from one and three-quarters pounds to two and a quarter pounds.

Other examples: heads of lettuce at 39 cents a head weighed from one to two pounds and packages of sweet corn at 79 cents also varied by a pound.

FOR THE MOST PART, area stores try to package different amounts of the same type produce to meet the varying needs of the individual shopper. Sometimes, however, the consumer is stuck with an amount not wanted or needed.

Mrs. Steertz, the USDA consumer adviser, had counsel for such circumstances. At the June food conference she said, "If produce is prepackaged, break the package and buy only what you need."

Jewel and Dominick's representatives give the same advice to customers. In fact, said Jewel's Ms. Guld, Jewel stores periodically post signs stating that.

Plastic food wrapping ban proposed by FDA

Increasing evidence concerning the harmful effects of vinyl chloride plastics used to package food has prompted the Food and Drug Administration to act.

In the Sept. 3 issue of the Federal Register, the FDA proposed a ban on the use of vinyl chloride plastic in bottles, blister packs, boxes and other semi-rigid and rigid packaging that comes in contact with food. The proposal, published for public comment, would also prohibit vinyl chloride plastics in coatings applied to fresh citrus fruits.

Vinyl chloride, ordinarily a gas, has been shown to cause cancer when inhaled by humans and is suspected of having a similar potential when ingested.

It is the second most commonly used plastic in food packaging.

THE PROPOSED regulation would continue to permit vinyl chloride plastics in pliable film-type wraps, gaskets, cap liners, tubing and package coatings which come in contact with food. This is because the process in making these particular plastics greatly reduces the residual vinyl chloride.

However, in semi-rigid, rigid and generally heavier vinyl chloride plastics like bottles, the residue may migrate from the plastics into the food.

Sixty days will be allowed for public comment on the proposed regulations, now scheduled to become effective 30 days after final publication in the Federal Register. Comments may be filed with the Hearing Clerk, Food and Drug Administration, Room 4-65, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md. 20852.

Her garden goof funniest

A few weeks ago I invited gardeners to send in their hard-luck stories about this year's crop failure. Here is the winning gardener's Sob Story:

"Dear Mary B. Good,
The claim that I have a garden is the funniest thing I could write.

Way back in April, I planned on a garden to save money on our grocery bill. I dug up a patch of grass and turned over six inches of dirt, and it sure was hard work. In May, after a week of fussing, I spent five dollars on a book of gardening, seeds, plant food, gloves for me, a hoe, six tomato plants and four peppers. I knew I had a bargain in the plants, as they were large and healthy-looking.

I MAPPED THE planning: corn in the back; beans, chard — what is this? — carrots, radishes, lettuce, and cucumbers; tomatoes on one side, peppers on the other. I also planted some potato eyes. It took all morning of hard work, but by noon it looked like a picture in my $1 book.

That night, Mother Nature changed the rows around. It took six birds three minutes to eat the corn seed, and my cat less than that in time pulling out the cucumber seed. The radishes gave up when we had that June heat wave, and we went on vacation the first of July. I guess when I came home, I pulled out the lettuce and left some healthy weeds. I still had all my tomatoes and peppers and one potato plant.

SUNDAY, MY sister brought me 24 orange-size tomatoes and

by Mary B. Good

informed me that my potato plant was a weed. The peppers (I have a bushel) are HOT peppers and no one will eat them; and my zillion tomatoes are cherry tomatoes and will never ripen before frost.

Next year, I shall have a rock garden. I already threw some rocks there, getting a head start.

Enclosed are some of the peppers I don't know what to do with.

Sincerely,
Dell Marie Kneller
(Mrs. B.T.)
124 Stratton Ln.
Mount Prospect, Ill.

Well, Mrs. Kneller, you've got just about the worst luck, and hopefully you will appreciate the "Frost - Knocked-Out-My-Garden-and Boy - Am I - Glad" Award!

WE'RE SENDING you a couple pounds of potatoes with the plants still on them, so you can fool your friends (and your sister), and a "Living Stone" plant from Park Seed Co. is coming via the postman.

You're a good sport for sending in your Big Sob Story!

Yours in fun,
Mary B. Good
P.S. I don't like hot peppers either!

FUNDS RAISED at a Sept. 18 fashion luncheon sponsored by Northwest Community Hospital Auxiliary will help buy this heart monitoring equipment and two other systems for the hospital. Auxiliary president Ruth Crawford, standing, and Corky Crawford, lunch chairman, see how it works. Tickets for the "In the Pink" luncheon at Allgauer's Fire-side, Northbrook, are $10 and may be bought from Doris Jacobson, 381-5548. Les Waverly Trio will provide music; Cathi Watson will commentate with fashions from Comack-Shannon of Barrington.

Labels sticky business

Dear Dorothy: How do you remove labels from cooking pots? I bought several large pots and no amount of soaking or steel wool will completely eliminate the glue beneath the labels. Would you know a solution?—Mary C. Floyd

In days past these labels were applied with a casein glue which is water soluble, so soaking in water took off label and glue without a bit of trouble. The new technology employs different adhesives and one has to go down the list of solvents in the hope one of them will work. So if water doesn't soak it off, you go to a cleaning fluid. If that doesn't do it, you try rubbing alcohol or nail-polish remover. If you still have no luck, you move to lacquer thinner (observing the customary precautions).

Curiously, several readers have volunteered that they have had some success using the well-known detergent wax or letting salad dressing stay on the label until the glue softens.

Dear Dorothy: I have enjoyed your hints so much, I thought you might like one I've used. I was stuffing a teddy bear that I'd made with shredded foam and you know how it sticks or clings to your hand — coming back almost as fast as you put it in. I sprayed my hand with the fabric spray you use in dryers — and the foam stayed in the toy.—Mrs. Vella Lawson

Dear Dorothy: We love to rummage

Hairdressers' fashion show at Allgauer's

Tickets are still available at area beauty shops for Monday's fashion show luncheon sponsored by Northwest Suburban Chapter of the Illinois Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

The show, with fashions from Saks Fifth Avenue, will be held at Allgauer's Fireside in Northbrook. Area hairdressers will create the newest in hairdos for the models and Syd Simmons will be doing the makeup.

Portion choice experiment a success

A few restaurants around the country have begun to experiment with portion choices in response to the urging of U.S. Department of Agriculture consumer affairs director, Nancy Steorts.

Earlier this year Steorts pointed out to the National Restaurant Association that many consumers feel restaurant servings are much too large to finish eating, and they are concerned about the waste of food and the high cost.

As a result, the Marriott Camelback Inn in Scottsdale, Ariz., revised its menu to offer size selections in entrees along with appropriately adjusted prices. The restaurant's manager found the program so successful with consumers that he is revising the rest of the menu.

NOT ONLY was the experiment popular with customers, it enabled the restaurant to improve its profits by eliminating much waste and providing clearer guidelines for food purchasing and preparation, said manager Bill Bennett.

The initial choices, percentage of customer preference, and price were as follows:

Prime Rib: 10 oz. — 25% — $8.75; 8 oz. — 45% — $7.50; 6 oz. — 30% — $6.25.

New York Steak: 10 oz. — 30 — $9.25; 8 oz. — 48% — $7.75; 6 oz. — 22% — $6.25.

Shrimp: 6 shrimp — 35% — $7.50; 4 shrimp — 65% — $5.25.

Veal chops: 2 chops — 48% — $7.25; 1 chop — 52% — $5.00.

HOWEVER, CONTRAST this very progressive effort at Marriott Camelback Inn with the situation at the Hot Shoppes Restaurants — also owned by Marriott, and found in the East.

Media & Consumer magazine recently reported that a customer in a Hot Shoppe in Washington, D.C., ordered the breakfast special — hotcakes and eggs — but without the eggs.

The waitress informed the customer he couldn't have it without the eggs, whereupon the customer demanded to know why not, since he did not intend to eat the eggs and would save the restaurant some waste.

THE WAITRESS said she would check with the cook. When she returned, she told the customer the cook said it couldn't be done that way — and then she asked the customer how he would like his eggs!

Incidentally, the Marriott Lincolnshire here does not offer portion choices on its menu — other than a children's portion — and the manager of the dining room said he "hasn't heard anything about" the Scottsdale experiment or any company-wide move to adopt the policy.

Florida honeymoon for David Timms

A tour through Florida followed the wedding of Katherine Ann Suckow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Suckow, Des Plaines, and David Timm, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Timm, Chicago.

The candlelight, double ring ceremony took place at 5 p.m. in St. Stephen's Church, Des Plaines. A blue and white color scheme was featured.

Katherine chose a gown of sheer organza and a fingertip veil both trimmed in Alecon lace. She held a cascade of white roses and carnations accented in blue baby's breath and trailing ivy.

Her sister, Mrs. David Biddle, Anaheim, Calif., was the matron of honor. Leslie Novak, and Ellen Vane, both of Des Plaines, and Sue Timm, the groom's sister from Chicago, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of navy blue cotton sheer trimmed in white crochet.

KATHERINE'S 4-year-old cousins from Wauconda, Ill., Heather Nolan and Allison Warkenthen, were flower girls and wore white dresses and bonnets. They carried baskets filled with daisies and blue baby's breath.

Best man was Dann Ingebritson, Fayetteville, N.C. Also serving the groom were Bruce, his brother; Bruce McLain, Cleveland, Ohio, and Howard, Stephen and William Suckow, the bride's brothers.

A dinner and dance for 175 guests followed at the White Eagle, Niles.

by WANDALYN RICE

Two men were hospitalized Wednesday with suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

36-year-old Schaumburg resident was reported in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A 29-year-old from south-suburban Bollingbrook was listed in good condition and may be discharged within the next few days.

Hospital officials, who did not identify the men, said further tests are needed to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

Hospital officials said they do not know where the Schaumburg man contracted the disease. Most victims of the disease in Cook County have been residents of the southern suburbs.

OFFICIALS OF THE Illinois Dept. of Public Health said the two men's names were among 17 added Wednesday to the list of suspected or confirmed encephalitis cases. Ten of the new cases are in Cook County, but only one of them has been confirmed. The newly confirmed case is in Harvey. Other new cases were reported in Berwyn, Oak Lawn, Blue Island and Chicago.

The total number of cases reported statewide in the current outbreak is 107, with 73 in Cook County. A total of 21 cases, 10 in Cook County, has been confirmed. Blood tests running 10 days apart are required to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

In other developments in the epidemic, a team of seven specialists from the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., arrived in Chicago Wednesday to help state health officials look for the source of the disease.

The team will collect and classify birds and mosquitoes in an attempt to locate the disease source. Encephalitis is transmitted from birds to human beings through mosquito bites.

Dr. Mark Lepper, head of a state task force on the disease, said five areas in the state have been identified as centers of the disease.

The areas are:

- Bollingbrook, Park Forest South and the southern end of Will County.
- Peoria and Tazewell counties.
- Madison and St. Clair counties.
- Champaign and Macon counties.
- Wayne, Richland, Jefferson and Clay counties.

County mosquito abatement districts have stepped up their anti-mosquito programs. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows have scheduled additional mosquito-spraying programs.

Symptoms of the disease include headache, high fever and mental confusion. Most victims recover spontaneously, but in serious cases the disease can result in coma, brain damage and death.

Aldermen hedge again on parking, garage plans

Des Plaines officials again have refused to move ahead with plans for a police garage and parking deck to serve the Civic Center complex.

They have chosen instead to examine alternate plans.

City officials have debated the parking question for several years, but have failed to proceed with a plan. Several aldermen have said the city is in violation of a city ordinance because it does not provide enough parking spaces at the Civic Center.

In July, the city council voted to retain the architectural firm of Holmes and Fox, Des Plaines, to prepare detailed plans for an L-shaped garage and parking deck. However, aldermen refused Tuesday night to authorize bids on the project.

INSTEAD, OFFICIALS asked the architectural firm to prepare drawings on two scaled-down versions of the project.

The city council took the action after several aldermen raised objections to the estimated $500,000 cost of the facility. They said the 27-car police garage and 81 parking spaces do not justify the cost of the project.

Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, said he objects to the plan because the facility would provide only about 25 more parking spaces than other plans previously considered, and because the cost for each additional space would be $15,000 to $20,000.

Ald. George Olen, 2nd, said he, too, thinks the estimated cost of the project is excessive. "Paying $15,000 to $20,000 for the additional spaces would be a flagrant disrespect for the taxpayers of this city," he said.

Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, said he feels approving the facility at the projected cost would "probably be the worst mistake the city council ever made."

SEVERAL ALDERMEN, however, spoke out in favor of the deck and police garage, saying the facility is needed and should not be delayed.

"We're going to need this garage and deck, and we're going to need it very shortly," said Ald. John Leer, 3rd. "I don't think there is any alternative. We have to provide parking for the people using this building."

Leer, chairman of the public buildings, grounds and parking lots committee which recommended moving ahead with the project, said he disputes figures which indicate each additional space will cost $15,000 to $20,000.

Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, and Leer said if the city continues to delay the project, inflation will drive the cost of the parking deck and police garage above the $500,000 figure.

Dist. 59 rolls rise by 43

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 enrolled 43 more kindergarten students than anticipated, according to first day enrollment figures which showed 1,013 kindergartners.

Supt. Roger Bardwell presented the figures to the school board Tuesday, saying enrollment is not dropping as quickly as the district expected. Taking preregistration figures and census statistics, the district had projected that 970 kindergarten students would enroll this year. Last year 1,112 kindergarten students entered school.

The total first day enrollment figure for the district was 10,255 students, compared to 10,525 last year — a 2.6 per cent decrease. Bardwell said about 350 students usually register in the district during the first month of school. He said the total enrollment picture is encouraging even though the district is down 270 students from last year's first day enrollment figures. The district had anticipated enrolling 300 fewer students, he explained.

HE SAID HIGHER enrollment figures will change the five-year enrollment projections presented to the board in July.

Those projections, compiled from a spring census of preschoolers and current enrollment figures in the district, show the administration anticipates a 33 per cent decline in enrollment by the 1979-80 school year. The figures predicted enrollment would drop from last year's 10,899 students to 7,279 students in 1979-80.

Bardwell said a breakdown between Kindergarten rolls up 57 in Dist. 62

Kindergarten enrollment in Des Plaines Dist. 62 increased by 57 students this year, with 637 kindergartners enrolled on the first day of school compared to 580 last year.

Robert Reinke, assistant to the superintendent, said "It's sort of a one-shot deal. It will go down again next year." He said statistics from the local census and hospitals show that this year's kindergarten enrollment increase is a one-year shift in the continuing trend of declining enrollment in the district.

Total enrollment in the district dropped this year to 5,897 students, compared to last year's 6,174 students on the first day, a 4.5 per cent decrease. Reinke said a comparison of enrollment figures by grades will not be available until later this fall, but enrollment is higher in the upper grades.

elementary and junior high schools shows enrollment dropped by 407 students in kindergarten through grade 5, and increased by 137 students in grades 6-8.

The district also has 11 more special education students enrolled this year, with a total of 93 students in special education programs.

IDYLL NIPPER has been honored in Des Plaines, after her. Miss Nipper has been involved in Dist. 26 for some 20 years and helped select the site for the school.

Schools name new facility after Nipper

by MARILYN McDONALD

River Trails Dist. 26's new school at Maryville Academy will be called Idyll Nipper School.

But the final school board vote on the name was delayed for an hour Tuesday night while community members and teachers argued for more time to submit other suggestions.

Board members had given tentative approval to the school's name at its August meeting, but delayed a final vote, because they could not then reach Miss Nipper for her approval.

After discussion Tuesday night, board members voted 5-2 to decide the school's name. Frank Smith and Lloyd Demel voted to extend the deadline for suggesting names. The board then unanimously approved Miss Nipper's name for the school.

MISS NIPPER, a Mount Prospect resident, has been active in the school district since its beginnings in a one-room schoolhouse. She was instrumental in selecting the site of the new Maryville school, which in March will replace the present River Road School.

River Road School serves nearly 100 Maryville Academy residents who need special attention not available in other Dist. 26 schools.

Ronald Cassidy, 708 E. Cedar Ln., Mount Prospect, presented a petition Tuesday with some 200 signatures supporting the name of the late fourth district state Rep. Robert S. Juckett, for the new school. Juckett was instrumental in obtaining full state funding for the Maryville school.

A number of River Road teachers also attended Tuesday's meeting to protest that students' wishes were not being considered in naming their school.

"The school was built for children at Maryville. For it to have any meaning to them, the name must be something they can relate to," said John Myers, a crisis counselor at River Road.

MYERS SAID MOST of River Road School's pupils are black or Chicano, and are from the West side of Chicago. They have "little to do with middle-class white suburbia," he said.

"It was never my feeling that one of those children could ever come back here if Maryville closed," said Jeremiah Lynch, another River Road teacher. "They come from different races, different homes, different men-

by LUISA GINNETH

A single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a soybean field in Wheeling Township Wednesday shortly after takeoff from Palwaukee Airport, killing both persons aboard.

Killed in the crash were Eugene McDaniel, 11010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo. The county coroner's office said it had not determined which victim was the pilot.

Jack Harrington, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the cause of the crash had not been determined. A witness to the crash said the four-passenger private plane made what appeared to be a normal takeoff at 2:49 p.m., turned left and then nosed up and crashed in the field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling Township, Harrington said.

Harrington said the plane made no contact with the Palwaukee tower before the crash, but investigators believe the plane's engine stalled. Weather conditions were apparently not a factor in the crash, officials indicated.

The witness, whose helicopter was on an instructional flight at the time, landed next to the downed plane, and the pilot dragged one of the victims about 10 feet from the plane, County Sheriff's police said. Shortly after the victim was removed from the wreckage, the smoldering plane burst in flames, officials said.

OFFICIALS AT THE scene said both men apparently were killed instantly in the crash. One man was burned beyond recognition, and the other was mutilated severely, officials said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration, the state police, the coroner's office and the county Sheriff's office were on the scene for nearly three hours before the bodies were removed.

Harrington said he did not know the plane's destination, but an official at Palwaukee said the plane was not based at the airport and had only landed a short time before.

The plane had taken off from Dacy Airport in Harvard, Ill., about 40 miles northwest of Wheeling, officials there said. A Dacy airport spokesman said the plane took off from Dacy about 1 p.m. for Palwaukee on an apparent business trip. He added the plane probably was returning to Dacy when it crashed.

The spokesman said McDaniel and Medlinger were friends, and McDaniel was a flying instructor.

Wheeling Fire Dept. trucks were among the first rescue units on the scene and extinguished the fire. Paramedics also were on the scene but left shortly after the victims were pronounced dead.

Sliding-price schedule OK'd
for milk sales

River Trails Dist. 26 students may be paying different prices for milk each month this year as a result of a sliding-price schedule adopted by the school board Tuesday night.

The sliding scale was adopted to meet federal requirements for milk reimbursement, said Ralph Beaudoin, Dist. 26 business manager. The price could vary between 2 and 7 cents per half pint, but probably will vary between 3 and 5 cents, Beaudoin said.

The price will be determined each month according to the selling price set by Modern Dairy, Elgin, the district's milk supplier. Beaudoin will send a letter to each school advising them of the new price, and they will in turn publicize the price in their newsletters.

Some board members suggested setting a median price for milk, saving any profits to cover months when the price may go above the median. But Beaudoin said school districts are prohibited from making a profit on milk sales or school lunches.

Test schedule changed

Board members voted to change the district's achievement testing schedule this year in order to provide ability testing as well.

The district previously gave SRA achievement tests in grades two through eight, said Alan Levin, district curriculum director. In order to spend the district's testing budget of $2,480 most effectively, board members accepted an administrative recommendation to give SRA achievement and ability tests in grades one, three, five and seven.

The SRA testing program will cost the district $1,500 this year, said Peggy Golden, board member. The remaining testing budget probably will be used for the investigation of new testing systems and teacher training to administer the tests, she said.

The district also is piloting the Wisconsin Design in Reading testing program in Indian Grove and Bond Schools this year.

Rosen replaces Sheyker

Leora Rosen was elected president of the school board Tuesday, replacing Michael Sheyker in that post.

Sheyker resigned Aug. 15 for business and personal reasons. His seat on the board was filled by the appointment of Peggy Golden.

Frank Smith was elected secretary of the board, replacing Mrs. Rosen.

Policy changes OK'd

Policies governing bus transportation and use of school name and premises were approved by the Dist. 26 school board Tuesday. Changes approved are:

- Bus transportation for children choosing to attend a district school out of their neighborhood. Instead of saying transportation will be provided "only if" needed arrangements can be made, the policy reads "providing that" needed arrangements can be made. The change in the wording is designed to be more flexible.

- Unauthorized use of school name and premises. This policy prevents school personnel from using the name of the school or school district in connection with any trip or tour they may be involved in on their own. The policy also prevents them from soliciting for trip participants on school grounds. Failure to follow this policy could result in dismissal.

Book vote tabled

Board members briefly considered the idea of holding a referendum to incorporate book fees into the general tax rate but tabled the idea for further discussion at a later meeting.

The idea of such a "free textbook" referendum was raised by Harold Goldman, 1820 Bittersweet Ln., Mount Prospect, a district parent. Goldman said he and several other district parents were irritated at having to pay school taxes and up to $11 per child for books each year.

Board members instructed administrators to prepare their suggestions on the idea for discussion in two months.

Administrators also will present information on possible referendums to raise the education and building fund rates at that time. The district faces a $166,000 deficit this year, mainly caused by expenditures in those areas.

'Radical', 'company' unions court police

by STIRLING MORITA

Two members of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Combined Counties Police Assn. is a bit radical.

To John Flood, CCPA president, the FOP is too much like a "company" union — too much a part of the establishment.

Some members of the local FOP chapters have indicated they worry about the reputation of police when they hear of job actions by their brethren. They are quick to point out, when seeking collective bargaining rights, the FOP has a no-strike philosophy.

Flood, CCPA founder, compares his union to a Rolls-Royce and the FOP to a Volkswagen when it comes to police-labor relations. Flood says when a policeman has ridden in the luxury car, he never wants to go back to the "bug."

"SURE, I'M A radical," Flood says. "We're a controversial organization, because we're an action organization."

Joseph Vertuno, president of the state FOP lodge, explains, "Sometimes, you can catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

Of 10 police departments in the Northwest suburbs, those in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg are members of FOP while those in Wheeling, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect are in the CCPA fold. Palatine, formerly CCPA-oriented, does not acknowledge either union.

A move by several members of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept. to start a CCPA chapter more than three years ago was blunted when controversy broke out among the police chief, mayor, aldermen and some policemen.

The two organizations are the only ones available locally to police. In Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, FOP chapters are seeking official recognition from village officials.

FOP CHAPTER presidents emphasize they joined the organization because it is a fraternal order.

Sgt. Charles Poolien, president of the Rolling Meadows FOP chapter, says "As far as we're concerned, it's (FOP) more of a professional organization. We've heard nothing good about CCPA. It (FOP) is more professional in the way it's run. They don't have a bunch of radicals ready to storm the establishment."

Patrolman Richard Akerman, Hoffman Estates, FOP lodge president, said, "We're a fraternal organization — nationwide. We don't believe in striking on negotiations and endangering the safety of the public."

An officer in the Schaumburg FOP lodge, Patrolman James Kuzel, explained, "We have a two-fold commitment to the man in blue and to the people he serves as well. We're a community-minded organization."

Flood points out CCPA also is involved in community activities, such as sponsoring sports teams or contributing to charities, but such controversial actions as this year's uniform strike in Skokie grab headlines.

FLOOD STARTED the union in 1969 while serving on the Wheeling Police Dept. "because we needed a voice," he said he went to the FOP, and "they didn't give us anything."

Municipal administrators are more afraid of CCPA, Flood noted. "Police, by and large, are scared to organize. They're scared to come to us, and that their administrators won't like it."

Some policemen have wanted to meet secretly with CCPA officials in forest preserves, he added. "They (administrators) know we're a strong organization. We have a militant reputation because we stood up and fought. We're not beggars," he said.

"There are two things working against us — fear and lack of knowledge on the policeman's part about negotiations," Flood said.

Flood said he would not advocate a police strike in a major city like Chicago. He said all the fears about chaos resulting from a strike are generated by politicians.

IN A SUBURB, supervisory personnel and Sheriff's police could combine to put more men on the street than before the strike, he said.

"We don't like to strike. We don't like job action, but what do you do when they say no to collective bargaining?" Flood added.

He noted CCPA's reputation has gained invitations for union officials to lecture about police-labor relations to university and International Assn. of Chiefs of Police forums.

"We're the only true functioning (police) organization in the State of Illinois. We have the economics, the staff, the expertise and the experience to negotiate for police departments," Flood said.

Vertuno said the FOP is more acceptable to municipal officials because they would rather deal with "their own people."

"It's just a matter of getting them to sit down and talk to us and get what we're looking for," Vertuno said.

STATE FOP officials have entered negotiations when both municipal officials and policemen reach an impasse. "I can be militant when I want, but I was justified on each action," Vertuno said.

He explained the solution to salary negotiations depends not on the right to strike, but on "compulsory, binding arbitration." Vertuno noted some of the departments have gotten what they wanted without a strike. So far, 35 of the more than 90 lodges in the state now have contracts.

The organization, established in 1915, now has more than 130,000 members in 44 states. It lobbies for police-related laws in state legislatures and on a national level.

"Its reputation also is that it is not a union, but a professional police organization made up solely of full-time law enforcement officers," Vertuno said. "It is an organization of action, but with a great deal of integrity. It fights for the police officer and the betterment of law enforcement, but maintains its dignity."

City will replace dead, damaged trees

Des Plaines will replace dead and damaged trees throughout the city this fall.

City Forester Larry Komos said Wednesday the city soon will advertise for bids for 125 trees in the tree replacement program. He said the trees will be planted in late October or early November.

Residents who want trees replaced should call the city's public works department. Komos said trees not planted this fall will be planted next spring.

Correction

A typographical error in Wednesday's Herald incorrectly reported the Des Plaines City Council had approved the issuance of $2.75 million in general obligation bonds to finance parking facilities for the proposed Superblock project. The council approved the sale of $2,275,000 in bonds.

Apartments case to Supreme Court

The Des Plaines City Council has voted to appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court in a continuing effort to block the proposed development of the old Boeckenhauer Farm.

The city has been involved in a legal battle since 1967 with developer Julius Cohen. The Circuit Court and more recently the Illinois Appellate Court have ruled in favor of the developer.

Aldermen Tuesday night unanimously to ask the state's high court to hear the case. The move was suggested by Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th.

The developer has proposed building single-family homes, apartments and a small commercial area on the 40-acre tract southwest of Thacker Street and Wolf Road.

Michael Richardson, director of planning and zoning, said city officials oppose the developer's plan to construct apartment buildings along the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks.

"The city doesn't want to allow three flats," he said. "They want all single-family homes."

Cut speed limit on Cora: residents

More than 130 residents have asked the city council to lower the speed limit to 20 m.p.h. on Cora Street between Thacker Street and Lincoln Avenue.

Ald. Robert Sullivan, 2nd, presented petitions to the city council. The residents said a lower speed limit is needed to protect children walking to Central School.

The request has been referred to the traffic commission and city council's streets and traffic committee for study.

Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, chairman of the committee, has been pushing for more than a year to have speed limits on residential streets lowered from 30 m.p.h. to 20 m.p.h. He has asked the city attorney to determine whether such a move would be legal under state statutes.

Fire house lots to be upgraded

The city council has approved about $4,785 for repairs to parking lots at the city's three fire stations. Most of the work will be done this fall by the J. A. Johnson Paving Co., Arlington Heights.

Stop signs for Cora, Wicke

The city council has approved an ordinance prohibiting parking on the east side of Oakton Place and one to allow the erection of stop signs at Cora Street and Wicke Avenue.

Early entry for kindergarten OKd

Children who turn 5 years old between Dec. 1, 1975, and March 1, 1976, now can apply for kindergarten this school year in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education

Tuesday approved allowing up to 30 youngsters enroll in kindergarten this year who will turn 5 after the Dec. 1 deadline. Previously, youngsters had to be 5 years old on or before Dec. 1, 1975, to enter kindergarten this year.

Supt. Roger Bardwell said the administration has received 27 requests from parents who want their children to enter kindergarten early. For a youngster to be admitted into the program, parents must write a letter to the district by Friday, explaining why they believe their child is ready for kindergarten.

THE CHILD AND parents will be interviewed by psychologists and kindergarten teachers at the school the child will attend to determine whether the child is mature enough to start kindergarten.

Bardwell said the program will not cost the district additional money this year, although the district will not receive state aid for children born after the Dec. 1 deadline. He said the district can place up to 30 youngsters into classes already scheduled because applications have been received proportionately throughout the district.

Interviews for acceptance into the program will be held within the next week, Bardwell said. Parents will be notified whether their child is accepted by Sept. 15.

Schools sponsor gifted seminars

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 is offering a series of seminars for parents this month on the identification and development of programs for gifted students.

The district has received state funding to plan programs for pupils identified as exceptionally talented in creativity, intelligence, leadership, visual or the performing arts and athletics.

The seminars, which will be at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village, are an initial step to set up programs for gifted students in the district.

A program on leadership development will be conducted by Bill Stepien, gifted training coordinator in Dundee Unit Dist. 300, at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 23.

Intellectual giftedness will be discussed by Mary Lu Muffoletto, director of gifted programming in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, at 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 11.

A program on creativity will be presented by Marilyn Melsner, Northwest Suburban Area Service Center director for gifted children, at 8 p.m.

Cans of mixed nuts will sell for $1.50, and a 13-ounce can of peanuts will sell for $1.

This is one of several projects which the aides sponsor during the year for the hospital.

Chicago man falls off raft drowns in lake mishap

A Chicago man drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming with friends in a lake north of Wheeling in unincorporated Lake County. Companions identified the victim as Jon Hoeschen, 18. They said he was to enter DeVry Technical Institute, Chicago, this month. Vernon Township firefighters, who recovered Hoeschen's body after a three-hour search, said the drowning was the second in two weeks at the lake. The drowning occurred near Milwaukee Avenue about one-quarter mile north of Aptakisic Road. HOESCHEN'S BODY was taken to Condell Memorial Hospital, Libertyville. Bill Kissane, 18, of 5835 Higgins Rd., and George Kevorkian, 17, of 6228 Roscoe, both of Chicago, said Hoeschen drowned after apparently falling from an inflatable raft. They described him as "not that good a swimmer." The three and two other friends came to the lake early in the afternoon, and Hoeschen went off by himself to take his raft across the lake, they said. Kissane said he and Kevorkian were swimming several hundred yards away when Hoeschen, "started yelling for help, and we thought he was going around at first." HIS FRIENDS enlisted the help of Vernon Township firefighters, who were training in the area. Chief Ted Tarr, Vernon fire chief, said divers from Grayslake, Lake Zurich, Libertyville and Countryside fire departments joined his department in the search. Tarr said six persons have drowned in the lake in the last 2½ years. An Elmwood Park woman, Hilda Vargas, 18, drowned there Aug. 24 while trying to swim to an island, said Lt. Louis Gnadi, of the Vernon fire department.

talities," he said. "I'm not trying to detract from Miss Nipper's contribution to the district. But I think the children should have an opportunity to express themselves," Lynch said. SYLVIA LURIE, board member, told teachers the board asked for name suggestions from River Road six months ago, and none were given. Teachers replied the building had not yet been completed, and students expressed little interest in naming it at that time. They also said they had not been aware of any deadline to submit names. They requested time to hold a "name-the-school" contest at River Road. "I think we need to postpone the decision in order to have as much harmony as possible. After all, that was the aim of this whole project," said Miss Nipper, who was present at Tuesday's meeting. Board member Edward Pugliese said should the board turn down a name River Road students might submit, the rejection could prove more damaging than simply refusing to extend the suggestion deadline. Pugliese suggested that River Road students name different rooms or areas of the building.

City hedges on parking, garage

do today is build this and provide the needed parking for this complex," Leer said. MAYOR HERBERT H. Behrel said he agrees the project should not be delayed needlessly, but added he feels alternate plans should be considered before the city authorizes bids on the project. The city council has authorized Holmes and Fox to prepare a plan for a police garage only and then one for a police garage with ramps to provide for the addition of a parking deck at a later date. City officials said after the plans are prepared, bids will be sought for the three alternate proposals and the city council will make a decision based on the cost.

The matter of parking for the Civic Center complex is tied to an ongoing debate among city officials over whether to preserve or tear down the old city hall. Some officials favor razing it to provide additional parking, while others want it preserved for use as a museum and community center. Behrel and other officials have said a final decision on parking for the Civic Center probably cannot be reached until a decision is made on the fate of the old building.

"YOU PEOPLE are going to have to make a decision very soon on what you're going to do with the old city hall," Behrel told the city council Tuesday night. "This thing has been kicked around for a long time, but nothing has been done."

 1. Will it be a vehicle that is regularly inspected and serviced?
 2. Are the drivers competent?
 3. Have their driving records been examined? (Sept. 2-5 - National School Bus Safety Week - is receiving support by all professional school bus transportation organizations as well as schools.)
- III. Are you looking for a sitting service or a place where the child can prepare for the future?
 1. Find out how the child will spend the day.
 2. Will the child spend the entire day in play or will he have classes that will help prepare him for future educational endeavors?
 - a) If merely a baby sitting or play-school atmosphere is desired then that is what the parents definitely should seek.
 - b) If, on the other hand, you want the child to learn at the same time then you should examine:
 1. The curriculum offered by the institution you are considering.
 2. The faculty - who is going to teach the child? What are their qualifications.
- IV. Do you want your child to be "strictly private" in a private institution or do you want him to associate with and learn about his community and the world around him?
 1. If the former is true you might want to consider a tutor or a school that emphasizes individual instruction in math or science or some other subject.
 2. On the other hand if you want him to learn about and participate in community activities, general health and hygiene, how a supermarket operates, what happens at the fire department when an alarm goes off, in general, what comprises a community and how to live in it, then you should seek a more liberal school for your pre-schooler.
- V. When you enroll your pre-schooler, do you want the child to enjoy an occasional outing to museums or nature trails to understand what their instructors are teaching them about this mysterious world around them or do you want to know that they are within the confines of the school every minute?
- VI. Future performance. What is the record of the children who attended the particular pre-school you are interested in in comparison to other students when they enter kindergarten or first grade. Talk to school principals.
- VII. What is the general atmosphere at the pre-school? Is it homelike and one which will make the child feel at home or is it alien and cold?
 1. Is it lively and bright or is it drab and cold?
 2. Are there indications that the children's work is being rewarded by recognition such as art work on the walls, etc.?
- VIII. Cost. In the words of Flip Wilson, "What you see is what you get." After examining all of the aforementioned points it's especially important today to consider cost. One important point to remember is that pre-school education is like any other consumer product. You can get substitutes at a very low price and you can go overboard for luxuries but if you shop carefully you can obtain for your child a well rounded pre-school educational program at a reasonable cost. If you give careful consideration to the points mentioned you'll start your child and yourself off on the right foot toward educational security.

Chicago man falls off raft drowns in lake mishap

A Chicago man drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming with friends in a lake north of Wheeling in unincorporated Lake County.

Companions identified the victim as Jon Hoeschen, 18. They said he was to enter DeVry Technical Institute, Chicago, this month.

Vernon Township firefighters, who recovered Hoeschen's body after a three-hour search, said the drowning was the second in two weeks at the lake.

The drowning occurred near Milwaukee Avenue about one-quarter mile north of Aptakisic Road.

Condell Memorial Hospital, Libertyville.

Bill Kissane, 18, of 5835 Higgins Rd., and George Kevorkian, 17, of 6223 Roscoe, both of Chicago, said Hoeschen drowned after apparently falling from an inflatable raft.

They described him as "not that good a swimmer."

The three and two other friends came to the lake early in the afternoon, and Hoeschen went off by himself to take his raft across the lake, they said.

Kissane said he and Kevorkian were swimming several hundred yards away when Hoeschen, "started y-ling for help, and we thought he was goofing around at first."

His friends enlisted the help of Vernon Township firefighters, who were training in the area.

Chief Ted Tarr, Vernon fire chief, said divers from Grayslake, Lake Zurich, Libertyville and Countryside fire departments joined his department in the search.

Tarr said six persons have drowned in the lake in the last 2½ years.

An Elmwood Park woman, Hilda Vargus, 18, drowned there Aug. 24 while trying to swim to an island, said Lt. Louis Gnadt, of the Vernon fire department.

GEORGE KEVORKIAN, 17, and Bill Kissane, 18, both of Chicago, wait grimly as divers search for the body of their friend, Jon Hoeschen, also of Chicago, who drowned Wednesday afternoon in a lake north of Wheeling. A diver is shown preparing to join the search.

Plane crash kills two men

by LUISA GINETTI

A single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a soybean field in Wheeling Township Wednesday shortly after takeoff from Palwaukee Airport, killing both persons aboard.

Killed in the crash were Eugene McDaniel, 11010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo. The county coroner's office said it had not determined which victim was the pilot.

Jack Harrington, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the cause of the crash had not been determined. A witness to the crash said the four-passenger private plane made what appeared to be a normal takeoff at 2:49 p.m., turned left and then nosed up and crashed in the field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling Township, Harrington said.

Harrington said the plane made no contact with the Palwaukee tower before the crash, but investigators believe the plane's engine stalled. Weather conditions were apparently not a factor in the crash, officials indicated.

The witness, whose helicopter was on an instructional flight at the time, landed next to the downed plane, and the pilot dragged one of the victims about 10 feet from the plane, County Sheriff's police said. Shortly after the victim was removed from the wreckage, the smoldering plane burst in flames, officials said.

OFFICIALS AT THE scene said both men apparently were killed instantly in the crash. One man was burned beyond recognition, and the other was mutilated severely, officials said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration, the state police, the coroner's office and the county Sheriff's office were on the scene for nearly three hours before the bodies were removed.

Harrington said he did not know the plane's destination, but an official at Palwaukee said the plane was not based at the airport and had only landed a short time before.

The plane had taken off from Dacy Airport in Harvard, Ill., about 40 miles northwest of Wheeling, officials there said. A Dacy airport spokesman said the plane took off from Dacy about 1 p.m. for Palwaukee on an apparent business trip. He added the plane probably was returning to Dacy when it crashed.

The spokesman said McDaniel and Medlinger were friends, and McDaniel was a flying instructor.

Wheeling Fire Dept. trucks were among the first rescue units on the scene and extinguished the fire. Paramedics also were on the scene but left shortly after the victims were pronounced dead.

TWO PRIESTS FROM nearby St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling, arrived at the site about an hour after the crash. Father Donald Simpson said he and Father Thomas Moran administered last rites to the victims.

Harrington said the wreckage will be removed from the field, but the area will be placed under security until investigators complete their work.

The crash was the second incident involving fatalities at Palwaukee this year. In March, a twin-engine, 12-passenger Beechcraft 18 plane crashed on takeoff during a snowstorm less than 25 feet from a residential area near Palatine and Wolf roads. The pilot died of injuries suffered in the crash a week later, but the co-pilot survived.

Village would receive $30,000 grant RTA bus contract OK expected

The Wheeling Village Board is expected to approve a contract Monday with the Regional Transportation Authority for a $30,000 grant for the village bus system.

Thomas Markus, village administrative assistant, said the contract is a formality which the village is required to sign in order to receive the grant. The contract stipulates the village must provide the same service it has for the last year and any proposed changes must first be approved by the RTA board.

The village uses two buses, one of which is rented and travels a set village route, and a second village owned bus which serves as a shuttle to and from shopping centers, medical centers and other places within the village.

THE SERVICE has operated at an increasing deficit since it was started in 1972. The operating loss for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1975, totaled more than $45,000.

Those figures prompted Trustee Gilbert Monoson to ask for a ridership survey recently to determine the financial feasibility of continuing the service. Monoson said if most of the riders are students, he would prefer to see the village arrange with Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 to provide transportation for the students.

Children under 8 years old ride the bus free. Children aged 8 to 17, as well as senior citizens, pay a fare of 10 cents. Persons over 17 pay a 25-cent fare.

Markus said the fare box last year provided about $1,500 in income from the service. Because children are the biggest users of the bus, Markus said it is difficult for the service to make money.

MARKUS SAID he is studying the system to see how it can be improved, but because of the RTA contract stipulations, revisions in the service may take some time.

The system formerly was under the supervision of M. O. Horcher, former village administrative assistant, who recently was reappointed police chief. Markus said he has not been that closely associated with the system and must study it before he can recommend changes to the village board.

The RTA grant is for six months, after which the village will be required to resubmit an application for more funds.

2 suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian center

by WANDALYN RICE

Two men were hospitalized Wednesday with suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

A 36-year-old Schaumburg resident was reported in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A 29-year-old from south-suburban Bolingbrook was listed in good condition and may be discharged within the next few days.

Hospital officials, who did not identify the men, said further tests are needed to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

Hospital officials said they do not know where the Schaumburg man contracted the disease. Most victims of the disease in Cook County have been residents of the southern suburbs.

OFFICIALS OF the Illinois Dept. of Public Health said the two men's names were among 17 added Wednesday to the list of suspected or confirmed encephalitis cases. Ten of the new cases are in Cook County, but only one of them has been confirmed.

The newly confirmed case is in Harvey. Other new cases were reported in Berwyn, Oak Lawn, Blue Island and Chicago.

The total number of cases reported statewide in the current outbreak is 107, with 73 in Cook County. A total of 21 cases, 10 in Cook County, has been confirmed. Blood tests running 10 days apart are required to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

In other developments in the epidemic, a team of seven specialists from the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., arrived in Chicago Wednesday to help state health officials look for the source of the disease.

The team will collect and classify birds and mosquitoes in an attempt to locate the disease source. Encephalitis is transmitted from birds to human beings through mosquito bites.

Dr. Mark Lepper, head of a state task force on the disease, said five areas in the state have been identified as centers of the disease.

The areas are:

- Bolingbrook, Park Forest South and the southern end of Will County.
- Peoria and Tazewell counties.
- Madison and St. Clair counties.
- Champaign and Macon counties.
- Wayne, Richland, Jefferson and Clay counties.

County mosquito abatement districts have stepped up their anti-mosquito programs. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows have scheduled additional mosquito-spraying programs.

Symptoms of the disease include headache, high fever and mental confusion. Most victims recover spontaneously, but in serious cases the disease can result in coma, brain damage and death.

Unions: 'company' vs. 'radical'

Cops face choice of reps; most choose moderates

by STIRLING MORITA

Two members of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Combined Counties Police Assn. is a bit radical.

To John Flood, CCPA president, the FOP is too much like a "company" union — too much a part of the establishment.

Some members of the local FOP chapters have indicated they worry about the reputation of police when they hear of job actions by their brethren. They are quick to point out, when seeking collective bargaining rights, the FOP has a no-strike philosophy.

Flood, CCPA founder, compares his union to a Rolls-Royce and the FOP to a Volkswagen when it comes to police-labor relations. Flood says when a policeman has ridden in the luxury car, he never wants to go back to the "bug."

"SURE, I'M A radical," Flood says. "We're a controversial organization, because we're an action organization."

Joseph Vertuno, president of the state FOP lodge, explains, "Sometimes, you can catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

Of 10 police departments in the Northwest suburbs, those in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg are members of FOP while those in Wheeling, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect are in the CCPA fold. Palatine, formerly CCPA-oriented, does not acknowledge either union.

A move by several members of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept. to start a CCPA chapter more than three years ago was blunted when controversy broke out among the police chief, mayor, aldermen and some policemen.

The two organizations are the only ones available locally to police. In Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, FOP chapters are seeking official recognition from village officials.

FOP CHAPTER presidents emphasize they joined the organization because it is a fraternal order.

Sgt. Charles Poellicien, president of the Rolling Meadows FOP chapter, says "As far as we're concerned, it's (FOP) more of a professional organization. We've heard nothing good about CCPA. It (FOP) is more professional in the way it's run. They don't have a bunch of radicals ready to storm the establishment."

Patrolman Richard Akerman, Hoffman Estates, FOP lodge president, said, "We're a fraternal organization — nationwide. We don't believe in striking on negotiations and endangering the safety of the public."

An officer in the Schaumburg FOP lodge, Patrolman James Kuzel, explained, "We have a two-fold commitment to the man in blue and to the people he serves as well. We're a community-minded organization."

Flood points out CCPA also is involved in community activities, such as sponsoring sports teams or contributing to charities, but such controversial actions as this year's uniform strike in Skokie grab headlines.

FLOOD STARTED the union in 1969 while serving on the Wheeling Police Dept. "because we needed a voice." He said he went to the FOP, and "they didn't give us anything."

Municipal administrators are more afraid of CCPA, Flood noted. "Police, by and large, are scared to organize. They're scared to come to us, and that their administrators won't like it."

Some policemen have wanted to meet secretly with CCPA officials in forest preserves, he added. "They (administrators) know we're a strong organization. We have a militant reputation because we stood up and fought. We're not beggars," he said.

"There are two things working against us — fear and lack of knowledge on the policeman's part about negotiations," Flood said.

Flood said he would not advocate a police strike in a major city like Chicago. He said all the fears about chaos resulting from a strike are generated by politicians.

IN A SUBURB, supervisory personnel and Sheriff's police could combine to put more men on the street than before the strike, he said.

"We don't like to strike. We don't like job action, but what do you do when they say no to collective bargaining?" Flood added.

He noted CCPA's reputation has gained invitations for union officials to lecture about police-labor relations to university and International Assn. of Chiefs of Police forums.

"We're the only true functioning (police) organization in the State of Illinois. We have the economics, the staff, the expertise and the experience to negotiate for police departments," Flood said.

Vertuno said the FOP is more acceptable to municipal officials because they would rather deal with "their own people."

"It's just a matter of getting them to sit down and talk to us and get what we're looking for," Vertuno said.

STATE FOP officials have entered negotiations when both municipal officials and policemen reach an impasse. "I can be militant when I want, but I was justified on each action," Vertuno said.

He explained the solution to salary negotiations depends not on the right, to strike, but on "compulsory, binding arbitration." Vertuno noted some of the departments have gotten what they wanted without a strike. So far, 35 of the more than 90 lodges in the state now have contracts.

The organization, established in 1915, now has more than 130,000 members in 44 states. It lobbies for police-related laws in state legislatures and on a national level.

"Its reputation also is that it is not a union, but a professional police organization made up solely of full-time law enforcement officers," Vertuno said. "It is an organization of action, but with a great deal of integrity. It fights for the police officer and the betterment of law enforcement, but maintains its dignity."

Rained out dinner-dance sparks Fabish-Winter feud

Village Pres. Edward A. Fabish Tuesday night criticized Fire Chief Wayne Winter for not permitting use of the fire station for the Buffalo Grove Days dinner-dance last weekend.

The latest clash between the two has spurred Fabish to announce he will not consider Winter for the post of fire chief if and when the village forms a municipal fire department. Currently, the fire department operates as part of the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District and is not municipally owned.

The dinner-dance, part of the three-day annual festivities, was rained out Saturday. It was to have been held at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course on Lake-Cook Road, across the street from the village hall, where the fire station is located.

Fabish said planners of the dinner-dance asked Winter if the fire house could be used because of the rain.

WINTER SAID HE refused the request because firefighting equipment cannot be left out in the rain and also be subjected to vandalism.

He added the volunteer fire department could lose its insurance rating if equipment was outside during an inspection.

"I would never allow three quarters of a million dollars of equipment in a rainstorm," Winter said.

Edward Fabish

Wayne Winter

The inspection is the "biggest" reason why bingo games at the fire station were discontinued, Winter added.

Fabish said Buffalo Grove Police were prepared to guard equipment if the dinner-dance was moved to the fire station.

Winter's refusal is the latest incident in which he has not cooperated, Fabish charged. He said Winter had not been cooperative in village matters for the last six or seven years, except in those advantageous to the fire chief.

"It's not just this one incident," Fabish said. "But this was the last straw."

FABISH SAID HE is angry because of many apparent political tactics made by Winter in the past, including the hiring of a suspended patrolman last year.

The patrolman also served as a volunteer fireman and was hired as a temporary full-time fireman.

Winter said Fabish's attacks are "premature" and emotionally charged. "I think this is another case of a molehill-mountain routine," he said.

Winter said he checked with Arlington Heights Fire Dept. and Long Grove Fire Protection District chiefs about his decision. The two confirmed his decision, Winter said.

Winter said he was undaunted by Fabish's statement to prevent him to continue as fire chief because of ordinances protecting his job for two years after a new fire department is formed.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers at an institute day last week. Dist. 21 may soon offer a course in Teacher Effectiveness Training.

'Teacher effectiveness' weighed

by MARILYN McDONALD

A good teacher communicates well with students. With that fact in mind, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 is considering a program in Teacher Effectiveness Training for its staff through the district's self-renewal project.

Teacher Effectiveness Training instructs teachers to respond to the feelings expressed by children. It is a process of listening beyond the words being spoken to the emotions, which often reveal much more, said Kathy Carlin, a second grade teacher at Field School and a veteran of TET.

She presented an example of how effectiveness training works during a district teachers' institute day held recently.

MRS. CARLIN asked the teachers to picture a dinner table scene, in which a 16-year-old boy announces he is fed up with school and has no intention of going to college. Teachers gave what they felt would be typical family responses: "I expect more of you than that."; "When you get older, you'll understand the value of education."; "After all we've done for you..."

Mrs. Carlin then asked the teachers to note how such responses would avoid the real issue: Why is the boy unhappy, and how can he solve his problem?

She said TET would train the listener to pinpoint the boy's emotion: "You're feeling frustrated about school." Although this may seem like simple repetition Mrs. Carlin said this response tells the boy you acknowledge his feelings and are not judging him.

BY ACKNOWLEDGING his feelings, you encourage him to open up to you, she said. TET teaches problem-solving techniques, Mrs. Carlin said.

TET also teaches ways of communicating one's own needs without sounding dictatorial, Mrs. Carlin said. If you can make the other person willing to change or do as you ask without hurting his self-esteem, you have bettered your relationship and fulfilled your own needs at the same time, she said.

Mrs. Carlin said it took her several months to learn various TET techniques and to become comfortable using them. But once learned, she said, they become useful in her life outside the classroom as well.

Developer asks permission to build townhouses, homes

The developer of The Crossing Wednesday night requested Buffalo Grove Plan Commission approval to build townhouse and single-family detached homes throughout the 127-acre site at Ill. Rtes. 83 and 53.

The request is a change from the original plan, which called for a mix of 748 townhouses, detached single-family houses, apartments and condominium units.

The developer, the Richards Group, recently received village board approval to build 41 single-family houses instead of duplex units previously approved.

Over-all, the developer plans to build 128 single-family homes and 438 townhouses.

JAMES OTIS, of Otis and Associates, project architects, said the change in plans will result in a "drastic" reduction in density. Density will be lowered from 4.4 units per acre to 4.1 units.

Otis added the developer may request more changes to single-family units — a maximum of 228 single-family houses and 274 townhouses. Density would be lowered to 3.9 units per acre.

Otis said the changes are being sought because the developer "wants to take advantage of a strong market for houses. Apartments are not a product that will be an asset to The Crossing."

The area will be developed with a court shopping center to the east along Arlington Heights Rd. Otis said the center will have a rustic appearance to blend with the houses. Some major convenience shopping will be offered, but the center primarily will house specialty stores bearing "country charm" atmosphere, Otis said.

A LAND DONATION to the Buffalo Grove Park District will change configuration, but not acreage, he said.

Court upholds Army drug hunts without writs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals has ruled the Army does not violate constitutional rights of soldiers by searching them for illegal drugs without warrants.

The decision reversed a district court finding that searches made in a drug control program by the Army's European Command violate the 4th Amendment requirement of warrants for such searches.

"The soldier cannot reasonably expect the Army barracks to be a sanctuary like his civilian home," the appeals court said in its ruling Tuesday.

THE ARMY was permitted to continue the control program it began two years ago pending its appeal of the lower court decision in January, 1974, that military necessity did not justify the warrantless searches.

In reversing this ruling, the three-judge appeals panel said the increasing drug abuse the Army sought to control "poses a substantial threat to the readiness and efficiency of our military forces."

But the Army was forbidden to use any of the evidence against the individual soldiers involved while the appeal was pending.

THE THREE JUDGES held that the primary purpose of the drug inspections was to "ferret out illegal drugs as a means of protecting the health of the unit and assuring its fitness . . ." and not for punishment.

The judges also held the Army attempted to "guard the dignity and privacy of the soldier insofar as practical" in making the searches.

"Nevertheless, the fact remains that discipline and fitness are prerequisites of an effective military force," the judges said.

THE SUIT challenging the control program was filed by attorney David Adlestone for the American Civil Liberties Union and the Lawyers' Military Defense Committee on behalf of 145,000 soldiers stationed in Europe.

"If the armed forces persist in using such crude methods all they will do is drive young recruits away," Adlestone said.

Rattlesnakes hit suburb near Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — About 50 pygmy rattlesnakes have turned up during the past two months in a suburban housing development, and residents are digging up their flowers and shrubs so the snakes won't have as many places to hide.

"Every time I turn around, some woman is screaming," said Pete LaFrosca, who said he has become his neighborhood's chief snake killer. "I just go up and smash them with a shovel. They have to be in three pieces before I go near them."

Scientists say pygmy rattlers, mottled gray snakes with rust colored lines running down their backs, almost never grow longer than 18 inches, and there is no known instance of their bite being fatal.

THE BITE IS SERIOUS, however, said Dr. Bill Haast of the Miami Serpentarium. He said it is painful and leads to swelling and possible tissue damage if not properly treated.

The only person bitten at the Winston Park development so far is Danny Van Dine, 16, who said it felt "like a little pointy razor." He was bitten in the hand by a snake hidden in the hollow of a palm frond he picked up.

Van Dine called a friend who drove him to a hospital for treatment of his thumb, which had reddened and began to feel numb. His hand was soaked and he received two shots.

The apparent source of the snakes is a large, nearly vacant tract of land owned by the Dade County Water and Sewer Authority and leased by radio station WFUN. The station uses part of the lot for transmission towers.

"WE GO ARMED when we go out there," said Virgil Roberts, the station's chief engineer. "We have trouble with snakes in the transmission tuning houses."

Roberts said the ground is coral rock and would be impossible to clear except by fire, which now is impossible because of the station's buildings.

The Dade County Public Works Department said it is taking steps to have the lot cleared, but it was not known how long that would take.

Some residents have dug up their flowers and shrubs because "they go under the shrubs to get cool and you can't see them."

"I killed seven," said Mrs. Ruth Diferie. "I did this until somebody told me they were dangerous."

U.S. orders school discipline record keeping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Minority school children are expelled far more than whites "in many hundreds of school systems," the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare said Wednesday in ordering superintendents to keep records of all disciplinary actions.

HEW's Office for Civil Rights did not identify the school systems but said it will check to see if federal civil rights laws are being violated.

HEW said it recently analyzed civil rights information it receives annually from the nation's 16,000 school systems.

"This data shows that, in many hundreds of school systems throughout the nation, minority children are receiving a disproportionate number of discipline actions in the form of expulsions and suspensions and are being suspended for longer periods than nonminority children."

IN A LETTER to all state education heads and local school superintendents, HEW ordered that more detailed records be kept to help federal investigators determine whether they are obeying the laws.

Starting this school year, for example, schools are required to log every instance of expulsion, suspension, corporal punishment, referral to special classes or schools to change behavior, transfer to another class or school, or other disciplinary actions.

The new record keeping requirements apply to all public and private school systems receiving federal aid, which includes most schools in the country.

THE SCHOOLS must also record all dropouts and hearings on student discipline, with each report showing the sex and race or ethnic origin of the student.

On a related subject, HEW said other checks have exposed discriminatory assignments of children to special education programs.

Special education includes classes for children who are gifted, retarded, emotionally or socially maladjusted, or physically handicapped.

HEW said that placing too many or too few children of any race, sex or ethnic background in such special classes may indicate a violation of at least two civil rights laws which prohibit federal funding for discriminatory programs.

Study faces criticism

Atomic energy favored by U.S. conservationists

WASHINGTON — Conservationists charged Wednesday a federal blueprint for U.S. energy research through the end of this century was biased in favor of atomic energy and placed insufficient emphasis on the known ways to cut energy consumption.

The preort, prepared by the Energy Research and Development Administration, called for coal and nuclear power to meet America's increasing needs through the year 2,000, although it retreated from previous estimates that the atom would be the single long-range main source of energy.

Testifying at a hearing of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, a series of spokesmen from environmental and consumer organizations said less emphasis should be given to nuclear power and more should be placed on conservation and the development of alternative sources.

BUT A REPRESENTATIVE of the Atomic-Industrial Forum, the trade association of the nuclear industry, disagreed. No other energy source except the atom can meet U.S. needs swiftly, safely, and at a lower cost than oil and coal, said Howard Larson, AIF vice president.

Larson said nuclear fission energy should be developed as quickly as possible. He praised the federal plan for emphasizing fission power and expanded use of coal as the main immediate answer to U.S. energy independence goal.

"We cannot afford to substitute an illusion of inexpensive and clean solar energy or fusion energy for the practical development of a breeder technology which has undergone significant study in this country and abroad for over 30 years."

Presenting the opposing view, James Cubie of Ralph Nader's Congress Watch, charged that ERDA was guilty of "misrepresentation by omission in a number of areas."

"Because ERDA failed to include one major energy source — conservation — in its limited nuclear development scenario, it created the misleading impression that limiting nuclear energy development was an unrealistic goal at best and foolhardy at worst," Cubie said.

SIMILAR USES were presented by Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation, who said he found "a conscious bias in favor of nuclear power" in the ERDA blueprint.

Kimball said ERDA played down the potential for solar and geothermal energy presented in two studies made last year for the federal Energy Administration.

An expert testifying for the Sierra Club, Jerome Kohl, of North Carolina State University, said ERDA appeared concerned only with expensive technological solution and not with the implementation of already-known ways to conserve energy. (United Press International)

Fearing suit; doctor gives up; twins face death

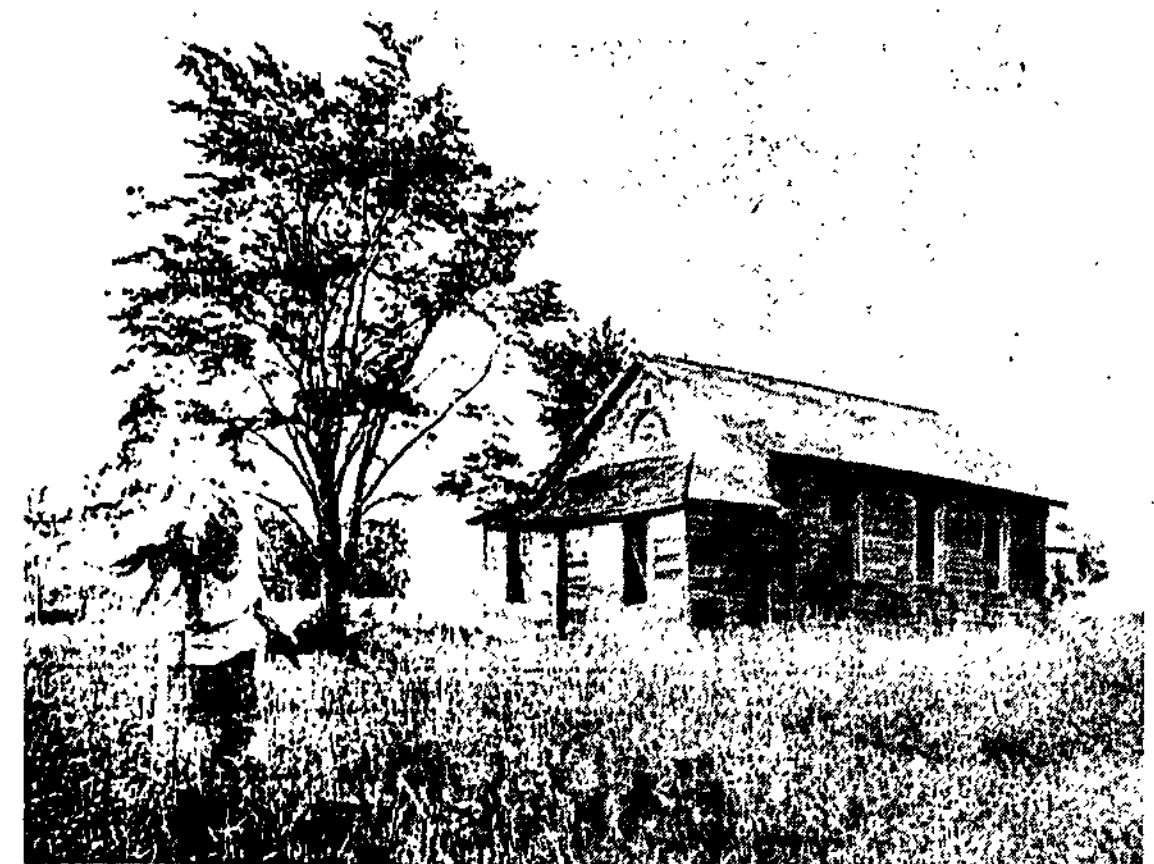

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — A pediatrician, fearing he would be sued, said Wednesday he was giving up an attempt to administer blood transfusions to premature twins whose parents object to the practice on religious grounds.

The doctor initially planned to seek a court order allowing him to give the transfusions, but decided even the court order would not provide him with adequate legal protection.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ivey of Panama City, both Jehovah's Witnesses, have steadfastly refused to grant permission for transfusions for the twin girls, born Sunday, three months premature.

THE DOCTOR, who asked that his identity be withheld, said he changed his mind about seeking the court order when he learned such an order would still leave him liable to civil action by the parents.

The State Division of Family Services now plans to seek the court order.

Scientists charge astrology a con game of 'charlatans'

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Heavenly bodies cannot affect your future and astrology is just a con game, according to a group of 186 prominent scientists.

The scientists, including 18 Nobel prize winners, have signed a statement condemning astrologers as charlatans and saying there is no scientific foundation to the ancient belief. Many of the scientists were astronomers. The statement was printed in the September-October issue of Humanist Magazine, published in Buffalo six times a year by the American Humanist Assn.

IT WAS DRAFTED by Dr. Bart J. Bok, former president of the American Astronomical Society and professor emeritus of astronomy at the University of Arizona.

"We wish to caution the public against the unquestioning acceptance of the predictions and advice given privately and publicly by astrologers," the statement said. "Those who wish to believe in astrology should realize that there is no strong scientific foundation for its tenets. . . and indeed, there is strong evidence to the contrary."

Paul Kurtz, editor of the magazine, said the statement was published because of growing concern by scientists of "the continued uncritical dissemination of astrological charts, forecasts and horoscopes by the media and by otherwise reputable newspapers, magazines and book publishers."

Such dissemination, the statement said, "can only contribute to the growth of irrationalism and obscurantism. The time has come to challenge directly, and forcefully, the pretentious claims of astrological charlatans."

KURTZ SAID the statement reflected scientists' concern "about the increased dependence on astrology in many parts of the world."

The statement noted astrology was devised in ancient times according to what was then known about the solar system and visible stars.

However, distances between the planets and the stars and earth now can be accurately measured and "it is simply a mistake to imagine that the forces exerted by stars and planets at the moment of birth can shape our future."

In addition to Bok, signers of the statement include Fred Hoyle, astronomer, Cambridge, England; Philip Handler, president of the National Academy of Sciences; B. F. Skinner, professor of psychology, Harvard University; Linus C. Pauling, professor of chemistry, Stanford University; Willem J. Luyten, professor of astronomy, University of Minnesota; and Glen T. Seaborg, of the University of California at Berkeley.

Chicagoan falls off raft, drowns in lake mishap

A Chicago man drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming with friends in a lake north of Wheeling in unincorporated Lake County.

Companions identified the victim as Jon Hoeschen, 18. They said he was to enter DeVry Technical Institute, Chicago, this month.

Vernon Township firefighters, who recovered Hoeschen's body after a three-hour search, said the drowning was the second in two weeks at the lake.

The drowning occurred near Milwaukee Avenue about one-quarter mile north of Aptakisne Road.

Condell Memorial Hospital, Libertyville.

Bill Kissane, 18, of 5035 Higgins Rd., and George Kevorkian, 17, of 6228 Roscoe, both of Chicago, said Hoeschen drowned after apparently falling from an inflatable raft.

They described him as "not that good a swimmer."

The three and two other friends came to the lake early in the afternoon, and Hoeschen went off by himself to take his raft across the lake, they said.

Kissane said he and Kevorkian were swimming several hundred yards away when Hoeschen, "started yelling for help, and we thought he was goofing around at first."

HIS FRIENDS enlisted the help of Vernon Township firefighters, who were training in the area.

Chief Ted Tarr, Vernon fire chief, said divers from Grayslake, Lake Zurich, Libertyville and Countryside fire departments joined his department in the search.

Tarr said six persons have drowned in the lake in the last 2½ years.

An Elmwood Park woman, Hilda Vargas, 18, drowned there Aug. 24 while trying to swim to an island, said Lt. Louis Gnadt, of the Vernon fire department.

GEORGE KEVORKIAN, 17, and Bill Kissane, 18, both of Chicago, wait grimly as divers search for the body of their friend, Jon Hoeschen, also of Chicago, who drowned Wednesday afternoon in a lake north of Wheeling. A diver is shown preparing to join the search.

Plane crash kills two men

by LUISA GINNETTI

A single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a soybean field in Wheeling Township Wednesday shortly after takeoff from Palwaukee Airport, killing both persons aboard.

Killed in the crash were Eugene McDaniel, 11010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo. The county coroner's office said it had not determined which victim was the pilot.

Jack Harrington, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the cause of the crash had not been determined. A witness to the crash said the four-passenger private plane made what appeared to be a normal takeoff at 2:49 p.m., turned left and then nosed up and crashed in the field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling Township, Harrington said.

Harrington said the plane made no contact with the Palwaukee tower before the crash, but investigators believe the plane's engine stalled. Weather conditions were apparently not a factor in the crash, officials indicated.

The witness, whose helicopter was on an instructional flight at the time, landed next to the downed plane, and the pilot dragged one of the victims about 10 feet from the plane, County Sheriff's police said. Shortly after the victim was removed from the wreckage, the smoldering plane burst in flames, officials said.

OFFICIALS AT THE scene said both men apparently were killed instantly in the crash. One man was burned beyond recognition, and the other was mutilated severely, officials said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration, the state police, the coroner's office and the county Sheriff's office were on the scene for nearly three hours before the bodies were removed.

Harrington said he did not know the plane's destination, but an official at Palwaukee said the plane was not based at the airport and had only landed a short time before.

The plane had taken off from Dacy Airport in Harvard, Ill., about 40 miles northwest of Wheeling, officials there said. A Dacy airport spokesman said the plane took off from Dacy about 1 p.m. for Palwaukee on an apparent business trip. He added the plane probably was returning to Dacy when it crashed.

The spokesman said McDaniel and Medlinger were friends, and McDaniel was a flying instructor.

Wheeling Fire Dept. trucks were among the first rescue units on the scene and extinguished the fire. Paramedics also were on the scene but left shortly after the victims were pronounced dead.

TWO PRIESTS FROM nearby St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling, arrived at the site about an hour after the crash. Father Donald Simpson said he and Father Thomas Moran administered last rites to the victims.

Harrington said the wreckage will be removed from the field, but the area will be placed under security until investigators complete their work.

The crash was the second incident involving fatalities at Palwaukee this year. In March, a twin-engine, 12-passenger Beechcraft 18 plane crashed on takeoff during a snowstorm less than 25 feet from a residential area near Palatine and Wolf roads. The pilot died of injuries suffered in the crash a week later, but the co-pilot survived.

The Great Football Debate—again

by BETTY LEE

For a football enthusiast, there's nothing like easing into a fat armchair in front of the TV screen with a beer in hand.

But football fans on the Buffalo Grove Village Board will have to lug their TV sets to board meetings if they want to watch Monday night games.

Once again, as in previous years, football has prompted a debate about whether to move the Monday night board meetings to Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday nights.

Changing the meeting day would not only let fans watch Monday night games, but it might generate better attendance at board meetings, it was said.

Meeting dates have never been changed, but Trustee Thomas Mahoney last week made an attempt with a modest proposal: "Would board members find it too objectionable to change only the Sept. 15 meeting, a Monday, to the 16th, a Tuesday?"

THE SUGGESTION was shot down by some trustees who have planned their work and leisure activities around the Monday night board meetings.

Trustee Clarice Reel flatly stated that as a public official, each board member should decide between the Monday night football game or the meeting.

"Each one of us has to make a choice in taking obligations," she said.

After that debate, Mahoney, who had wanted to watch the Notre Dame and Boston College game, threw his hands in the air and said he would drop the suggestion because it generated opposition.

But it was not the last attempt by Mahoney, who Tuesday night presented still another alternative. "How about starting the Sept. 15 meeting earlier so there will still be time for the game?" Mahoney asked the board.

Village Pres. Edward A. Fabish polled the board. Three trustees agreed the request was reasonable, three did not.

"I'M ALREADY committed for the next four years on Monday nights," Trustee Dorothy Carroll said. Between work, classes, gardening club and other activities, changing the Monday night meetings would be impossible.

2 suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian center

by WANDALYN RICE

Two men were hospitalized Wednesday with suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

A 38-year-old Schaumburg resident was reported in intensive care unit.

A 29-year-old from south-suburban Bollingbrook was listed in good condition and may be discharged within the next few days.

Hospital officials, who did not identify the men, said further tests are needed to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

Hospital officials said they do not know where the Schaumburg man contracted the disease. Most victims of the disease in Cook County have been residents of the southern suburbs.

OFFICIALS OF the Illinois Dept. of Public Health said the two men's names were among 17 added Wednesday to the list of suspected or confirmed encephalitis cases. Ten of the new cases are in Cook County, but only one of them has been confirmed. The newly confirmed case is in Harvey. Other new cases were reported in Berwyn, Oak Lawn, Blue Island and Chicago.

The total number of cases reported statewide in the current outbreak is 107, with 73 in Cook County. A total of 21 cases, 18 in Cook County, has been confirmed. Blood tests running 10 days apart are required to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

In other developments in the epidemic, a team of seven specialists from the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., arrived in Chicago Wednesday to help state health officials look for the source of the disease.

The team will collect and classify birds and mosquitoes in an attempt to locate the disease source. Encephalitis is transmitted from birds to human beings through mosquito bites.

Dr. Mark Lepper, head of a state task force on the disease, said five areas in the state have been identified as centers of the disease.

The areas are:

- Bollingbrook, Park Forest South and the southern end of Will County.
- Peoria and Tazewell counties.
- Madison and St. Clair counties.
- Champaign and Macon counties.
- Wayne, Richland, Jefferson and Clay counties.

County mosquito abatement districts have stepped up their anti-mosquito programs. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows have scheduled additional mosquito-spraying programs.

Symptoms of the disease include headache, high fever and mental confusion. Most victims recover spontaneously, but in serious cases the disease can result in coma, brain damage and death.

Radical company unions seek acceptance by police

by STIRLING MORITA
Two members of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Combined Counties Police Assn. is a bit radical.

To John Flood, CCPA president, the FOP is too much like a "company" union — too much a part of the establishment.

Some members of the local FOP chapters have indicated they worry about the reputation of police when they hear of job actions by their brethren. They are quick to point out, when seeking collective bargaining rights, the FOP has a no-strike philosophy.

Flood, CCPA founder, compares his union to a Rolls-Royce and the FOP to a Volkswagen when it comes to police-labor relations. Flood says when a policeman has ridden in the luxury car, he never wants to go back to the "bug."

"SURE, I'M a radical," Flood says. "We're a controversial organization, because we're an action organization."

Joseph Vertuno, president of the state FOP lodge, explains, "Sometimes, you can catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

Of 10 police departments in the Northwest suburbs, those in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg are members of FOP while those in Wheeling, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect are in the CCPA fold. Palatine, formerly CCPA-oriented, does not acknowledge either union.

A move by several members of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept. to start a CCPA chapter more than three years ago was blunted when controversy broke out among the police chief, mayor, aldermen and some policemen.

The two organizations are the only ones available locally to police. In Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, FOP chapters are seeking official recognition from village officials.

FOP CHAPTER presidents emphasize they joined the organization because it is a fraternal order.

Sgt. Charles Poellen, president of the Rolling Meadows FOP chapter, says "As far as we're concerned, it's (FOP) more of a professional organization. We've heard nothing good about CCPA. It (FOP) is more professional in the way it's run. They don't have a bunch of radicals ready to storm the establishment."

Patrolman Richard Akerman, Hoffman Estates, FOP lodge president, said, "We're a fraternal organization — nationwide. We don't believe in striking on negotiations and endangering the safety of the public."

An officer in the Schaumburg FOP lodge, Patrolman James Kuzel, explained, "We have a two-fold commitment to the man in blue and to the people he serves as well. We're a community-minded organization."

Flood points out CCPA also is involved in community activities, such as sponsoring sports teams or contributing to charities, but such controversial actions as this year's uniform strike in Skokie grab headlines.

FLOOD STARTED the union in 1969 while serving on the Wheeling Police Dept. "because we needed a voice," he said he went to the FOP, and "they didn't give us anything."

Municipal administrators are more afraid of CCPA, Flood noted. "Police, by and large, are scared to organize. They're scared to come to us, and that their administrators won't like it."

Some policemen have wanted to meet secretly with CCPA officials in forest preserves, he added. "They (administrators) know we're a strong organization. We have a militant reputation because we stood up and fought. We're not beggars," he said. "There are two things working against us — fear and lack of knowledge on the policeman's part about negotiations," Flood said.

Flood said he would not advocate a police strike in a major city like Chicago. He said all the fears about chaos resulting from a strike are generated by politicians.

IN A SUBURBAN, supervisory personnel and Sheriff's police could combine to put more men on the street than before the strike, he said.

"We don't like to strike. We don't like job action, but what do you do when they say no to collective bargaining?" Flood added.

He noted CCPA's reputation has gained invitations for union officials to lecture about police-labor relations to university and international Assn. of Chiefs of Police forums.

"We're the only true functioning (police) organization in the State of Illinois. We have the economics, the staff, the expertise and the experience to negotiate for police departments," Flood said.

Vertuno said the FOP is more acceptable to municipal officials because they would rather deal with "their own people."

"It's just a matter of getting them to sit down and talk to us and get what we're looking for," Vertuno said.

STATE FOP officials have entered negotiations when both municipal officials and policemen reach an impasse. "I can be militant when I want, but I was justified on each action," Vertuno said.

He explained the solution to salary negotiations depends not on the right to strike, but on "compulsory, binding arbitration." Vertuno noted some of the departments have gotten what they wanted without a strike. So far, 35 of the more than 90 lodges in the state now have contracts.

The organization, established in 1915, now has more than 130,000 members in 44 states. It lobbies for police-related laws in state legislatures and on a national level.

Police arrest woman on bad check charge

A Buffalo Grove woman faces two deceptive practice charges for allegedly cashing bad checks at a village store.

Arrested was Rochelle Wheeler, 28, of 1513 Cedarwood. Sgt. Kenneth Blanchette, Buffalo Grove police, said the woman was arrested for the second time in a week Tuesday after she failed to appear in court on the bad check charges.

She was first arrested at her home Aug. 28.

Blanchette said the woman is charged with cashing two bad checks last month worth $154 at the Mars Juvenile Shop in the Buffalo Grove Mall Shopping Center.

She is free on bond, pending an Oct. 7 court appearance in Arlington Heights.

Planners hear construction request

The developer of The Crossing Wednesday night requested Buffalo Grove Plan Commission approval to build townhouse and single-family detached homes throughout the 127-acre site at Ill. Rtes. 63 and 53.

The request is a change from the original plan, which called for a mix of 748 townhouses, detached single-family houses, apartments and condominium units.

The developer, the Richards Group, recently received village board approval to build 41 single-family houses instead of duplex units previously approved.

Over-all, the developer plans to build 128 single-family homes and 438 townhouses.

JAMES OTIS, of Otis and Associates, project architects, said the change in plans will result in a "drastic" reduction in density. Density will be lowered from 4.4 units per acre to 4.1 units.

Otis added the developer may request more changes to single-family units — a maximum of 228 single-family houses and 274 townhouses. Density would be lowered to 3.9 units per acre.

Otis said the changes are being sought because the developer "wants to take advantage of a strong market for houses. Apartments are not a product that will be an asset to The Crossing."

The area will be developed with a court shopping center to the east along Arlington Heights Rd. Otis said the center will have a rustic appearance to blend with the houses. Some major convenience shopping will be offered, but the center primarily will house specialty stores bearing "country charm" atmosphere, Otis said.

A LAND DONATION to the Buffalo Grove Park District will change configuration, but not acreage, he said.

The Richards Group hopes to develop the area in a three instead of an 8-year period. A second developer, C. A. Hemphill and Associates, Northfield, has joined the Richards Group in the project.

Otis said he would like construction to begin next year.

A plan commission public hearing is expected to be scheduled for early October.

Correction

The Long Grove Village Merchants Assn. will sponsor its third annual "Turn of the Century Day" Sunday, not Saturday as reported in Wednesday's Herald.

Festivities of "the good old days" will begin at 1 p.m. in town, with a parade, song fests, bake sales and refreshments.

 2. Are the drivers competent?
 3. Have their driving records been examined? (Sept. 2-8 - National School Bus Safety Week - is receiving support by all professional school bus transportation organizations as well as schools.)
- III. Are you looking for a sitting service or a place where the child can prepare for the future?
 1. Find out how the child will spend the day.
 2. Will the child spend the entire day in play or will he have classes that will help prepare him for future educational endeavors?
 - a) If merely a baby sitting or play-school atmosphere is desired then that is what the parents definitely should seek.
 - b) If, on the other hand, you want the child to learn at the same time then you should examine:
 1. The curriculum offered by the institution you are considering.
 2. The faculty — who is going to teach the child? What are their qualifications.
- IV. Do you want your child to be "strictly private" in a private institution or do you want him to associate with and learn about his community and the world around him?
 1. If the former is true you might want to consider a tutor or a school that emphasizes individual instruction in math or science or some other subject.
 2. On the other hand if you want him to learn about and participate in community activities, general health and hygiene, how a supermarket operates, what happens at the fire department when an alarm goes off, in general, what comprises a community and how to live in it, then you should seek a more liberal school for your pre-schooler.
- V. When you enroll your pre-schooler, do you want the child to enjoy an occasional outing to museums or nature trails to understand what their instructors are teaching them about this mysterious world around them, or do you want to know that they are within the confines of the school every minute?
- VI. Future performance. What is the record of the children who attended the particular pre-school you are interested in in comparison to other students when they enter kindergarten or first grade. Talk to school principals.
- VII. What is the general atmosphere at the pre-school? Is it homelike and one which will make the child feel at home or is it alien and cold?
 1. Is it lively and bright or is it drab and cold?
 2. Are there indications that the children's work is being rewarded by recognition such as art work on the walls, etc.?
- VIII. Cost. In the words of Flip Wilson, "What you see is what you get." After examining all of the aforementioned points it's especially important today to consider cost. One important point to remember is that pre-school education is like any other consumer product. You can get substitutes at a very low price and you can go overboard for luxuries but if you shop carefully you can obtain for your child a well rounded pre-school educational program at a reasonable cost. If you give careful consideration to the points mentioned you'll start your child and yourself off on the right foot toward educational security.

AN EFFECTIVE TEACHER looks beyond what her students say to the emotion behind their statements, Kathy Carlin, right, told Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers at an institute day last week. Dist. 21 may soon offer a course in Teacher Effectiveness Training.

'Teacher effectiveness' weighed

by MARILYN McDONALD
A good teacher communicates well with students. With that fact in mind, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 is considering a program in Teacher Effectiveness Training for its staff through the district's self-renewal project.

Teacher Effectiveness Training instructs teachers to respond to the feelings expressed by children. It is a process of listening beyond the words

unhappy, and how can he solve his problem?

She said TET would train the listener to pinpoint the boy's emotion: "You're feeling frustrated about school." Although this may seem like simple repetition Mrs. Carlin said this response tells the boy you acknowledge his feelings and are not judging him.

BY ACKNOWLEDGING his feelings, you encourage him to open up to you, she said. TET teaches problem-solving techniques, Mrs. Carlin said.

TET also teaches ways of communicating one's own needs without sounding dictatorial, Mrs. Carlin said. If you can make the other person willing to change or do as you ask without hurting his self-esteem, you have bettered your relationship and fulfilled your own needs at the same time, she said.

MRS. CARLIN asked the teachers to picture a dinner table scene, in which a 16-year-old boy announces he is fed up with school and has no intention of going to college. Teachers gave what they felt would be typical family responses: "I expect more of you than that."; "When you get older, you'll understand the value of education."; "After all we've done for you..."

Mrs. Carlin then asked the teachers to note how such responses would avoid the real issue: Why is the boy

No gain for Monday night football possible for her, she said. Coming to an earlier scheduled meeting is out, too, because of work, Carroll said.

Fabish broke the tie poll by voting against the proposal. "I don't want to impose hardships," he said.

The decision was not an easy one for Fabish, a Chicago Bears fan. He, too, entertained the idea of sitting at the 40-yard line, 15th row, east, to watch the Bears... on a Monday night.

"I've been a ticket holder since '46. That's why I have such good seats," Fabish said. "I don't think I'll have any trouble getting rid of them," he said with a sigh. Fabish said some of that game may be salvaged, however, because he asked Village Mgr. Daniel T. Larson for a light agenda that night.

Rained out dinner-dance sparks Fabish-Winter feud

Village Pres. Edward A. Fabish Tuesday night criticized Fire Chief Wayne Winter for not permitting use of the fire station for the Buffalo Grove Days dinner-dance last weekend.

The latest clash between the two has spurred Fabish to announce he will not consider Winter for the post of fire chief if and when the village forms a municipal fire department. Currently, the fire department operates as part of the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District and is not municipally owned.

The dinner-dance, part of the three-day annual festivities, was rained out Saturday. It was to have been held at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course on Lake-Cook Road, across the street from the village hall, where the fire station is located.

Fabish said planners of the dinner-dance asked Winter if the fire bays could be used because of the rain.

WINTER SAID HE refused the request because firefighting equipment cannot be left out in the rain and also be subjected to vandalism.

He added the volunteer fire department could lose its insurance rating if equipment was outside during an inspection.

"I would never allow three quarters of a million dollars of equipment in a rainstorm," Winter said.

The inspection is the "biggest" reason why bingo games at the fire station were discontinued, Winter added.

Fabish said Buffalo Grove Police were prepared to guard equipment if the dinner-dance was moved to the fire station.

Winter's refusal is the latest incident in which he has not cooperated, Fabish charged. He said Winter had not been cooperative in village matters for the last six or seven years, except in those advantageous to the fire chief.

"It's not just this one incident," Fabish said. "But this was the last straw."

FABISH SAID HE is angry because of many apparent political tactics made by Winter in the past, including the hiring of a suspended patrolman last year.

The patrolman also served as a volunteer fireman and was hired as a temporary full-time fireman.

Winter said Fabish's attacks are "premature" and emotionally charged. "I think this is another case of a molehill-mountain routine," he said.

2 suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian center

by WANDALYN RICE

Two men were hospitalized Wednesday with suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

A 38-year-old Schaumburg resident was reported in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A 29-year-old from south-suburban Bolingbrook was listed in good condition and may be discharged within the next few days.

Hospital officials, who did not identify the men, said further tests are needed to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

Hospital officials said they do not know where the Schaumburg man contracted the disease. Most victims of the disease in Cook County have been residents of the southern suburbs.

OFFICIALS OF the Illinois Dept. of Public Health said the two men's names were among 17 added Wednesday to the list of suspected or confirmed encephalitis cases. Ten of the new cases are in Cook County, but only one of them has been confirmed. The newly confirmed case is in Harvey. Other new cases were reported in Berwyn, Oak Lawn, Blue Island and Chicago.

The total number of cases reported statewide in the current outbreak is 107, with 73 in Cook County. A total of 21 cases, 10 in Cook County, has been confirmed. Blood tests running 10 days apart are required to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

In other developments in the epidemic, a team of seven specialists from the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., arrived in Chicago Wednesday to help state health officials look for the source of the disease.

The team will collect and classify birds and mosquitoes in an attempt to locate the disease source. Encephalitis is transmitted from birds to human beings through mosquito bites.

Dr. Mark Lepper, head of a state task force on the disease, said five areas in the state have been identified as centers of the disease.

The areas are:

- Bolingbrook, Park Forest South and the southern end of Will County.
- Peoria and Tazewell counties.
- Madison and St. Clair counties.
- Champaign and Macon counties.
- Wayne, Richland, Jefferson and Clay counties.

County mosquito abatement districts have stepped up their anti-mosquito programs. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows have scheduled additional mosquito-spraying programs.

Symptoms of the disease include headache, high fever and mental confusion. Most victims recover spontaneously, but in serious cases the disease can result in coma, brain damage and death.

Dist. 59, parks in money dispute

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 officials say Elk Grove and Arlington Heights park districts owe the school district more than $15,000, and a meeting has been scheduled to determine why the money has not been paid.

Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services, told the school board Tuesday in Elk Grove Park District owes about $13,000, partially for utility costs from operating the swimming pool at Live-ly Junior High School. He said Arlington Heights Park District owes the district about $2,500 in custodian fees.

Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights Park District director, said Wednesday the park district does not owe Dist. 59 any money. He said the park district maintains the school grounds at Low School, and in return, it is allowed to use school facilities. He said the school district also is allowed to use park land at the school site for playground activities.

THORNTON said the park district has agreed to pay for additional custodial fees when the school is used at a time when custodians normally are not on duty. "We have paid for these additional charges. We don't owe Dist. 59 a nickel," he said.

He said when the park-school agreement was set up 10 years ago, the park district paid $13,000 to expand the school's multi-purpose room into a full gym. The park district also paid for gym equipment, he said.

Jack Claes, Elk Grove Park District director of parks and recreation, said, "I don't think those are the right figures. We have already paid them $4,000 of an annual obligation and are prepared to pay $4,000 for this year when our taxes come in."

He said the park district agreed to

New alarm system saves a life

by JERRY THOMAS

The panic alarm system in the new senior citizens apartment complex in Elk Grove Village was credited by fire officials Wednesday with saving the life of an 85-year-old woman who suffered a heart attack.

Elita Behrmann, Cheekwood Court, suffered the attack Tuesday afternoon. The woman was able to trip a panic alarm system in the apartment, alerting the fire department to the emergency.

Fire Lt. Herman Marguard said the time saved by simply pulling the alarm, rather than dialing the fire department, was significant.

"The first few moments after a person has a heart attack is critical, and the fact the department received immediate notice of the emergency probably saved her life," he said.

EACH APARTMENT in the complex is equipped with a multiple alarm system which can be used by people not only to inform the department of nonfire emergencies, but also it utilizes smoke detectors and sprinkler systems in case of fires.

The system, which is new to the village, was recommended by the fire and building department when plans for the project were being reviewed.

Once the alarm for Ms. Behrmann was sounded, fire department paramedics were dispatched to administer emergency aid to the woman and transport her to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Hospital officials said Ms. Behrmann was in stable condition and improving.

Conant's operators keep smiling

by KATHERINE BOYCE

"Good morning, Conant High School."

That's how the day begins for Barbara Seelhammer and Betty Schecht who man the switchboard at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates.

The caller may pose any number of questions, ranging from the price of gym socks to the beginning date of Christmas vacation. These two women almost always have the answer. No matter whether it's the first or the 100th call of the day, their responses are always bright and fresh.

Perhaps it's because they really enjoy their jobs and consider them more fun than work. Although they could earn higher salaries in private industry, wild horses couldn't drag them away from all the commotion in Conant's main office. Mrs. Seelhammer has been operating Conant's pipeline to the world for six years, and Mrs. Schecht, who also serves as secretary to the athletic director, has worked at Conant eight years.

"THE PEOPLE are fantastic," said Mrs. Seelhammer. Almost in the same breath, Mrs. Schecht adds, "That's why we're here so long."

The students are one of the main reasons the job is so magnetic, and both women add with smiles that working in the high school keeps them young. They have both seen their own children walk the halls as students.

Almost everything that happens at Conant sooner or later filters down to the main office and ends up on their desks. They sell tickets for school events and take reservations for ski-club outings. A few years ago, when Conant competed in the Sweet Sixteen basketball tournament, the women donned hats, wore buttons and waved banners to show their support. Every year, they measure seniors for caps and gowns, and as a result, they are honored guests at the annual senior breakfast.

Even after graduation, the students drop in at the office and say "hi." "They bring their babies — they bring their wedding pictures," said Mrs. Seelhammer.

To some students, the women in the office are like part of the family. The freshmen are "darling," said Mrs. Seelhammer. "We have to lean over the counter to see them, but when they leave as seniors, we have to look

CHARRED REMAINS of a single-engine Piper Comanche plane lie sprawled in a soybean field at 1114 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling Township, after the plane crashed on takeoff Wednesday from Pal-

by LUISA GINETTI

A single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a soybean field in Wheeling Township Wednesday shortly after takeoff from Palwaukee Airport, killing both persons aboard.

Killed in the crash were Eugene McDaniel, 11010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo. The county coroner's office said it had not determined which victim was the pilot.

Jack Harrington, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the cause of the crash had not been determined. A witness to the crash said the four-passenger private plane made what appeared to be a normal takeoff at 2:49 p.m., turned left and then nosed up and crashed in the field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling Township, Harrington said.

Harrington said the plane made no contact with the Palwaukee tower before the crash, but investigators believe the plane's engine stalled. Weather conditions were apparently not a factor in the crash, officials indicated.

The witness, whose helicopter was on an instructional flight at the time, landed next to the downed plane, and the pilot dragged one of the victims about 10 feet from the plane, County Sheriff's police said. Shortly after the victim was removed from the wreckage, the smoldering plane burst in flames, officials said.

OFFICIALS AT THE scene said both men apparently were killed instantly in the crash. One man was burned beyond recognition, and the other was mutilated severely, officials said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration, the state police, the coroner's office and the county Sheriff's office were on the scene for nearly three hours before the bodies were removed.

Harrington said he did not know the plane's destination, but an official at Palwaukee said the plane was not based at the airport and had only landed a short time before.

The plane had taken off from Dacy Airport in Harvard, Ill., about 40 miles northwest of Wheeling, officials there said. A Dacy airport spokesman said the plane took off from Dacy about 1 p.m. for Palwaukee on an apparent business trip. He added the plane probably was returning to Dacy when it crashed.

The spokesman said McDaniel and Medlinger were friends, and McDaniel was a flying instructor.

Wheeling Fire Dept. trucks were among the first rescue units on the scene and extinguished the fire. Paramedics also were on the scene but left shortly after the victims were pronounced dead.

TWO PRIESTS FROM nearby St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling, arrived at the site about an hour after the crash. Father Donald Simpson said he and Father Thomas Moran administered last rites to the victims.

GEORGE KEVORKIAN, 17, and Bill Kissane, 18, both of Chicago, wait grimly as divers search for the body of their friend, Jon Hoeschen, also of Chicago, who drowned Wednesday afternoon in a lake north of Wheeling. A diver is shown preparing to join the search.

Chicagoan falls off raft, drowns in lake mishap

A Chicago man drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming with friends in a lake north of Wheeling in unincorporated Lake County.

Companions identified the victim as Jon Hoeschen, 18. They said he was to enter DeVry Technical Institute, Chicago, this month.

Vernon Township firefighters, who recovered Hoeschen's body after a three-hour search, said the drowning was the second in two weeks at the lake.

The drowning occurred near Milwaukee Avenue about one-quarter mile north of Aptakisic Road.

Condell Memorial Hospital, Libertyville.

Bill Kissane, 18, of 5835 Higgins Rd., and George Kevorkian, 17, of 6228 Roscoe, both of Chicago, said Hoeschen drowned after apparently falling from an inflatable raft.

They described him as "not that good a swimmer."

The three and two other friends came to the lake early in the afternoon, and Hoeschen went off by himself to take his raft across the lake, they said.

Kissane said he and Kevorkian were swimming several hundred yards away when Hoeschen, "started yelling for help, and we thought he was goofing around at first."

HIS FRIENDS enlisted the help of Vernon Township firefighters, who were training in the area.

Chief Ted Tarr, Vernon fire chief, said divers from Grayslake, Lake Zurich, Libertyville and Countryside fire departments joined his department in the search.

Tarr said six persons have drowned in the lake in the last 2½ years.

An Elmwood Park woman, Hilda Vargas, 18, drowned there Aug. 24 while trying to swim to an island, said Lt. Louis Gnadt, of the Vernon fire department.

$1.5 million loan approved by Dist. 59

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has approved borrowing $1.5 million to pay expenses in the education fund.

The district expects to have a deficit of $1.4 million in the education and building funds at the end of the year, according to the $18.5 million budget approved by the board Tuesday. To cover these expenses, the board approved issuing teachers' orders, a method of borrowing money through the bond and interest fund to pay teachers' salaries.

The anticipated deficit includes figures for teacher salary increases approved by the board Tuesday. The new contract gives teachers a 4 per cent cost-of-living increase in addition to the 4 per cent raise for an additional year of experience in the district. The 4 per cent cost-of-living raise is costing the district about $267,000. Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel, said the total cost of the contract's increases will be determined in about two weeks.

TEACHERS WILL be paid through teachers' orders starting Sept. 12. Six pay periods will be covered by the orders this year with the final payment being made Nov. 21. The board also will decide by that date whether another $250,000 order will be issued.

Teachers must cash their pay checks at Mount Prospect State Bank which will issue the orders. The district must pay back the orders at 5.25 per cent interest per year. The payment schedule will determine the tax increase which will result from issuing the orders.

The board can be prevented from issuing bonds to pay back the orders if 10 per cent of the voters petition the board to hold a referendum against the orders and the referendum passes. The petitions must be submitted within 30 days of when the board decides to get bonds to pay the orders.

Library board wrapup

Board OKs hiring 3 new employees

The Elk Grove Village Public Library Board Tuesday authorized the hiring of three new employees.

Acting on a recommendation from the personnel committee, the board approved a new circulation clerk for the children's department, who will work 11 to 15 hours a week at about $3.50 an hour; an adult services page for part-time work at $2 an hour and an adult services monitor to work 12 hours a week at $4 an hour.

Administrative Librarian Janet Steiner said the positions will be filled from applications on hand at the library.

The vote was unanimous, with Director Grover Streich absent.

Last mortgage payment OK'd

The library's last mortgage payment has been authorized by the board.

The $42,400 payment due Oct. 1 will end the library's five-year, $150,000 mortgage from the Bank of Elk Grove. The loan was used to finance the 1970 addition to the library.

Christmas films booked for '75

All Christmas films available from the library through the Suburban Audio Visual Services have been booked. Steiner said residents should plan on reserving films for Christmas 1975 around Jan. 1, 1976.

She also said any other requests for 16 mm films should be made at least seven days in advance of showing. The library has its own 16 mm film projector available for loan.

Books going to Ozarks

The library will send duplicate and discard books to a school district in the Ozark mountains section of Arkansas. Some children's books already have been sent. The library will pay shipping costs.

Library Dir. Kay Fleming said she learned of the school district's needs through an Elk Grove Village teacher. The teacher knows a former village resident, who now is teaching in the Ozark system. Mrs. Fleming said the system has a 1958 encyclopedia as its most recent set.

Employees picnic planned

The library board will have an employees' picnic this month at the library.

The idea for the picnic came from Director Darlene Greaves, whose personnel committee recently considered terminating six library employees.

Mrs. Greaves said the departing employees suggested the library add to its business and consumer sections and increase shelving. She said they also suggested updating job descriptions and a quiet area for adult study.

The board agreed to permit the board room to be used as an adult study area when the board or library staff are not making use of the room.

Bicentennial flag flies

The library is flying a Bicentennial flag, making it one of the first public buildings in the village to do so.

Ex-director questions YES move

by JERRY THOMAS

Lynn Helvie of Elk Grove Village, who for the last four years has directed the village's Youth Employment Service on a contract basis in her home, is no longer operating YES and is questioning the community services board's action to move the service into the municipal building.

Village officials gave no reason for their action and would only say Mrs. Helvie "has done an excellent job."

The youth service, part of the village-funded community services board, was formed several years ago to serve as a free employment service for youngsters.

Jane Broten, director of the board, maintains Mrs. Helvie was not "fired."

"She's just not with us any more," said Mrs. Broten.

MRS. BROTEN explained YES has transferred its base of operations from Mrs. Helvie's home into the community services offices in the municipal building "in an effort to expand the service."

"While it's true we did not exactly offer Mrs. Helvie the same job in the office, we did offer her a clerk-typist's job. She declined," said Mrs. Broten.

"Mrs. Helvie has done an excellent job. She's really been a special person and handled the program well. The decision to move the service into the offices was probably a budget consideration," added Mrs. Broten.

MRS. HELVIE WAS paid $7,200 in 1974 to handle the service from her home. She was considered self-employed and did not receive any employee benefits such as insurance.

A full-time secretary, whose job description also includes clerk-typist duties, was hired a month ago by the community services board at $7,388 a year. She will now handle YES.

Mrs. Helvie said she was never offered the opportunity to move with the program.

"While we had discussed the fact the program was to be expanded and moved into the municipal building, I didn't believe I wouldn't move with the program."

"Of course I was hurt. I really thought I was doing a good job and have honestly tried to be available at all times. It would have been nice to move with the program," said Mrs. Helvie.

MRS. HELVIE SAID the community services board informed her several days ago it was moving the telephone service lines out of her home.

"I didn't ask why they weren't interested in my continuing to operate the program. It's a matter of pride, I guess. I felt if they wanted me, it was up to them to make the first move," said Mrs. Helvie.

Mrs. Helvie handled telephone calls from teens interested in working and people seeking employees from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and called people back in the evenings.

MRS. HELVIE HAS A master's degree in counseling and occupational guidance from Butler University, Indianapolis, Ind.

The new secretary hired by the community services board has experience in personnel work, Mrs. Broten said.

Mrs. Broten said the community services board is still offering the employment service.

Teens or employers can call 856-8310 if they are interested in jobs or seeking employees, Mrs. Broten said.

"And when we are not in, an answering service will take the message," she added.

No pact settlement yet in Dist. 211

A teachers' strike in High School Dist. 211 is still uncertain following a six-hour negotiating session between teachers' union officials and members of the board of education Wednesday.

The two groups met with a federal mediator but had not reached a settlement when the meeting concluded Wednesday afternoon. Richard Zweiback, professional negotiator for the board, said he "remains optimistic" for a settlement and added the two sides are "very close" to an agreement.

The board scheduled a closed session Wednesday night to discuss negotiations but had no public statement other than that another session is scheduled with the mediator at 9 a.m. Monday.

The governing board of the High School Dist. 211 Teachers' Assn. also scheduled a meeting Wednesday night to decide whether it will ask teachers to vote for a strike. George Stewart, president, said the governing board did discuss a strike vote but declined to comment on whether a decision had been made.

DURING A MASS meeting last week, teachers voted overwhelmingly in favor of plans for picketing, leafleting and work stoppage, which would go into effect if their demands are not met by the board.

Zweiback and Stewart said Wednesday the mediator advised them not to discuss specific negotiation issues with the press.

The board's last reported offer was for a two-year contract, calling for a base salary of $10,000 plus a $300 across-the-board increase for teachers at the lower end of the salary schedule and $400 for teachers at the top of the schedule for the first year. During the second year, the base salary would be $10,350 plus $250 and $350 increases.

Teachers are asking for a $10,100 base and $300 and $400 increases the first year and a $10,400 base and $300 and $400 increases the second year. The base salary is now $9,650.

Teachers are also asking for:

- A maternity leave clause to conform to recent court rulings, giving pregnant teachers the option of taking a long-term leave of absence without pay or a short-term sick leave with pay.

- Ranking head librarians in the same category with department chairmen.

- A district-paid dental insurance program for teachers and their families.

- An association leave clause which would allow union officials time off from teaching for union work. The union would pay for a substitute teacher to replace the union official.

- A guarantee of minimum class size.

Dist. 59 rolls rise by 43

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 enrolled 43 more kindergarten students than anticipated, according to first day enrollment figures which showed 1,013 kindergartners.

Supl. Roger Bardwell presented the figures to the school board Tuesday, saying enrollment is not dropping as quickly as the district expected. Taking preregistration figures and census statistics, the district had projected that 970 kindergarten students would enroll this year. Last year 1,112 kindergarten students entered school.

The total first day enrollment figure for the district was 10,255 students, compared to 10,525 last year — a 2.6 per cent decrease. Bardwell said about 350 students usually register in the district during the first month of school. He said the total enrollment picture is encouraging even though the district is down 270 students from last year's first day enrollment figures. The district had anticipated enrolling 300 fewer students, he explained.

The 1979-80 school year. The figures predicted enrollment would drop from last year's 10,399 students to 7,279 students in 1979-80.

Bardwell said a breakdown between elementary and junior high schools shows enrollment dropped by 407 students in kindergarten through grade 5, and increased by 137 students in grades 6-8.

The district also has 11 more special education students enrolled this year, with a total of 93 students in special education programs.

HE SAID HIGHER enrollment figures will change the five-year enrollment projections presented to the board in July.

Those projections, compiled from a spring census of preschoolers and current enrollment figures in the district, show the administration anticipates a 33 per cent decline in enrollment by pay $4,000 a year for pool utilities. The fee is supposed to be reviewed after three years to determine whether it is the correct amount, he said.

Dist. 59 Supl. Roger Bardwell said school officials will meet with the park districts to review the figures and the park-school agreements.

Library mulls 3-week loans

The Elk Grove Village Public Library is considering a three-week loan period for most books because of a shortage of shelf space in the library.

Administrative Librarian Janet Steiner said the longer loan period should mean books will stay out of the library longer on loan, leaving room for new books on the library's shelves.

"Three weeks is pretty normal at most area libraries," Ms. Steiner told the library board Tuesday night. Elk Grove library patrons now borrow books for two weeks at a time.

The library also may designate more books for the shorter, seven-day loan period, which would also increase book circulation.

"We are getting to the point where we have a respectable collection that can stand three-week loans," Ms. Steiner said, adding that in the past, the small size of the library's collection has prohibited the longer loan period.

Ms. Steiner also asked the board to approve the purchase of 181 additional book shelves, each holding 25 books, at a possible cost of $13,000 to help alleviate overcrowding.

"THAT MANY NEW shelves probably would hold us almost two years," she said.

The over-crowding has resulted from the library's increased book buying in order to build up an adequate collection for serving the community.

"We have been buying the kinds of books patrons have been asking for," Ms. Steiner said. This also is evidenced by the library's increasing circulation figures, which have been at their highest level over this year.

The other factor contributing to the overcrowding, Ms. Steiner said, is the lack of storage facilities. "We don't have a storage area for duplicate books. The basement has a tendency to flood and they don't want to store anything down there," she said.

Library Director Kay Fleming said she thought the three-week loan period "has merit for both shelving and convenience."

THE LIBRARY board is expected to decide whether to go to the three-week loan period at its October meeting. At the same meeting, the board will also vote on purchasing the new shelving and some additional chairs which Ms. Steiner has asked for.

"It's apparent to all of us who work here (in the library) that there isn't enough places to sit down," Ms. Steiner said. She added that Illinois Library Assn. standards call for five seats per 1,000 persons served by a library.

Following the standards, she said the library should have 120 seats for the 24,000 population in the village. The library only has 88 seats, however.

Ms. Steiner has suggested two separate plans to the library board. Under one plan, 19 chairs would be bought for about $3,300, while the other plan calls for 28 chairs for about $5,400.

The librarian said she realizes the additional chairs will probably mean more noise in the library, but added they would mean more service too. She also said some of the "spaciousness" of the library interior would probably seem lost.

Schools sponsor gifted seminars

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 is offering a series of seminars for parents this month on the identification and development of programs for gifted students.

The district has received state funding to plan programs for pupils identified as exceptionally talented in creativity, intelligence, leadership, visual or the performing arts and athletics.

The seminars, which will be at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village, are an initial step to set up programs for gifted students in the district.

A program on leadership development will be conducted by Bill Stephen, gifted training coordinator in Dundee Unit Dist. 300, at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Intellectual giftedness will be discussed by Mary Lu Muffoletto, director of gifted programming in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, at 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 11.

A program on creativity will be presented by Marilyn Meisner, Northwest Suburban Area Service Center director for gifted children, at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 17.

Don Nylin, director of elementary education and gifted programs in Aurora Dist. 129, will discuss "Meeting the Needs of the Talented" at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 23.

Parents interested in attending one of the seminars should call their school principal Monday.

Kindergartners' early entry OK'd

Children who turn 5 years old between Dec. 1, 1975, and March 1, 1976, now can apply for kindergarten this school year in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education Tuesday approved allowing up to 30 youngsters enroll in kindergarten this year who will turn 5 after the Dec. 1 deadline. Previously, youngsters had to be 5 years old on or before Dec. 1, 1975, to enter kindergarten this year.

Supt. Roger Bardwell said the administration has received 27 requests from parents who want their children to enter kindergarten early. For a youngster to be admitted into the program, parents must write a letter to the district by Friday, explaining why they believe their child is ready for kindergarten.

THE CHILD AND parents will be interviewed by psychologists and kindergarten teachers at the school the child will attend to determine whether the child is mature enough to start kindergarten.

Bardwell said the program will not cost the district additional money this year, although the district will not receive state aid for children born after the Dec. 1 deadline. He said the district can place up to 30 youngsters into classes already scheduled because applications have been received proportionately throughout the district.

'Radical', 'company' unions court police

by STIRLING MORITA

Two members of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Combined Counties Police Assn. is a bit radical.

To John Flood, CCPA president, the FOP is too much like a "company" union — too much a part of the establishment.

Some members of the local FOP chapters have indicated they worry about the reputation of police when they hear of job actions by their brethren. They are quick to point out, when seeking collective bargaining rights, the FOP has a no-strike philosophy.

Flood, CCPA founder, compares his union to a Rolls-Royce and the FOP to a Volkswagen when it comes to police-labor relations. Flood says when a policeman has ridden in the luxury car, he never wants to go back to the "Bug."

"SURE, I'M A radical," Flood says. "We're a controversial organization, because we're an action organization."

Joseph Vertuno, president of the state FOP lodge, explains, "Sometimes, you can catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

Of 10 police departments in the Northwest suburbs, those in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg are members of FOP while those in Wheeling, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect are in the CCPA fold. Palatine, formerly CCPA-oriented, does not acknowledge either union.

A move by several members of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept. to start a CCPA chapter more than three years ago was blunted when controversy broke out among the police chief, mayor, aldermen and some policemen.

The two organizations are the only ones available locally to police. In Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, FOP chapters are seeking official recognition from village officials.

FOP CHAPTER presidents emphasize they joined the organization because it is a fraternal order.

Sgt. Charles Poellien, president of the Rolling Meadows FOP chapter,

'1776' to be shown at Elk Grove High

The film "1776" will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Elk Grove High School, Elk Grove Boulevard and Arlington Heights Road.

An admission fee of $1 will be charged, with the money to be used to sponsor "The Renaissance," arts fair in May. Senior citizens will be admitted free to the film, which is a musical re-enactment of the story behind the Declaration of Independence.

The Humanities Division of the high school is sponsoring the film.

says "As far as we're concerned, it's (FOP) more of a professional organization. We've heard nothing good about CCPA. It (FOP) is more professional in the way it's run. They don't have a bunch of radicals ready to storm the establishment."

Patrolman Richard Akerman, Hoffman Estates, FOP lodge president, said, "We're a fraternal organization — nationwide. We don't believe in striking on negotiations and endangering the safety of the public."

An officer in the Schaumburg FOP lodge, Patrolman James Kuzel, explained, "We have a two-fold commitment to the man in blue and to the people he serves as well. We're a community-minded organization."

Flood points out CCPA also is involved in community activities, such as sponsoring sports teams or contributing to charities, but such controversial actions as this year's uniform strike in Skokie grab headlines.

FLOOD STARTED the union in 1969 while serving on the Wheeling Police Dept. "because we needed a voice." He said he went to the FOP, and "they didn't give us anything."

Municipal administrators are more afraid of CCPA, Flood noted. "Police, by and large, are scared to organize. They're scared to come to us, and that their administrators won't like it."

Some policemen have wanted to meet secretly with CCPA officials in forest preserves, he added. "They (administrators) know we're a strong organization. We have a militant reputation because we stood up and fought. We're not beggars," he said.

"There are two things working against us — fear and lack of knowledge on the policeman's part about negotiations," Flood said.

Flood said he would not advocate a police strike in a major city like Chicago. He said all the fears about chaos resulting from a strike are generated by politicians.

IN A SUBURB, supervisory personnel and Sheriff's police could combine to put more men on the street than before the strike, he said.

"We don't like to strike. We don't like job action, but what do you do when they say no to collective bargaining?" Flood added.

He noted CCPA's reputation has gained invitations for union officials to lecture about police-labor relations to university and International Assn. of Chiefs of Police forums.

"We're the only true functioning (police) organization in the State of Illinois. We have the economics, the staff, the expertise and the experience to negotiate for police departments," Flood said.

Vertuno said the FOP is more acceptable to municipal officials because they would rather deal with "their own people."

"It's just a matter of getting them to sit down and talk to us and get what we're looking for," Vertuno said.

STATE FOP officials have entered negotiations when both municipal officials and policemen reach an impasse. "I can be militant when I want, but I was justified on each action," Vertuno said.

He explained the solution to salary negotiations depends not on the right to strike, but on "compulsory, binding arbitration." Vertuno noted some of the departments have gotten what they wanted without a strike. So far, 33 of the more than 90 lodges in the state now have contracts.

The organization, established in 1915, now has more than 130,000 members in 44 states. It lobbies for police-related laws in state legislatures and on a national level.

"Its reputation also is that it is not a union, but a professional police organization made up solely of full-time law enforcement officers," Vertuno said. "It is an organization of action, but with a great deal of integrity. It fights for the police officer and the betterment of law enforcement, but maintains its dignity."

2 suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian center

by WANDALYN RICE

Two men were hospitalized Wednesday with suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

A 39-year-old Schaumburg resident was reported in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A 29-year-old from south-suburban Bollingbrook was listed in good condition and may be discharged within the next few days.

Hospital officials, who did not identify the men, said further tests are needed to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

Hospital officials said they do not know where the Schaumburg man contracted the disease. Most victims of the disease in Cook County have been residents of the southern suburbs.

OFFICIALS OF THE Illinois Dept. of Public Health said the two men's names were among 17 added Wednesday to the list of suspected or confirmed encephalitis cases. Ten of the new cases are in Cook County, but only one of them has been confirmed. The newly confirmed case is in Harvey. Other new cases were reported in Berwyn, Oak Lawn, Blue Island and Chicago.

The total number of cases reported statewide in the current outbreak is 107, with 73 in Cook County. A total of 21 cases, 10 in Cook County, has been confirmed. Blood tests running 10 days apart are required to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

In other developments in the epidemic, a team of seven specialists from the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., arrived in Chicago Wednesday to help state health officials look for the source of the disease.

The team will collect and classify birds and mosquitoes in an attempt to locate the disease source. Encephalitis is transmitted from birds to human beliefs through mosquito bites.

Dr. Mark Lepper, head of a state task force on the disease, said five areas in the state have been identified as centers of the disease.

The areas are:

- Bollingbrook, Park Forest South and the southern end of Will County.
- Peoria and Tazewell counties.
- Madison and St. Clair counties.
- Champaign and Macon counties.
- Wayne, Richland, Jefferson and Clay counties.

County mosquito abatement districts have stepped up their anti-mosquito programs. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows have scheduled additional mosquito-spraying programs.

Symptoms of the disease include headache, high fever and mental confusion. Most victims recover spontaneously, but in serious cases the disease can result in coma, brain damage and death.

Teachers' pact remains unsettled in Dist. 211

A teachers' strike in High School Dist. 211 is still uncertain following a six-hour negotiating session between teachers' union officials and members of the board of education Wednesday.

The two groups met with a federal mediator but had not reached a settlement when the meeting concluded Wednesday afternoon. Richard Zweiback, professional negotiator for the board, said he "remains optimistic" for a settlement and added the two sides are "very close" to an agreement.

The board scheduled a closed session Wednesday night to discuss negotiations but had no public statement other than that another session is scheduled with the mediator at 9 a.m. Monday.

The governing board of the High School Dist. 211 Teachers' Assn. also scheduled a meeting Wednesday night to decide whether it will ask teachers to vote for a strike. George Stewart, president, said the governing board did discuss a strike vote but declined to comment on whether a decision had been made.

DURING A MASS meeting last week, teachers voted overwhelmingly in favor of plans for picketing, leafleting and work stoppage, which would go into effect if their demands are not met by the board.

Zweiback and Stewart said Wednesday the mediator advised them not to discuss specific negotiation issues with the press.

The board's last reported offer was for a two-year contract, calling for a base salary of $10,000 plus a $300 across-the-board increase for teachers at the lower end of the salary schedule and $400 for teachers at the top of the schedule for the first year. During the second year, the base salary would be $10,350 plus $250 and $350 increases.

Teachers are asking for a $10,100 base and $300 and $400 increases the first year and a $10,400 base and $300 and $400 increases the second year. The base salary is now $9,650.

Teachers are also asking for:

- A maternity leave clause to conform to recent court rulings, giving pregnant teachers the option of taking a long-term leave of absence without pay or a short-term sick leave with pay.

- Ranking head librarians in the same category with department chairman.
- A district-paid dental insurance program for teachers and their families.
- An association leave clause which would allow union officials time off from teaching for union work. The union would pay for a substitute teacher to replace the union official.
- A guarantee of minimum class size.

Fire, police leaders laud village recognition

by TONI GINETTI

Leaders of the Hoffman Estates firefighters union and police department Fraternal Order of Police are calling Tuesday's village board decision to recognize both groups as collective bargaining agents a "significant" step for the departments.

Richard Cordova, president of the Hoffman Estates Professional Firefighters Assn. Local 2061, and Richard Akerman, president of FOP Lodge 40, Wednesday hailed the board's decision, but both questioned a clause in the agreement which limits the time in which contract bargaining talks can be held.

The clause restricts upcoming bargaining talks to a four-month period from Jan. 1 to April 30. No provisions are stated on what action would be taken if contract agreements are not reached by the deadline, but both the FOP and firefighters' union are prohibited from calling strikes, work slowdowns or work stoppages.

"What happens if we don't settle by April 30?" Akerman asked. "This happened the last time. We reached an impasse, but so what? I'm leery of that phraseology."

DESPITE THE clause, the two presidents said the action means a major victory for the groups. They added that preparation of contract proposals for 1976 have already begun.

"It was one small step for the village and one giant leap for the FOP," Akerman said Wednesday. "Obviously it will be a stepping stone for the FOP."

"We weren't completely satisfied, but we feel it's a step in the door and if everyone is honest in negotiating, it will work," Cordova said.

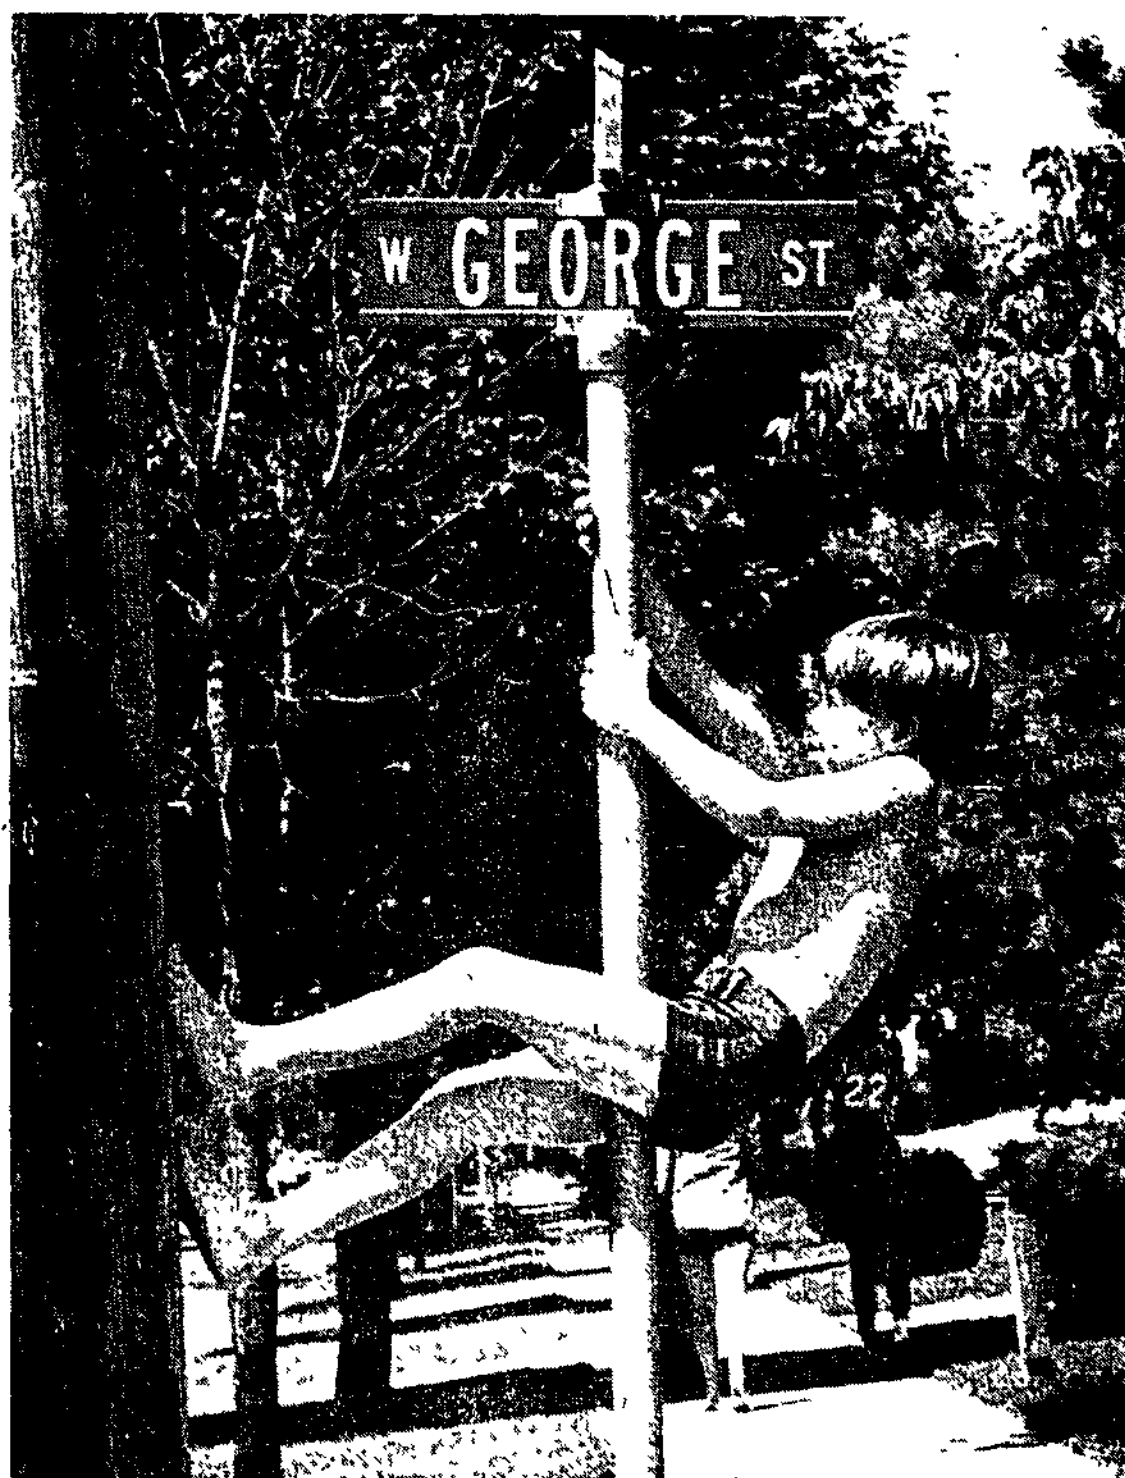

He added the firefighters will "definitely" have a contract proposal ready to present to the village by Nov. 1. That date was set by the village as part of six conditions of collective bargaining approval.

Among the conditions were the no-strike clause, the negotiating time limit and restrictions limiting membership in both groups to ranks below lieutenant.

Recognition of the two groups as collective bargaining agents is expected to come officially Sept. 16. Village officials agreed Tuesday to draft a resolution authorizing the recognition.

The action will make official a village policy which gave verbal recognition to the FOP for the past five years.

FOR THE PAST two years, the FOP and village have failed to agree on salaries, but no action was taken (Continued on Page 4)

Plane crash kills 2

by LUISA GINETTI

A single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a soybean field in Wheeling Township Wednesday shortly after takeoff from Palwaukee Airport, killing both persons aboard.

Killed in the crash were Eugene McDaniel, 11010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo. The county coroner's office said it had not determined which victim was the pilot.

Jack Harrington, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the cause of the crash had not been determined. A witness to the crash said the four-passenger private plane made what appeared to be a normal takeoff at 2:49 p.m., turned left and then nosed up and crashed in the field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling Township, Harrington said.

Harrington said the plane made no contact with the Palwaukee tower before the crash, but investigators believe the plane's engine stalled. Weather conditions were apparently not a factor in the crash, officials indicated.

The witness, whose helicopter was on an instructional flight at the time, landed next to the downed plane, and the pilot dragged one of the victims about 10 feet from the plane, County Sheriff's police said. Shortly after the victim was removed from the wreckage, the smoldering plane burst in flames, officials said.

OFFICIALS AT THE scene said both men apparently were killed instantly in the crash. One man was burned beyond recognition, and the other was mutilated severely, officials said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration, the state police, the coroner's office and the county Sheriff's office were on the scene for nearly three hours before the bodies were removed.

Harrington said he did not know the plane's destination, but an official at Palwaukee said the plane was not based at the airport and had only landed a short time before.

The plane had taken off from Dacy Airport in Harvard, Ill., about 40 miles northwest of Wheeling, officials there said. A Dacy airport spokesman said the plane took off from Dacy about 1 p.m. for Palwaukee on an apparent business trip. He added the plane probably was returning to Dacy when it crashed.

The spokesman said McDaniel and Medlinger were friends, and McDaniel was a flying instructor.

Wheeling Fire Dept. trucks were among the first rescue units on the scene and extinguished the fire. Paramedics also were on the scene but left shortly after the victims were pronounced dead.

TWO PRIESTS FROM nearby St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling, arrived at the site about an hour after the crash. Father Donald Simpson said he and Father Thomas Moran administered last rites to the victims.

CHARRED REMAINS of a single-engine Piper Comanche plane lie sprawled in a soybean field at 1114 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling Township, after the plane crashed on takeoff Wednesday from Palwaukee Airport. The pilot and his passenger were killed in the crash which occurred about 2:50 p.m.

Radical company unions seek acceptance by police

by STIRLING MORITA

Two members of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Combined Counties Police Assn. is a bit radical.

To John Flood, CCPA president, the FOP is too much like a "company" union — too much a part of the establishment.

Some members of the local FOP chapters have indicated they worry about the reputation of police when they hear of job actions by their brethren. They are quick to point out, when seeking collective bargaining rights, the FOP has a no-strike philosophy.

Flood, CCPA founder, compares his union to a Rolls-Royce and the FOP to a Volkswagen when it comes to police-labor relations. Flood says when a policeman has ridden in the luxury car, he never wants to go back to the "Bug."

"SURE, I'M A radical," Flood says. "We're a controversial organization, because we're an action organization."

Joseph Vertuno, president of the state FOP lodge, explains, "Sometimes, you can catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

Of 10 police departments in the Northwest suburbs, those in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg are members of FOP while those in Wheeling, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect are in the CCPA fold. Palatine, formerly CCPA-oriented, does not acknowledge either union.

A move by several members of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept. to start a CCPA chapter more than three years ago was blunted when controversy broke out among the police chief, mayor, aldermen and some policemen.

The two organizations are the only ones available locally to police. In Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, FOP chapters are seeking official recognition from village officials.

FOP CHAPTER presidents emphasize they joined the organization because it is a fraternal order.

Sgt. Charles Poellien, president of the Rolling Meadows FOP chapter, says "As far as we're concerned, it's (FOP) more of a professional organization. We've heard nothing good about CCPA. It (FOP) is more professional in the way it's run. They don't have a bunch of radicals ready to storm the establishment."

Patrolman Richard Akerman, Hoffman Estates, FOP lodge president, said, "We're a fraternal organization — nationwide. We don't believe in striking or negotiations and endangering the safety of the public."

An officer in the Schaumburg FOP lodge, Patrolman James Kuzel, explained, "We have a two-fold commitment to the man in blue and to the people he serves as well. We're a community-minded organization."

Flood points out CCPA also is involved in community activities, such as sponsoring sports teams or contributing to charities, but such controversial actions as this year's uniform strike in Skokie grab headlines.

FLOOD STARTED the union in 1969 while serving on the Wheeling Police Dept. "because we needed a voice." He said he went to the FOP, and "they didn't give us anything."

Municipal administrators are more afraid of CCPA, Flood noted. "Police, by and large, are scared to organize. They're scared to come to us, and that their administrators won't like it."

Some policemen have wanted to meet secretly with CCPA officials in forest preserves, he added. "They (administrators) know we're a strong organization. We have a militant reputation because we stood up and fought. We're not beggars," he said.

"There are two things working against us — fear and lack of knowledge on the policeman's part about negotiations," Flood said.

Flood said he would not advocate a police strike in a major city like Chicago. He said all the fears about chaos resulting from a strike are generated by politicians.

IN A SUBURB, supervisory personnel and Sheriff's police could combine to put more men on the street than before the strike, he said.

"We don't like to strike. We don't like job action, but what do you do when they say no to collective bargaining?" Flood added.

He noted CCPA's reputation has gained invitations for union officials to lecture about police-labor relations to university and International Assn. of Chiefs of Police forums.

"We're the only true functioning (police) organization in the State of Illinois. We have the economics, the staff, the expertise and the experience to negotiate for police departments," Flood said.

Vertuno said the FOP is more acceptable to municipal officials because they would rather deal with "their own people."

"It's just a matter of getting them to sit down and talk to us and get what we're looking for," Vertuno said.

STATE FOP officials have entered negotiations when both municipal officials and policemen reach an impasse. "I can be militant when I want, but I was justified on each action," Vertuno said.

He explained the solution to salary negotiations depends not on the right, to strike, but on "compulsory, binding arbitration." Vertuno noted some of the departments have gotten what they wanted without a strike. So far, 35 of the more than 90 lodges in the state now have contracts.

The organization, established in 1915, now has more than 130,000 members in 44 states. It lobbies for police-related laws in state legislatures and on a national level.

"Its reputation also is that it is not a union, but a professional police organization made up solely of full-time law enforcement officers," Vertuno said. "It is an organization of action, but with a great deal of integrity. It fights for the police officer and the betterment of law enforcement, but maintains its dignity."

1976 taxes to go up $27 a home

Village property taxes for Hoffman Estates homeowners next year will rise an average of $27 on most homes.

The tax hike was authorized following village board approval Tuesday of the 1975 tax levy ordinance.

The ordinance sets the village tax rate at about $1.74 per $100 assessed valuation, or about 27 cents per $100 more than this year's tax rate.

At the same time residents will be required to pay $3.50 more for village vehicle stickers next year following board approval of an increase in automobile sticker costs from $6.50 to $10.

The action will mean an estimated $15,200 in added revenue for the village.

A TAX BREAK will come, however, when the village formally votes to end the 5 per cent utility tax which residents have been paying since Jan. 1.

The board agreed to rescind the tax effective Dec. 31 because the levy has collected enough to pay for a $350,000 fire department debt. The tax had been levied specifically to pay the debt and officials said the charge would be eliminated as soon as the debt was wiped out.

Most homeowners will pay $20 to $50 this year for the 5 per cent levy.

A vote on ending the utility tax is expected at the next board meeting Sept. 16.

Approval of the village property tax and vehicle sticker increases came despite Trustee Ralph Lyster's dissenting vote. Lyster opposed the sticker increase, saying he would prefer to see the property tax rate cover all necessary cost hikes.

"I ABHORE putting any more burden on our taxpayers than they already have," he said. "Instead of increasing our vehicle stickers, we would be doing a better service if we would increase it all in the property taxes. They are deductible but the stickers are not."

But Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter said the money from vehicle stickers is collected immediately while a one year lag exists between the time real estate taxes are collected and the time they are distributed to municipalities.

She added a bill awaiting Gov. Daniel Walker's signature could change the way assessed valuations are determined in Cook County and thus change the amount of tax money a municipality receives. She said the vehicle sticker money would be assured to the village even if the assessment procedure changes.

The village property tax is one rate which makes up the total property tax bill. Overall increases or decreases in a homeowner's tax bill depend on rate changes in all taxing districts and in the assessed valuation of a home.

Fire, police leaders laud village recognition

by the FOP because of the village's no-strike policy.

The firefighters have attempted for several years to gain official recognition of their union, first from the former Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District and then from the village.

Both groups will be restricted to discussing wages, fringe benefits and working conditions in contract talks.

Akerman called the recognition "the professional way" for public employees to negotiate. "The FOP does not want strikes, so if we can be recognized and do it officially, this is the way we want to go."

Ironically, the village board's decision Tuesday came the same day a preliminary court hearing had been scheduled into the 1973 firings by Village Pres. Virginia Hayter of 28 public works employees.

The 28 were fired after staging a one-day strike over a contract dispute.

The hearing had been set before Judge Emmett Morrissey, but was rescheduled to Oct. 2 because the judge was absent Tuesday.

The court action stems from a lawsuit filed by the fired employees.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said Tuesday he has not been approached by other village employees seeking collective bargaining rights.

Gold jewelry stolen

Police were told four gold bracelets were taken from a jewelry display case in the men's section of the store after a lock apparently was picked.

Hoffman Estates police overwhelmed the firefighters 24-9 Monday in their annual Labor Day softball battle at Chino Park.

The victory marked the second consecutive year the police have won. Previously the firefighters had dominated the series.

Conant operators keep on smiling

"Good morning, Conant High School."

That's how the day begins for Barbara Seelhammer and Betty Schecht who man the switchboard at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates.

The caller may pose any number of questions, ranging from the price of gym socks to the beginning date of Christmas vacation. These two women almost always have the answer. No matter whether it's the first or the 100th call of the day, their responses are always bright and fresh.

Perhaps it's because they really enjoy their jobs and consider them more fun than work. Although they could earn higher salaries in private industry, wild horses couldn't drag them away from all the commotion in Conant's main office. Mrs. Seelhammer has been operating Conant's pipeline to the world for six years, and Mrs. Schecht, who also serves as secretary to the athletic director, has worked at Conant eight years.

"THE PEOPLE are fantastic," said Mrs. Seelhammer. Almost in the same breath, Mrs. Schecht adds, "That's why we're here so long."

The students are one of the main reasons the job is so magnetic, and both women add with smiles that working in the high school keeps them young. They have both seen their own children walk the halls at Conant.

Almost everything that happens at Conant sooner or later filters down to the main office and ends up on their desks. They sell tickets for school events and take reservations for ski-club outings. A few years ago, when Conant competed in the Sweet Sixteen basketball tournament, the women donned hats, wore buttons and waved banners to show their support. Every year, they measure seniors for caps and gowns, and as a result, they are honored guests at the annual senior breakfast.

Even after graduation, the students drop in at the office and say "hi." "They bring their babies — they bring their wedding pictures," said Mrs. Seelhammer.

To some students, the women in the office are like part of the family. The freshmen are "darling," said Mrs. Seelhammer. "We have to lean over the counter to see them, but when they leave as seniors, we have to look up at the ceiling."

WORKING IN the main office has educational advantages. "We have all the knowledge here at our fingertips," said Mrs. Schecht. If they need a recipe, they talk to a home economics teacher. If they feel their plants are getting too much sun, they talk to the horticulture teacher. If they are having a problem raising a child, they chat with the school psychologist, and they never have to read a daily paper, because the social studies teachers keep them up on current events.

"It's like working in an encyclopedia," said Mrs. Seelhammer.

The most impressive thing about these two women is they always seem to be at school. Mrs. Schecht opens the board at 7:15 a.m., and Mrs. Seelhammer closes it at 4:45 p.m. Even in an emergency, they never leave their posts. When the fire alarm sounds, the building is evacuated, and they are left behind. When classes are canceled because of heavy snow, they trudge to school. "We're like the mailman. We come through," said Mrs. Schecht.

MINDING THE STORE. There are all sorts of school tick. Two of them are, from left, Betty Schecht and Barbara Seelhammer, who operate the switchboard in the main office at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates.

The two women are equipped to handle all sorts of minor catastrophy. On a snow day, "It's unbelievable," said Mrs. Schecht. "The phone doesn't stop ringing for the first two hours. They don't know whether to come or not to come," she said.

EVERY NOW and then, the bell system, which signals the end of classes, goes out of order, and the women have to ring the bell 26 times through the intercom system. "If you don't ring the bell on the minute, then the intercom lights up, because all the teachers are calling down," said Mrs. Seelhammer. "Two thousand kids are being held captive in their classes."

Day-in, day-out, the board lights up, someone needs to be paged, a teacher has a question, someone is here to see the principal, a student needs a ticket to the game, and Mom wants to know whether Johnny can have Tuesday off to go to the dentist. It takes patience and a good memory. As Mrs. Seelhammer puts it, "kindness turns away wrath."

"It wouldn't be a good job for someone who doesn't like lots of people or commotion," said Mrs. Schecht. Mrs. Seelhammer explains, "We like this kind of work. Neither one of us wants to work for just one person. We like everyone."

Park taxes to remain the same

The Hoffman Estates Park Board has approved a $436,000 1975 tax levy ordinance which is expected to keep taxes at their current level, Board Pres. George Rush said Wednesday.

The ordinance, which is based on a figure of $130 million assessed valuation for the district, will mean that residents will continue to pay about 33 cents per $100 assessed valuation. For a house assessed at $10,000, residents would pay $33.50 in park taxes.

Rush said the park board anticipates the income from taxes to be less than the $436,000 figure.

The tax, which will be collected in 1976, is only a part of the village's property taxes.

Rush said some of the measures to cut $39,000 from the current budget include:

- A probable reduction in the number of maintenance workers from seven to four or five. One part-time worker will be leaving in September, Rush said.

- A cut in grass cutting services. Current cutting is done on a 7-day cycle, Rush said, but this may have to be cut back to a 21-day cycle.

- Elimination of all educational and conference expenses for board commissioners and a reduction from $1,500 to $500 per year in these expenses for the park director.

Rush said there was no talk of a possible referendum to increase the ceiling on the district's tax rate at the Tuesday meeting, but two meetings were scheduled for the board and community groups in the near future to discuss the possibility.

Roselle station. That station, however, is overcrowded and has outgrown its parking facilities.

Village officials have called for the railroad and the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to approve construction of a Schaumburg station to ease the overcrowding and to serve local commuters.

Officials already have sought the mass transit district's support as well as support from the municipal conference, but there has been no response.

IN A RELATED matter, Dietrich said the Federal Aviation Administration has not yet responded to the village's proposal to complete a study on village purchase of Schaumburg Airport on W. Irving Park Road.

The FAA and the Illinois Dept. of Aeronautics must approve the final portion of the study, because state and federal funds are being used to finance a major portion of the $56,000 study.

Dietrich said a copy of the village board's authorization to continue the study must be sent to the FAA and state Dept. of Aeronautics before the agencies can act.

Village board wrapup

Firemen's wives form aid group

Wives of Hoffman Estates firefighters have formed a women's auxiliary whose aim will be to inform the public on fire prevention and safety.

The group also will help victims of fires by supplying emergency clothing, food and one-day lodging when possible.

Proceeds from a golf outing planned this week by the village plan commission and zoning board will go to the auxiliary.

The group Tuesday presented honorary memberships to Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Trustee Jeanne Pavay and the wives of other trustees and village administrators.

Legion post may form soon

A Hoffman Estates area American Legion post may be formed soon if enough persons can be found to join the post.

Representatives from the Legion's 9th District covering the Northwest suburban area told village officials Tuesday 15 veterans from the World Wars, Korean and Vietnamese conflicts or women from the military services are needed to start a post.

The number 1939 is available for a post number, and village officials suggested using the number because it represents the year of the village's incorporation.

Firehouse tours Oct. 4-5

Open houses will be held Oct. 4 and 5 at the village's two newest fire stations on Moon Lake and Freeman boulevards.

The public will be invited to attend afternoon activities on those days, including tours of the stations, dedications and paramedic demonstrations.

YMCA week starts Sept. 14

The week of Sept. 14 has been proclaimed Twinbrook YMCA week in Hoffman Estates. Mrs. Hayter issued the proclamation Tuesday and asked residents to support the organization.

2 to attend conference

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer and Assistant Village Mgr. John Dixon will attend the annual International City Management Assn. conference in Seattle, Washington from Sept. 28 to Oct. 2. They will be allowed to spend up to $800 each for the trip.

Local businessmen get promotions

Commonwealth Edison Co. has named Donald J. Turskey, 1300 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg, supervisor of the company's customer service operations at the Aurora office.

Turskey joined Edison in 1967, and edited the company's employee magazine before holding other staff and service supervisory positions. He is a graduate of Northern Illinois University.

Gerald D. Underhill, Hoffman Estates, has been appointed general manager of the New Orleans restaurant division — a newly formed division of the Howard Johnson Co. The announcement was made by Armstrong A. Stambaugh Jr., executive vice president of the company.

Underhill joined the company in 1964, became a manager trainee in 1965, assistant manager in 1966, manager in 1967 and area manager in 1971 for the Missouri area. He has been the manager of restaurant operations in the Chicago division since 1974.

Donald C. Stadlag, 321 Hickory Ct., Schaumburg, has been named vice president of the Schaub Corp., Downers Grove.

Stadlag joined Magnetrol in 1971 as director of manufacturing. He holds bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Nebraska, and a master's degree from the University of California, Long Beach.

He is a member of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers, the American Institute of Industrial Engineers, and the American Production and Inventory Control Society. He also is a licensed amateur radio operator.

George R. Strange, Hoffman Estates resident and plant manager in F. W. Means & Company's Chicago Central Marketing Center, recently participated in the company's annual production managers meeting at Pheasant Run, St. Charles.

Eldon and Janet Street of Schaumburg, recently were awarded the Home Advisor Award of the W. T. Raleigh Co. for outstanding sales development.

A's Independent Raleigh distributors, Mr. and Mrs. Street are part of an international organization which has been serving family needs since 1889.

Fire station purchase approved

The plan to purchase a vacant Hoffman Estates fire station at 496 Hassel Rd. by the Schaumburg Township Library Board moved closer to completion Wednesday night.

The library board voted 6-1 to approve $124,092 for purchase of the facility and an additional $49,220 for interior design and remodeling. Also approved were the contracts and design plans of architects, Innerspace of Northbrook.

Board Pres. John Lucas said final approval and signing of the purchase contract would be conditional on approval of minor changes in the agreement by Hoffman Estates officials.

The purchase price is $9,000 less than the $133,000 in bonded indebtedness originally anticipated by the library board. However, the saving will be partially offset by a $6,220 increase in remodeling and furnishing costs.

ROBERT HUNTER, representative of Innerspace, said the increases were necessary to finance additional furniture and carpeting for the facility. Initially, plans were made to utilize library furniture from the old Palatine library, but Hunter said most of the furniture would not be suitable for use in the new facility. Carpeting was added for acoustical and insulation reasons, he said.

Hunter's plans call for the new branch to be decorated in red, yellow and blue, with green carpeting. A wood deck and dividing wall will visually section off the adult and children's book stacks from the rest of the library.

The design plan also calls for the current fire doors in the front of the building to be replaced with seven-foot transparent bubbles to let in outside light. The existing ceiling will be retained, and air-conditioning ducts will be painted and left exposed.

Hunter said every effort was made to eliminate the necessity of purchasing library furniture. He said most of the furniture, such as wood cubes and cylinders to hold albums and tapes, will be easy to make.

COMPLETION OF the branch remodeling, with the exception of the air-conditioning equipment, will take three months, Hunter said. He estimated the facility could be ready by mid-winter if remodeling is started soon.

The library acquired rights to purchase the station in July. The Hoffman Estates Park District also sought to buy the station, but the district said approval of a referendum would be required before the district could ensure payment.

The village closed the station in June, because it can fund the operation of only three stations — the headquarters station on Moon Lake Boulevard; the new Freeman Boulevard station, serving the north end of the village, and the Flagstaff Street station.

Elgin man charged in weapons arrest

A 23-year-old Elgin man was charged with unlawful use of a weapon Wednesday after Schaumburg police found a .38-caliber revolver in his car during a search.

Robert L. Norwood was charged on four counts after he was questioned near the rear of the Wiseway Plaza, Wise Road west of Springguth Road.

Police stopped Norwood because they suspected his car had been stolen. They later learned the car was not stolen, but Norwood was charged with unlawful use of a weapon, no valid firearm permit, resisting arrest and criminal damage to property after he kicked the door of the police squad car.

Bond was set at $1,000, and an Oct. 1 court date in Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court has been set.

Hackney recently visited Honolulu as a crewmember aboard the Campbell, homeported at Portland, Mass. . . . Pvt. Thomas Blake graduated from recruit training at the Marine Corps depot, San Diego.

Police arrest pair after traffic stop

Two men were arrested on various charges after one of them told a Schaumburg patrolman during a traffic stop that plastic bags in their car contained marijuana, police said.

Marc W. Elirich, 33, of Bensenville, the driver of the car, was charged Tuesday with speeding and possession of marijuana. The passenger, Richard Z. Chelminski, 32, Addison, was charged with possession of marijuana and unlawful use of a weapon.

Police stopped Elirich's car about 10:30 p.m. at Schaumburg and Plum Grove roads, police said. The weapons charge stemmed from a blackjack Chelminski attempted to hide from police, authorities said.

The two were released after posting $1,000 bond each, pending appearances Oct. 8 in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

2 suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian center

by WANDALYN RICE

Two men were hospitalized Wednesday with suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

A 36-year-old Schaumburg resident was reported in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A 29-year-old from south-suburban Bolingbrook was listed in good condition and may be discharged within the next few days.

Hospital officials, who did not identify the men, said further tests are needed to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

Hospital officials said they do not know where the Schaumburg man contracted the disease. Most victims of the disease in Cook County have been residents of the southern suburbs.

OFFICIALS OF the Illinois Dept. of Public Health said the two men's names were among 17 added Wednesday to the list of suspected or confirmed encephalitis cases. Ten of the new cases are in Cook County, but only one of them has been confirmed. The newly confirmed case is in Harvey. Other new cases were reported in Berwyn, Oak Lawn, Blue Island and Chicago.

The total number of cases reported statewide in the current outbreak is 107, with 73 in Cook County. A total of 21 cases, 10 in Cook County, has been confirmed. Blood tests running 10 days apart are required to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

In other developments in the epidemic, a team of seven specialists from the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., arrived in Chicago Wednesday to help state health officials look for the source of the disease.

The team will collect and classify birds and mosquitoes in an attempt to locate the disease source. Encephalitis is transmitted from birds to human beings through mosquito bites.

Dr. Mark Lepper, head of a state task force on the disease, said five areas in the state have been identified as centers of the disease.

The areas are:

- Bolingbrook, Park Forest South and the southern end of Will County.
- Peoria and Tazewell counties.
- Madison and St. Clair counties.
- Champaign and Macon counties.
- Wayne, Richland, Jefferson and Clay counties.

County mosquito abatement districts have stepped up their anti-mosquito programs. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows have scheduled additional mosquito-spraying programs.

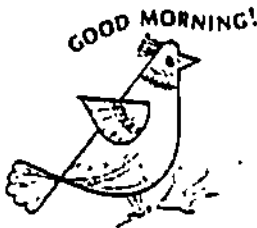

Symptoms of the disease include headache, high fever and mental confusion. Most victims recover spontaneously, but in serious cases the disease can result in coma, brain damage and death.

More budget cuts weighed

Officials' travel faces committee ax

Rolling Meadows city officials who attend the annual Illinois Municipal League conference next month in Chicago probably will have to make do with less money than before for expenses.

In past years, local taxpayers have footed bills amounting to thousands of dollars for officials and their spouses to participate in the four-day conference at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. Besides business meetings, the conference also includes a grand ball, banquet and cocktail parties.

Allowances of up to $300 per couple, which previously were granted officials and their wives to take in the social activities and stay overnight at the hotel instead of commuting back and forth to the conference each day.

All that may change this year, however, if the city council approves a recommendation being considered by the council's finance committee.

FACED WITH a deficit of about $300,000 in the current municipal budget, the committee is attempting to cut corners wherever possible, and the ax is likely to come down hard on conference expenses.

In an informal discussion this week, Ald. Fredrick Jacobson, 5th, chairman of the finance committee, recommended restricting conference allowances to $25 per day for officials, another $25 per day if their spouses go along plus the $65 registration fee.

The reduction would mean hotel expenses would have to come out of the officials' pockets instead of city funds. Ald. Kenneth Reitzke, 8th, said he was reluctant to cut the expenses to the point that officials might be unable to afford to take their spouses to the conference.

"I can understand the need to cut this conference is about the only compensation many of our wives get for all the nights we spend at meetings leaving them home alone," he said.

The committee will discuss the conference again at its next meeting scheduled for Sept. 15.

Bicentennial committee idea meeting Sept. 22

The Rolling Meadows Bicentennial committee is inviting representatives of community organizations to a meeting Sept. 22 to discuss ideas for local activities.

Harry O'Brien, executive director of the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the seven-member committee, said letters have been sent to the park district, PTA's, civic groups, churches and businesses asking them to attend the meeting to share any plans they may already have made for Bicentennial events.

The purpose of the meeting, he said, is to avoid duplicating activities and to determine if there is interest in developing community-wide projects.

"We hope to work with organizations as a steering and coordinating committee," O'Brien said. "There may be some things that could be done cooperatively."

POSSIBLE PROJECTS discussed by the committee include building a bandshell in one of the parks or constructing a bicycle path along Salt Creek to link schools in the area with the nearby Rolling Meadows Public Library.

"These are just ideas and projects like this could be costly, but we'd like to find out what people think," he said.

Some funds for large-scale projects may be available on a matching grant basis from the Illinois Bicentennial Commission. O'Brien said the committee intends to apply this week for recognition by the commission which is required for funding eligibility.

A representative of the state commission also will be invited to the Sept. 22 meeting to talk about statewide activities scheduled this year and to provide information on the types of projects other communities have undertaken.

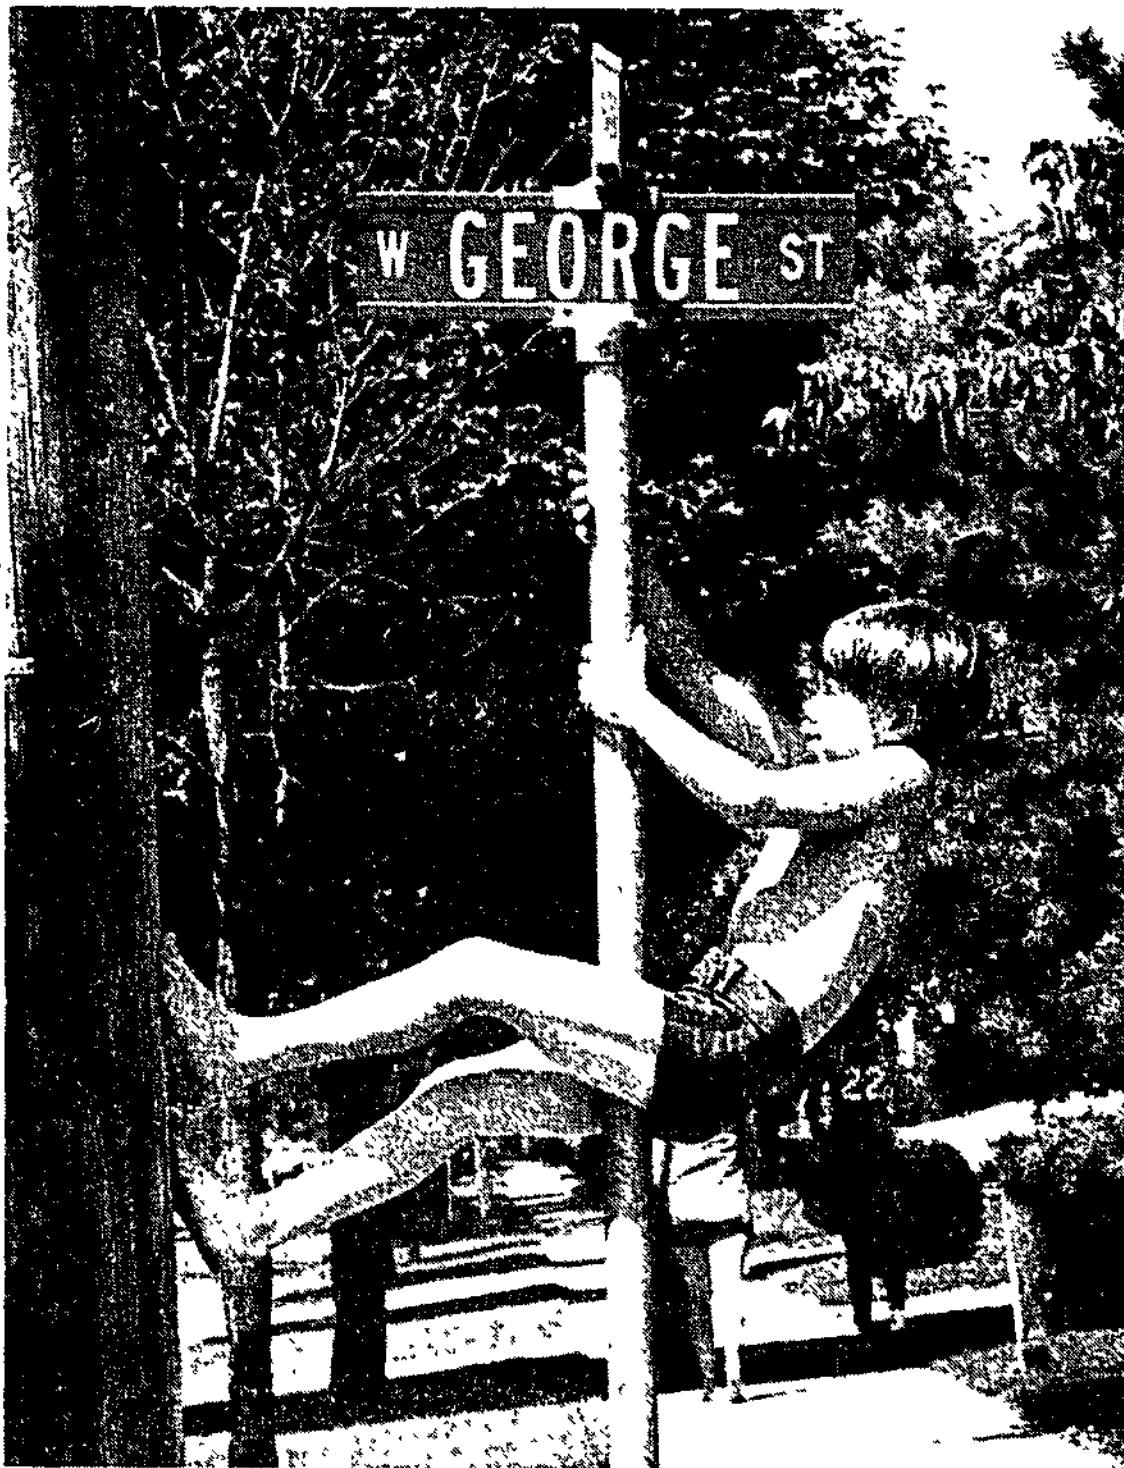

ROLLING MEADOWS was one of the last Northwest suburban communities to form a Bicentennial committee and O'Brien said he feels the delay may hamper plans for next summer's Fourth of July celebration of the Bicentennial year.

If other communities have already scheduled most of the "big name" marching bands and drum and bugle corps in the area, the committee may plan a different kind of parade, he said.

"We've talked about maybe an old-fashioned type of parade without all the fancy hoop-la, just community organizations making up their own units and marching," he said. "A parade like that could be a lot of fun for everybody."

O'Brien urged any groups who do not receive invitations to the upcoming meeting to attend, along with individuals who have suggestions for any type of Bicentennial activity.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the city council chambers at city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

Plane crash kills 2

by LUISA GINETTI

A single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a soybean field in Wheeling Township Wednesday shortly after takeoff from Palwaukee Airport, killing both persons aboard.

Killed in the crash were Eugene McDaniel, 41010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo. The county coroner's office said it had not determined which victim was the pilot.

Jack Harrington, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the cause of the crash had not been determined. A witness to the crash said the four-passenger private plane made what appeared to be a normal takeoff at 2:40 p.m., turned left and then nosed up and crashed in the field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling Township, Harrington said.

Harrington said the plane made no contact with the Palwaukee tower before the crash, but investigators believe the plane's engine stalled. Weather conditions were apparently not a factor in the crash, officials indicated.

The witness, whose helicopter was on an instructional flight at the time, landed next to the downed plane, and the pilot dragged one of the victims about 10 feet from the plane, County Sheriff's police said. Shortly after the victim was removed from the wreckage, the smoldering plane burst in flames, officials said.

OFFICIALS AT THE scene said both men apparently were killed instantly in the crash. One man was burned beyond recognition, and the other was mutilated severely, officials said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration, the state police, the coroner's office and the county Sheriff's office were on the scene for nearly three hours before the bodies were removed.

Harrington said he did not know the plane's destination, but an official at Palwaukee said the plane was not based at the airport and had only landed a short time before.

The plane had taken off from Dacy Airport in Harvard, Ill., about 40 miles northwest of Wheeling, officials there said. A Dacy airport spokesman said the plane took off from Dacy about 1 p.m. for Palwaukee on an apparent business trip. He added the plane probably was returning to Dacy when it crashed.

The spokesman said McDaniel and Medlinger were friends, and McDaniel was a flying instructor.

Wheeling Fire Dept. trucks were among the first rescue units on the scene and extinguished the fire. Paramedics also were on the scene but left shortly after the victims were pronounced dead.

TWO PRIESTS FROM nearby St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling, arrived at the site about an hour after the crash. Father Donald Simpson said he and Father Thomas Moran administered last rites to the victims.

CHARRED REMAINS of a single-engine Piper Comanche plane lie sprawled in a soybean field at 1114 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling Township, after the plane crashed on takeoff Wednesday from Palwaukee Airport. The pilot and his passenger were killed in the crash which occurred about 2:50 p.m.

GEORGE KEVORKIAN, 17, and Bill Kissano, 18, both of Chicago, wait grimly as divers search for the body of their friend, Jon Hoeschen, also of Chicago, who drowned Wednesday afternoon in a lake north of Wheeling. A diver is shown preparing to join the search.

Chicagoan falls off raft, drowns in lake mishap

A Chicago man drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming with friends in a lake north of Wheeling in unincorporated Lake County.

Companions identified the victim as Jon Hoeschen, 18. They said he was to enter DeVry Technical Institute, Chicago, this month.

Vernon Township firefighters, who recovered Hoeschen's body after a three-hour search, said the drowning was the second in two weeks at the lake.

The drowning occurred near Milwaukee Avenue about one-quarter mile north of Aptakisic Road.

HOESCHEN'S BODY was taken to Condell Memorial Hospital, Libertyville.

Bill Kissano, 18, of 5835 Higgins Rd., and George Kevorkian, 17, of 6228 Roscoe, both of Chicago, said Hoeschen drowned after apparently falling from an inflatable raft.

They described him as "not that good a swimmer."

The three and two other friends came to the lake early in the afternoon, and Hoeschen went off by himself to take his raft across the lake, they said.

Kissano said he and Kevorkian were swimming several hundred yards away when Hoeschen, "started yelling for help, and we thought he was goofing around at first."

HIS FRIENDS enlisted the help of Vernon Township firefighters, who were training in the area.

Chief Ted Tarr, Vernon fire chief, said divers from Grayslake, Lake Zurich, Libertyville and Countryside fire departments joined his department in the search.

Tarr said six persons have drowned in the lake in the last 2½ years.

An Elmwood Park woman, Hilda Vargas, 18, drowned there Aug. 24 while trying to swim to an island, said Lt. Louis Gnadt, of the Vernon fire department.

Radical company unions seek acceptance by police

by STIRLING MORITA

To members of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Combined Counties Police Assn. is a bit radical.

To John Flood, CCPA president, the FOP is too much like a "company" union — too much a part of the establishment.

Some members of the local FOP chapters have indicated they worry about the reputation of police when they hear of job actions by their brethren. They are quick to point out, when seeking collective bargaining rights, the FOP has a no-strike philosophy.

Flood, CCPA founder, compares his union to a Rolls-Royce and the FOP to a Volkswagen when it comes to police-labor relations. Flood says when a policeman has ridden in the luxury car, he never wants to go back to the "Bug."

"SURE, I'M A radical," Flood says. "We're a controversial organization, because we're an action organization."

Joseph Vertuno, president of the state FOP lodge, explains, "Sometimes, you can catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

Of 10 police departments in the Northwest suburbs, those in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Rolling

Meadows and Schaumburg are members of FOP while those in Wheeling, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect are in the CCPA fold. Palatine, formerly CCPA-oriented, does not acknowledge either union.

A move by several members of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept. to start a CCPA chapter more than three years ago was blunted when controversy broke out among the police chief, mayor, aldermen and some policemen.

The two organizations are the only ones available locally to police. In Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, FOP chapters are seeking official recognition from village officials.

FOP CHAPTER presidents emphasize they joined the organization because it is a fraternal order.

Sgt. Charles Poellien, president of the Rolling Meadows FOP chapter, says "As far as we're concerned, it's (FOP) more of a professional organization. We've heard nothing good about CCPA. It (FOP) is more professional in the way it's run. They don't have a bunch of radicals ready to storm the establishment."

Patrolman Richard Akerman, Hoffman Estates, FOP lodge president, said, "We're a fraternal organization — nationwide. We don't believe in striking on negotiations and endangering the safety of the public."

An officer in the Schaumburg FOP lodge, Patrolman James Kuzel, explained, "We have a two-fold commitment to the man in blue and to the people he serves as well. We're a community-minded organization."

Flood points out CCPA also is involved in community activities, such as sponsoring sports teams or contributing to charities, but such controversial actions as this year's uniform strike in Skokie grab headlines.

FLOOD STARTED the union in 1969 while serving on the Wheeling Police Dept. "because we needed a voice," he said. He went to the FOP, and "they didn't give us anything."

Municipal administrators are more afraid of CCPA, Flood noted. "Police, by and large, are scared to organize. They're scared to come to us, and that their administrators won't like it."

Some policemen have wanted to meet secretly with CCPA officials in forest preserves, he added. "They (administrators) know we're a strong organization. We have a militant reputation because we stood up and fought. We're not beggars," he said.

"There are two things working against us — fear and lack of knowledge on the policeman's part about negotiations," Flood said.

Flood said he would not advocate a police strike in a major city like Chicago. He said all the fears about chaos resulting from a strike are generated by politicians.

IN A SUBURB, supervisory personnel and Sheriff's police could combine to put more men on the street than before the strike, he said.

"We don't like to strike. We don't like job action, but what do you do when they say no to collective bargaining?" Flood added.

He noted CCPA's reputation has gained invitations for union officials to lecture about police-labor relations to university and International Assn. of Chiefs of Police forums.

"We're the only true functioning (police) organization in the State of Illinois. We have the economics, the staff, the expertise and the experience to negotiate for police departments," Flood said.

Vertuno said the FOP is more acceptable to municipal officials because they would rather deal with "their own people."

"It's just a matter of getting them to sit down and talk to us and get what we're looking for," Vertuno said.

STATE FOP officials have entered negotiations when both municipal officials and policemen reach an impasse. "I can be militant when I want, but I was justified on each action," Vertuno said.

He explained the solution to salary negotiations depends not on the right, to strike, but on "compulsory, binding arbitration." Vertuno noted some of the departments have gotten what they wanted without a strike. So far, 35 of the more than 90 lodges in the state now have contracts.

The organization, established in 1915, now has more than 130,000 members in 44 states. It lobbies for police-related laws in state legislatures and on a national level.

"Its reputation also is that it is not a union, but a professional police organization made up solely of full-time law enforcement officers," Vertuno said. "It is an organization of action, but with a great deal of integrity. It fights for the police officer and the betterment of law enforcement, but maintains its dignity."

No pact settlement yet in Dist. 211

A teachers' strike in High School Dist. 211 is still uncertain following a six-hour negotiating session between teachers' union officials and members of the board of education Wednesday.

The two groups met with a federal mediator but had not reached a settlement when the meeting concluded Wednesday afternoon. Richard Zweiback, professional negotiator for the board, said he "remains optimistic" for a settlement and added the two sides are "very close" to an agreement.

The board scheduled a closed session Wednesday night to discuss negotiations but had no public statement other than that another session is scheduled with the mediator at 9 a.m. Monday.

The governing board of the High School Dist. 211 Teachers' Assn. also scheduled a meeting Wednesday night to decide whether it will ask teachers to vote for a strike. George Stewart, president, said the governing board did discuss a strike vote but declined to comment on whether a decision had been made.

DURING A MASS meeting last week, teachers voted overwhelmingly in favor of plans for picketing, leafleting and work stoppage, which would go into effect if their demands are not met by the board.

Zweiback and Stewart said Wednesday the mediator advised them not to discuss specific negotiation issues with the press.

The board's last reported offer was for a two-year contract, calling for a base salary of $10,000 plus a $300 across-the-board increase for teachers at the lower end of the salary schedule and $400 for teachers at the top of the schedule for the first year. During the second year, the base salary would be $10,350 plus $250 and $350 increases.

Teachers are asking for a $10,100 base and $300 and $400 increases the first year and a $10,400 base and $300 and $400 increases the second year. The base salary is now $9,650.

Teachers are also asking for:

- A maternity leave clause to conform to recent court rulings, giving pregnant teachers the option of taking a long-term leave of absence without pay or a short-term sick leave with pay.

- Ranking head librarians in the same category with department chairman.

- A district-paid dental insurance program for teachers and their families.

New alarm system saves a life

by JERRY THOMAS

The panic alarm system in the new senior citizens apartment complex in Elk Grove Village was credited by fire officials Wednesday with saving the life of an 85-year-old woman who suffered a heart attack.

Ellie Behrmann, Checkwood Court, suffered the attack Tuesday afternoon. The woman was able to trip a panic alarm system in the apartment, alerting the fire department to the emergency.

Fire Lt. Herman Marguard said the time saved by simply pulling the alarm, rather than dialing the fire department, was significant.

"The first few moments after a person has a heart attack is critical, and the fact the department received immediate notice of the emergency probably saved her life," he said.

EACH APARTMENT in the complex is equipped with a multiple alarm system which can be used by people not only to inform the department of nonfire emergencies, but also it utilizes smoke detectors and sprinkler systems in case of fires.

The system, which is new to the village, was recommended by the fire and building department when plans for the project were being reviewed.

Once the alarm for Ms. Behrmann was sounded, fire department paramedics were dispatched to administer emergency aid to the woman and transport her to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Hospital officials said Ms. Behrmann was in stable condition and improving.

MINDING THE STORE. There are all sorts of people who are needed to make a high school tick. Two of them are, from left, Betty Schecht and Barbara Seelhammer, who operate the switchboard in the main office at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates.

Conant's operators keep smiling

by KATHERINE HOYCE
"Good morning, Conant High School."

That's how the day begins for Barbara Seelhammer and Betty Schecht who man the switchboard at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates.

The caller may pose any number of questions, ranging from the price of gym socks to the beginning date of Christmas vacation. These two women almost always have the answer. No matter whether it's the first or the 100th call of the day, their responses are always bright and fresh.

Perhaps it's because they really enjoy their jobs and consider them more fun than work. Although they could earn higher salaries in private industry, wild horses couldn't drag them away from all the commotion in Conant's main office. Mrs. Seelhammer has been operating Conant's pipeline to the world for six years, and Mrs. Schecht, who also serves as secretary to the athletic director, has worked at Conant eight years.

"THE PEOPLE are fantastic," said Mrs. Seelhammer. Almost in the same breath, Mrs. Schecht adds, "That's why we're here so long."

The students are one of the main reasons the job is so magnetic, and both women add with smiles that working in the high school keeps them young. They have both seen their own children walk the halls as students.

Almost everything that happens at Conant sooner or later filters down to the main office and ends up on their desks. They sell tickets for school events and take reservations for ski-club outings. A few years ago, when Conant competed in the Sweet Sixteen basketball tournament, the women donned hats, wore buttons and waved banners to show their support. Every year, they measure seniors for caps and gowns, and as a result, they are honored guests at the annual senior breakfast.

Even after graduation, the students drop in at the office and say "hi." "They bring their babies—they bring their wedding pictures," said Mrs. Seelhammer.

To some students, the women in the office are like part of the family. The freshmen are "darling," said Mrs. Seelhammer. "We have to lean over the counter to see them, but when they leave as seniors, we have to look up at the ceiling."

WORKING IN the main office has educational advantages. "We have all the knowledge here at our fingertips," said Mrs. Schecht. If they need a recipe, they talk to a home economics teacher. If they feel their plants are getting too much sun, they talk to the horticulture teacher. If they are having a problem raising a child, they chat with the school psychologist, and they never have to read a daily paper, because the social studies teachers keep them up on current events.

"It's like working in an encyclopedia," said Mrs. Seelhammer.

The most impressive thing about these two women is they always seem to be at school. Mrs. Schecht opens the board at 7:15 a.m., and Mrs. Seelhammer closes it at 4:45 p.m. Even in an emergency, they never leave their posts. When the fire alarm sounds, the building is evacuated, and they are left behind. When classes are canceled because of heavy snow, they trudge to school. "We're like the mailman. We come through," said Mrs. Schecht.

The two women are equipped to handle all sorts of minor catastrophes. On a snow day, "It's unbelievable," said Mrs. Schecht. "The phone doesn't stop ringing for the first two hours. They don't know whether to come or not to come," she said.

EVERY NOW and then, the bell system, which signals the end of classes, goes out of order, and the women have to ring the bell 26 times through the intercom system. "If you don't ring the bell on the minute, then the intercom lights up, because all the teachers are calling down," said Mrs. Seelhammer. "Two thousand kids are being held captive in their classes."

Day-in, day-out, the board lights up, someone needs to be paged, a teacher has a question, someone is here to see the principal, a student needs a ticket to the game, and Mom wants to know whether Johnny can have Tuesday off to go to the dentist. It takes patience and a good memory. As Mrs. Seelhammer puts it, "kindness turns away wrath."

"It wouldn't be a good job for someone who doesn't like lots of people or commotion," said Mrs. Schecht. Mrs. Seelhammer explains, "We like this kind of work. Neither one of us wants to work for just one person. We like everyone."

Burglar takes guitar, headphones, speaker

An electric guitar and stereo equipment valued at $650 were reported stolen Wednesday from the apartment of Leo Jerman, 730 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine.

Along with the guitar, three headphones and a speaker also were taken, police were told.

Entry was gained by forcing open the apartment door, police said.

"The purpose of this meeting is to acquaint prospective members with the objectives and ideas of the Rolling Meadows Jaycees," said Robert Adamski, internal vice president. "We will explain the community-oriented nature of the chapter, its affiliation with state and national Jaycee organizations and the benefits and satisfaction derived by the individual members."

2 suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian center

by WANDALYN RICE

Two men were hospitalized Wednesday with suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

A 36-year-old Schaumburg resident was reported in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A 29-year-old from south-suburban Bolingbrook was listed in good condition and may be discharged within the next few days.

Hospital officials, who did not identify the men, said further tests are needed to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

Hospital officials said they do not know where the Schaumburg man contracted the disease. Most victims of the disease in Cook County have been residents of the southern suburbs.

OFFICIALS OF the Illinois Dept. of Public Health said the two men's names were among 17 added Wednesday to the list of suspected or confirmed encephalitis cases. Ten of the new cases are in Cook County, but only one of them has been confirmed. The newly confirmed case is in Harvey. Other new cases were reported in Berwyn, Oak Lawn, Blue Island and Chicago.

The total number of cases reported statewide in the current outbreak is 107, with 73 in Cook County. A total of 21 cases, 10 in Cook County, has been confirmed. Blood tests running 10 days apart are required to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

In other developments in the epidemic, a team of seven specialists from the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., arrived in Chicago Wednesday to help state health officials look for the source of the disease.

The team will collect and classify birds and mosquitoes in an attempt to locate the disease source. Encephalitis is transmitted from birds to human beings through mosquito bites.

Dr. Mark Lepper, head of a state task force on the disease, said five areas in the state have been identified as centers of the disease.

The areas are:
• Bolingbrook, Park Forest South and the southern end of Will County.
• Peoria and Tazewell counties.
• Madison and St. Clair counties.
• Champaign and Macon counties.
• Wayne, Richland, Jefferson and Clay counties.

County mosquito abatement districts have stepped up their anti-mosquito programs. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows have scheduled additional mosquito-spraying programs.

Symptoms of the disease include headache, high fever and mental confusion. Most victims recover spontaneously, but in serious cases the disease can result in coma, brain damage and death.

Two proposals scrutinized

Study requested of library bonds

The finance committee of the Palatine Library Board recommended Wednesday night that a legality study be made of two proposals for handling bond debt.

Incurred by the new library, the debt would be spread among library district residents, according to proposals submitted by the village and library boards. The finance committee requested that the study be made before adopting a final decision.

The recommendation followed a two-hour discussion between village and library board officials. Both proposals attempt to spread a tax levy to retire $1.3 million bonds on the new library, near completion at Northwest Highway and Benton Street.

Palatine village residents currently are taxed about $8 a year, in addition to regular library taxes, to pay off the 20-year library bonds which were originally issued by the village. Library district residents, living outside the village boundaries, do not pay the special tax for the bonds.

The library board has proposed a portion of the annual taxes paid by all district residents be used to help retire some of the bonds. The tax collection will be turned over to the village to pay off the bondholders. The village, then, would partially abate its own tax for the bonds.

The village board has proposed the library district levy a special tax on all residents, pending voter approval, to pay off the bonds. The tax revenues would be turned over to the village and placed in an irrevocable trust for use only to retire the bonds. The village, then, would abate its own tax levy for that purpose.

Palatine Village Mgr. Anton Harwig presented figures, on request of the village board, to illustrate what he called "the inequity of the library board's proposal."

The total amount required to retire and pay interest on the bonds is about $2 million, of which village residents would pay about $1.9 million, Harwig said.

If the library uses a portion of the tax revenues from all residents to pay off the bond, village residents will pay a double tax to retire the bonds, Harwig said.

Trustees said the tax rate on the bonds would decrease from 8 to about 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation if the tax was spread among all library district residents.

However, Trustee Fred H. Zajonc voiced a dissenting opinion, saying, "I don't think we should worry about an 8-cent tax levy that has to be trivial, because that's all it is when you bring it down to an individual taxpayer's level."

Zajonc questioned the legality of one government body "levying taxes and placing the funds in a trust to abate the tax levy of another government body. I don't see how that can be done."

Marlin Smith, library board attorney, shared the same concern and suggested the library board draft "a statutory amendment that would allow the library district to levy an amount of money to abate the village's bond."

Library officials agreed to pursue Smith's proposal, which would require approval from the State Legislature and would assure against any tax objections that might be filed against the library district if the action was taken arbitrarily.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said he is satisfied with the results of the meeting and understands "the legal entanglement that is involved with any action that the library district could take."

Fire referendum proposes nearly fourfold tax hike

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Residents of the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District will pay nearly four times more in fire taxes if Tuesday's village referendum to upgrade fire services is successful.

The referendum proposes a 21.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation increase in fire taxes for Palatine village residents to pay for an additional 26 full-time firemen.

An agreement between the village and the rural fire district early this year will require an estimated 20,000 residents in unincorporated areas to pay "a sizable share," of the cost for the additional firemen, said Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig.

"The success of the referendum will have a profound impact on the tax rate and financial obligations of the rural fire district. They could be required to go beyond their maximum taxing rate (40 cents per $100 assessed valuation) as a district to generate the necessary revenue," Harwig said.

THE RURAL FIRE district tax rate is currently 14 cents per $100 assessed valuation and could increase to about 51 cents per $100 assessed valuation "so they can meet their obligation to the village fire department," Harwig said.

The proposed fire tax rate increase for Palatine village residents is three times more than the present 7.5 cent per $100 assessed valuation fire tax rate.

"We can't be sure what the increase in the rural fire district tax rate will have to be because it also depends on whether the unincorporated subdivisions north of the village decide to annex to the village," he said.

Residents of the English Valley, Pepper Tree, Heatherlea, Shenandoah and the Home Garden Acres subdivisions are participating in a petition

by LUISA GINETTI

A single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a soybean field in Wheeling Township Wednesday shortly after takeoff from Palwaukee Airport, killing both persons aboard.

Killed in the crash were Eugene McDaniel, 11010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo. The county coroner's office said it had not determined which victim was the pilot.

Jack Harrington, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the cause of the crash had not been determined. A witness to the crash said the four-passenger private plane made what appeared to be a normal takeoff at 2:49 p.m., turned left and then nosed up and crashed in the field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling Township, Harrington said.

Harrington said the plane made no contact with the Palwaukee tower before the crash, but investigators believe the plane's engine stalled. Weather conditions were apparently not a factor in the crash, officials indicated.

The witness, whose helicopter was on an instructional flight at the time, landed next to the downed plane, and the pilot dragged one of the victims about 10 feet from the plane, County Sheriff's police said. Shortly after the victim was removed from the wreckage, the smoldering plane burst in flames, officials said.

OFFICIALS AT THE scene said both men apparently were killed instantly in the crash. One man was burned beyond recognition, and the other was mutilated severely, officials said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration, the state police, the coroner's office and the county Sheriff's office were on the scene for nearly three hours before the bodies were removed.

Harrington said he did not know the plane's destination, but an official at Palwaukee said the plane was not based at the airport and had only landed a short time before.

The plane had taken off from Dacy Airport in Harvard, Ill., about 40 miles northwest of Wheeling, officials there said. A Dacy airport spokesman said the plane took off from Dacy about 1 p.m. for Palwaukee on an apparent business trip. He added the plane probably was returning to Dacy when it crashed.

The spokesman said McDaniel and Medlinger were friends, and McDaniel was a flying instructor.

Wheeling Fire Dept. trucks were among the first rescue units on the scene and extinguished the fire. Paramedics also were on the scene but left shortly after the victims were pronounced dead.

TWO PRIESTS FROM nearby St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling, arrived at the site about an hour after the crash. Father Donald Simpson said he and Father Thomas Moran administered last rites to the victims.

CHARRED REMAINS of a single-engine Piper Comanche plane lie sprawled in a soybean field at 1114 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling Township, after the plane crashed on takeoff Wednesday from Palwaukee Airport. The pilot and his passenger were killed in the crash which occurred about 2:50 p.m.

GEORGE KEVORKIAN, 17, and Bill Kissane, 18, both of Chicago, wait grimly as divers search for the body of their friend, Jon Hoeschen, also of Chicago, who drowned Wednesday afternoon in a lake north of Wheeling. A diver is shown preparing to join the search.

Chicagoan falls off raft, drowns in lake mishap

A Chicago man drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming with friends in a lake north of Wheeling in unincorporated Lake County.

Companions identified the victim as Jon Hoeschen, 18. They said he was to enter DeVry Technical Institute, Chicago, this month.

Vernon Township firefighters, who recovered Hoeschen's body after a three-hour search, said the drowning was the second in two weeks at the lake.

The drowning occurred near Milwaukee Avenue about one-quarter mile north of Aptakisic Road.

HOESCHEN'S BODY was taken to Condell Memorial Hospital, Libertyville.

Bill Kissane, 18, of 5835 Higgins Rd., and George Kevorkian, 17, of 6228 Roscoe, both of Chicago, said Hoeschen drowned after apparently falling from an inflatable raft.

They described him as "not that good a swimmer."

The three and two other friends came to the lake early in the afternoon, and Hoeschen went off by himself to take his raft across the lake, they said.

Kissane said he and Kevorkian were swimming several hundred yards away when Hoeschen, "started yelling for help, and we thought he was goofing around at first."

HIS FRIENDS enlisted the help of Vernon Township firefighters, who were training in the area.

Chief Ted Tarr, Vernon fire chief, said divers from Grayslake, Lake Zurich, Libertyville and Countryside fire departments joined his department in the search.

Tarr said six persons have drowned in the lake in the last 2½ years.

An Elmwood Park woman, Hilda Vargas, 18, drowned there Aug. 24 while trying to swim to an island, said Lt. Louis Gnadt, of the Vernon fire department.

Radical company unions seek acceptance by police

by STIRLING MORITA
To members of the Fraternal Order of Police, the Combined Counties Police Assn. is a bit radical.

To John Flood, CCPA president, the FOP is too much like a "company" union — too much a part of the establishment.

Some members of the local FOP chapters have indicated they worry about the reputation of police when they hear of job actions by their brethren. They are quick to point out, when seeking collective bargaining rights, the FOP has a no-strike philosophy.

Flood, CCPA founder, compares his union to a Rolls-Royce and the FOP to a Volkswagen when it comes to police-labor relations. Flood says when a policeman has ridden in the luxury car, he never wants to go back to the "Bug."

"SURE, I'M A radical," Flood says. "We're a controversial organization, because we're an action organization."

Joseph Vertuno, president of the state FOP lodge, explains, "Sometimes, you can catch more flies with sugar than you can with vinegar."

Of 10 police departments in the Northwest suburbs, those in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg are members of FOP while those in Wheeling, Des Plaines and Mount Prospect are in the CCPA fold. Palatine, formerly CCPA-oriented, does not acknowledge either union.

A move by several members of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept. to start a CCPA chapter more than three years ago was blunted when controversy broke out among the police chief, mayor, aldermen and some policemen.

The two organizations are the only ones available locally to police. In Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, FOP chapters are seeking official recognition from village officials.

FOP CHAPTER presidents emphasize they joined the organization because it is a fraternal order.

Sgt. Charles Poellien, president of the Rolling Meadows FOP chapter, says "As far as we're concerned, it's (FOP) more of a professional organization. We've heard nothing good about CCPA. It (FOP) is more professional in the way it's run. They don't have a bunch of radicals ready to storm the establishment."

Patrolman Richard Akerman, Hoffman Estates, FOP lodge president, said, "We're a fraternal organization — nationwide. We don't believe in striking on negotiations and endangering the safety of the public."

An officer in the Schaumburg FOP lodge, Patrolman James Kuzel, explained, "We have a two-fold commitment to the man in blue and to the people he serves as well. We're a community-minded organization."

Flood points out CCPA also is involved in community activities, such as sponsoring sports teams or contributing to charities, but such controversial actions as this year's uniform strike in Skokie grab headlines.

FLOOD STARTED the union in 1969 while serving on the Wheeling Police Dept. "because we needed a voice."

He said he went to the FOP, and "they didn't give us anything." Municipal administrators are more afraid of CCPA, Flood noted. "Police, by and large, are scared to organize. They're scared to come to us, and that their administrators won't like it."

Some policemen have wanted to meet secretly with CCPA officials in forest preserves, he added. "They (administrators) know we're a strong organization. We have a militant reputation because we stood up and fought. We're not beggars," he said.

"There are two things working against us — fear and lack of knowledge on the policeman's part about negotiations," Flood said.

Flood said he would not advocate a police strike in a major city like Chicago. He said all the fears about chaos resulting from a strike are generated by politicians.

IN A SUBURB, supervisory personnel and Sheriff's police could combine to put more men on the street than before the strike, he said.

"We don't like to strike. We don't like job action, but what do you do when they say no to collective bargaining?" Flood added.

He noted CCPA's reputation has gained invitations for union officials to lecture about police-labor relations to university and International Assn. of Chiefs of Police forums.

"We're the only true functioning (police) organization in the State of Illinois. We have the economics, the staff, the expertise and the experience to negotiate for police departments," Flood said.

Vertuno said the FOP is more acceptable to municipal officials because they would rather deal with "their own people."

"It's just a matter of getting them to sit down and talk to us and get what we're looking for," Vertuno said.

STATE FOP officials have entered negotiations when both municipal officials and policemen reach an impasse. "I can be militant when I want, but I was justified on each action," Vertuno said.

He explained the solution to salary negotiations depends not on the right to strike, but on "compulsory, binding arbitration." Vertuno noted some of the departments have gotten what they wanted without a strike. So far, 35 of the more than 90 lodges in the state now have contracts.

The organization, established in 1915, now has more than 130,000 members in 44 states. It lobbies for police-related laws in state legislatures and on a national level.

"Its reputation also is that it is not a union, but a professional police organization made up solely of full-time law enforcement officers," Vertuno said. "It is an organization of action, but with a great deal of integrity. It fights for the police officer and the betterment of law enforcement, but maintains its dignity."

Tax hike hinges on fire district vote

drive to determine if they will annex to Palatine.

The residents will pay the village's fire tax rate and will no longer be obligated to the rural fire district if they annex to Palatine, Harwig said.

The annexation of these areas would decrease the total assessed valuation of the rural district and would "decrease the rural district's tax base and financial obligation to the village," Harwig said.

THE AGREEMENT between the village and rural district says the district will pay an amount equal to its share of the total combined assessed valuation towards the total budget of the fire department. Their "share will be less if their assessed valuation is less," Harwig said.

Harwig said "the fact that the northern township residents would pay substantially less fire taxes if they were in the village could encourage them to annex, although the situation wasn't meant for that reason."

Fred Roegner, rural district board commissioner, said the district already has set its tax levy for the 1976-

77 year, which does not account for the passage of Tuesday's referendum and resulting increased costs.

The village plans to begin collecting additional tax revenues from village residents next spring to pay for the new firemen if the referendum is approved.

Then the rural fire district would be required to conduct a separate referendum for voter approval to increase its current tax levy to cover the new costs, Harwig said.

THE RURAL DISTRICT would not begin to collect increased tax revenues from its residents until 1977-78 and would be required to issue tax anticipation warrants next year to pay the village for continued and increased fire services if Tuesday's referendum is successful, he said.

The rural fire district issued $166,000 in tax anticipation warrants earlier this year to pay the village for fire services. The warrants were necessary, because the district began levying its current 14-cent tax rate this year and will not begin collecting tax revenues until next year.

The rural district formerly paid "a very minimal amount to the village for fire and paramedic service" and is now obligated to pay $215,325 to the village for the 1975-76 year, Harwig said.

"The people in the rural district can expect their taxes to take other substantial increases in the future," Harwig said.

Employee charged in belt buckle theft

An employee for Lewis Buckle Co., Palatine, was arrested Wednesday for allegedly stealing about $420 worth of belt buckles from the company.

Charged with theft over $150 was Scott W. Metz, 18, of Barrington. Detectives arrested Metz after staking out the buckle company, 315 Woodwork Ln., police said. Metz is accused of taking 85 belt buckles.

He was being held in County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond, pending an appearance Sept. 11 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Road upgrade project delayed

Bids on the estimated $1.2 million Hicks Road Improvement project will not be taken by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation until next month.

The bid letting originally was planned for Friday, but was postponed to Oct. 14. Henry Yamanaka, a mobility engineer for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, said he did not know why the project missed the deadline for Friday's bid letting.

The postponement is the latest in a series of delays which have blocked improvements on the road. Engineering on the improvement project between Baldwin and Rand roads has been completed for more than a year, but construction could not start until federal approval was received in July on the project's environmental impact statement.

Yamanaka said a contract for the construction would be awarded within 30 days of the bid letting. The improvements include the widening of Hicks Road from two to four lanes between Baldwin and Rand roads, installation of a 16-foot median, curbs and gutters, left turn lanes and a bridge across a Salt Creek tributary.

Yamanaka said it would be possible to do some work on the sewers and bridge this year. The improvements are not expected to be completed until 1977.

Federal Aid Urban Systems funds are being used to finance the project. Under the FAUS program, the federal government pays 70 per cent of the costs and the state the remaining 30 per cent.

The work is part of a three-phase plan for improvements on Hicks Road. Long range plans call for widening of more than six miles of Hicks Road from Euclid Avenue in Rolling Meadows to Rand Road in Palatine Township.

MINDING THE STORE. There are all sorts of people who are needed to make a high school tick. Two of them are, from left, Betty Schecht and Barbara Seelhammer, who operate the switchboard in the main office at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates.

Conant's operators keep smiling

by KATHERINE BOYCE
"Good morning, Conant High School."

That's how the day begins for Barbara Seelhammer and Betty Schecht who man the switchboard at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates.

The caller may pose any number of questions, ranging from the price of gym socks to the beginning date of Christmas vacation. These two women almost always have the answer. No matter whether it's the first or the 100th call of the day, their responses are always bright and fresh.

Perhaps it's because they really enjoy their jobs and consider them more fun than work. Although they could earn higher salaries in private industry, wild horses couldn't drag them away from all the commotion in Conant's main office. Mrs. Seelhammer has been operating Conant's pipeline to the world for six years, and Mrs. Schecht, who also serves as secretary to the athletic director, has worked at Conant eight years.

"THE PEOPLE are fantastic," said Mrs. Seelhammer. Almost in the same breath, Mrs. Schecht adds, "That's why we're here so long."

The students are one of the main reasons the job is so magnetic, and both women add with smiles that working in the high school keeps them young. They have both seen their own children walk the halls as students.

Almost everything that happens at Conant sooner or later filters down to the main office and ends up on their desks. They sell tickets for school events and take reservations for ski-club outings. A few years ago, when Conant competed in the Sweet Sixteen basketball tournament, the women donned hats, wore buttons and waved banners to show their support. Every year, they measure seniors for caps and gowns, and as a result, they are honored guests at the annual senior breakfast.

Even after graduation, the students drop in at the office and say "hi." "They bring their babies — they bring their wedding pictures," said Mrs. Seelhammer.

To some students, the women in the office are like part of the family. The freshmen are "darling," said Mrs. Seelhammer. "We have to lean over the counter to see them, but when they leave as seniors, we have to look up at the ceiling."

WORKING IN the main office has educational advantages. "We have all the knowledge here at our fingertips," said Mrs. Schecht. If they need a recipe, they talk to a home economics teacher. If they feel their plants are getting too much sun, they talk to the horticulture teacher. If they are having a problem raising a child, they chat with the school psychologist, and they never have to read a daily paper, because the social studies teachers keep them up on current events.

"It's like working in an encyclopedia," said Mrs. Seelhammer.

The most impressive thing about these two women is they always seem to be at school. Mrs. Schecht opens the board at 7:15 a.m., and Mrs. Seelhammer closes it at 4:45 p.m. Even in an emergency, they never leave their posts. When the fire alarm sounds, the building is evacuated, and they are left behind. When classes are canceled because of heavy snow, they trudge to school. "We're like the mailman. We come through," said Mrs. Schecht.

The two women are equipped to handle all sorts of minor catastrophes. On a snow day, "It's unbelievable," said Mrs. Schecht. "The phone doesn't stop ringing for the first two hours. They don't know whether to come or not to come," she said.

EVERY NOW and then, the bell system, which signals the end of classes, goes out of order, and the women have to ring the bell 26 times through the intercom system. "If you don't ring the bell on the minute, then the intercom lights up, because all the teachers are calling down," said Mrs. Seelhammer. "Two thousand kids

Day-in, day-out, the board lights up, someone needs to be paged, a teacher has a question, someone is here to see the principal, a student needs a ticket to the game, and Mom wants to know whether Johnny can have Tuesday off to go to the dentist. It takes patience and a good memory. As Mrs. Seelhammer puts it, "kindness turns away wrath."

"It wouldn't be a good job for someone who doesn't like lots of people or commotion," said Mrs. Schecht. Mrs. Seelhammer explains, "We like this kind of work. Neither one of us wants to work for just one person. We like everyone."

Burglar takes guitar, headphones, speaker

An electric guitar and stereo equipment valued at $850 were reported stolen Wednesday from the apartment of Leo Jerman, 730 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine.

Along with the guitar, three headphones and a speaker also were taken, police were told.

Entry was gained by forcing open the apartment door, police said.

with the press. The board's last reported offer was for a two-year contract, calling for a base salary of $10,000 plus a $300 across-the-board increase for teachers at the lower end of the salary schedule and $400 for teachers at the top of the schedule for the first year. During the second year, the base salary would be $10,350 plus $250 and $350 increases.

Teachers are asking for a $10,100 base and $300 and $400 increases the first year and a $10,400 base and $300 and $400 increases the second year. The base salary is now $9,650.

Teachers are also asking for:

- A maternity leave clause to conform to recent court rulings, giving pregnant teachers the option of taking a long-term leave of absence without pay or a short-term sick leave with pay.
- Ranking head librarians in the same category with department chairman.
- A district-paid dental insurance program for teachers and their families.

2 suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian center

by WANDALYN RICE

Two men were hospitalized Wednesday with suspected cases of encephalitis at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

A 36-year-old Schaumburg resident was reported in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A 29-year-old from south-suburban Bolingbrook was listed in good condition and may be discharged within the next few days.

Hospital officials, who did not identify the men, said further tests are needed to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

Hospital officials said they do not know where the Schaumburg man contracted the disease. Most victims of the disease in Cook County have been residents of the southern suburbs.

OFFICIALS OF the Illinois Dept. of Public Health said the two men's names were among 17 added Wednesday to the list of suspected or confirmed encephalitis cases. Ten of the new cases are in Cook County, but only one of them has been confirmed. The newly confirmed case is in Harvey. Other new cases were reported in Berwyn, Oak Lawn, Blue Island and Chicago.

The total number of cases reported statewide in the current outbreak is 107, with 73 in Cook County. A total of 21 cases, 10 in Cook County, has been confirmed. Blood tests running 10 days apart are required to confirm the diagnosis of encephalitis.

In other developments in the epidemic, a team of seven specialists from the Center for Disease Control in Fort Collins, Colo., arrived in Chicago Wednesday to help state health officials look for the source of the disease.

The team will collect and classify birds and mosquitoes in an attempt to locate the disease source. Encephalitis is transmitted from birds to human beings through mosquito bites.

Dr. Mark Lepper, head of a state task force on the disease, said five areas in the state have been identified as centers of the disease.

The areas are:

- Bolingbrook, Park Forest South and the southern end of Will County.
- Peoria and Tazewell counties.
- Madison and St. Clair counties.
- Champaign and Macon counties.
- Wayne, Richland, Jefferson and Clay counties.

County mosquito abatement districts have stepped up their anti-mosquito programs. Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows have scheduled additional mosquito-spraying programs.

Symptoms of the disease include headache, high fever and mental confusion. Most victims recover spontaneously, but in serious cases the disease can result in coma, brain damage and death.

CHARRED REMAINS of a single-engine Piper Comanche plane lie sprawled in a soybean field at 1114 S. Wolf Road, Wheeling Township, after the plane crashed on takeoff Wednesday from Palwaukee Airport. The pilot and his passenger were killed in the crash which occurred about 2:50 p.m.

by LUISA GINETTI

A single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a soybean field in Wheeling Township Wednesday shortly after takeoff from Palwaukee Airport, killing both persons aboard.

Killed in the crash were Eugene McDaniel, 11010 W. Grand Ave., Melrose Park, and Irving J. Medlinger, Marengo. The county coroner's office said it had not determined which victim was the pilot.

Jack Harrington, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board, said the cause of the crash had not been determined. A witness to the crash said the four-passenger private plane made what appeared to be a normal takeoff at 2:49 p.m., turned left and then nosed up and crashed in the field at 1114 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling Township, Harrington said.

Harrington said the plane made no contact with the Palwaukee tower before the crash, but investigators believe the plane's engine stalled.

Weather conditions were apparently not a factor in the crash, officials indicated.

The witness, whose helicopter was on an instructional flight at the time, landed next to the downed plane, and the pilot dragged one of the victims about 10 feet from the plane, County Sheriff's police said. Shortly after the victim was removed from the wreckage, the smoldering plane burst in flames, officials said.

OFFICIALS AT THE scene said both men apparently were killed instantly in the crash. One man was burned beyond recognition, and the other was mutilated severely, officials said.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration, the state police, the coroner's office and the county Sheriff's office were on the scene for nearly three hours before the bodies were removed.

Harrington said he did not know the plane's destination, but an official at Palwaukee said the plane was not based at the airport and had only landed a short time before.

The crash was the second incident involving fatalities at Palwaukee this year. In March, a twin-engine, 12-passenger Beechcraft 18 plane crashed on takeoff during a snowstorm less than 25 feet from a residential area near Palatine and Wolf roads. The pilot died of injuries suffered in the crash a week later, but the co-pilot survived.

Earlier Wednesday, a similar single-engine Piper Comanche plane crashed in a field near Elburn, Ill., about 15 miles northwest of Aurora, killing the pilot and his female passenger.

Killed in the crash were Kenneth Boettin, 31, of Barrington, an air traffic controller at O'Hare International Airport, and the unidentified woman. Authorities withheld her name pending notification of next of kin.

Investigators said the plane crashed while apparently trying to make a landing near Ill. Rte. 47 and Ill. Rte. 38 and flipped over after touchdown.

Officials from the FAA and the NTSB are investigating both crashes.

Dist. 59 kindergarten rolls rise

Kindergarten enrollment in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 is 43 students more than anticipated according to first day enrollment figures which showed the district with 1,013 kindergartners.

Supt. Roger Bardwell presented the figures to the school board Tuesday saying enrollment is not dropping as quickly as the district expected. According to pre-registration figures and census statistics, the district had projected there would be 970 kindergarten students this year. Last year there were 1,112 kindergarten students.

He said the higher enrollment figures will change the five-year enrollment projections presented to the board in July. According to those projections compiled from a spring census of preschoolers and current enrollment figures in the district, the administration anticipated a 33 per cent decline in enrollment by the 1979-80 school year. Those figures projected enrollment to drop from last year's 10,899 students to 7,279 students in 1979-80.

Bardwell said a breakdown between elementary and junior high schools shows enrollment dropped by 407 students in kindergarten through grade 5 and increased by 137 students in grades 6-8.

The spokesman said McDaniel and Medlinger were friends, and McDaniel was a flying instructor.

Wheeling Fire Dept. trucks were among the first rescue units on the scene and extinguished the fire. Paramedics also were on the scene but left shortly after the victims were pronounced dead.

Schools sponsor gifted seminars

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 is offering a series of seminars for parents this month on the identification and development of programs for gifted students.

The district has received state funding to plan programs for pupils identified as exceptionally talented in creativity, intelligence, leadership, visual or the performing arts and athletics.

Policy changes approved in School Dist. 26

Policies governing bus transportation and use of school name and premises were approved by the Dist. 26 school board Tuesday. Changes approved are:

- Bus transportation for children choosing to attend a district school out of their neighborhood. Instead of saying transportation will be provided "only if" needed arrangements can be made, the policy reads "providing that" needed arrangements can be made. The change in the wording is designed to be more flexible.
- Unauthorized use of school name and premises. This policy prevents school personnel from using the name of the school or school district in connection with any trip or tour they may be involved in on their own. The policy also prevents them from soliciting for trip participants on school grounds. Failure to follow this policy could result in dismissal.

Early entry for kindergarten OKd

Children who turn 5 years old between Dec. 1, 1975, and March 1, 1976, now can apply for kindergarten this school year in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

gram, parents must write a letter to the district by Friday, explaining why they believe their child is ready for kindergarten.

THE CHILD AND parents will be interviewed by psychologists and kindergarten teachers at the school the child will attend to determine whether the child is mature enough to start kindergarten.

TWO PRIESTS FROM nearby St. Joseph the Worker Church, Wheeling, arrived at the site about an hour after the crash. Father Donald Simpson said he and Father Thomas Moran administered last rites to the victims.

Two reappointed to sanitation panel

Two Mount Prospect men have been reappointed to the Prospect Meadows Sanitary District Board.

Named to the board were Henry Orłowski, 621 Bunting Ln., and James R. Brand, 616 Abillon Ln. Orłowski's two-year term will expire June 1977, and Brand will serve until June 1978.

River Trails Dist. 26's new school at Maryville Academy will be called Idyll Nipper School.

But the final school board vote on the name was delayed for an hour Tuesday night while community members and teachers argued for more time to submit other suggestions.

Board members had given tentative approval to the school's name at its August meeting, but delayed a final vote, because they could not then reach Miss Nipper for her approval.

After discussion Tuesday night, board members voted 5-2 to decide the school's name. Frank Smith and Lloyd Demel voted to extend the deadline for suggesting names. The board then unanimously approved Miss Nipper's name for the school.

MISS NIPPER, a Mount Prospect resident, has been active in the school district since its beginnings in a one-room schoolhouse. She was instrumental in selecting the site of the new Maryville school, which in March will replace the present River Road School.

River Road School serves nearly 100 Maryville Academy residents who need special attention not available in other Dist. 26 schools.

Ronald Cassidy, 708 E. Cedar Ln., Mount Prospect, presented a petition Tuesday with some 200 signatures supporting the name of the late fourth district state Rep. Robert S. Juckett, for the new school. Juckett was instrumental in obtaining full state funding for the Maryville school.

A number of River Road teachers also attended Tuesday's meeting to protest that students' wishes were not being considered in naming their school.

"The school was built for children at Maryville. For it to have any meaning to them, the name must be something they can relate to," said John Myers, a crisis counselor at River Road.

MYERS SAID MOST of River Road School's pupils are black or Chicano, and are from the West side of Chicago. They have "little to do with middle-class white suburbia," he said.

"It was never my feeling that one of those children could ever come back here if Maryville closed," said Jeremiah Lynch, another River Road teacher. "They come from different races, different homes, different mentalities," he said.

"I'm not trying to detract from Miss Nipper's contribution to the district. But I think the children should have an opportunity to express themselves," Lynch said.

SYLVIA LURIE, board member, told teachers the board asked for name suggestions from River Road six months ago, and none were given. Teachers replied the building had not yet been completed, and students expressed little interest in naming it at that time. They also said they had not been aware of any deadline to submit names. They requested time to hold a "name-the-school" contest at River Road.

"I think we need to postpone the decision in order to have as much harmony as possible. After all, that was the aim of this whole project," said Miss Nipper, who was present at Tuesday's meeting.

Board member Edward Pugliese said should the board turn down a name River Road students might submit, the rejection could prove more damaging than simply refusing to extend the suggestion deadline. Pugliese suggested that River Road students name different rooms or areas of the building.

Postal service, village battle on codes issue

In the face of a possible U. S. Dept. of Justice suit, the Mount Prospect Village Board will continue legal efforts to force the U. S. Postal Service to comply with local building codes.

The board voted 4-2 Tuesday night to seek outside legal advice in its battle to force the postal service to meet building code standards in construction of a new post office at Elmhurst and Central. The board made its decision after receiving a letter from Assistant U. S. Atty. James A. McGurk threatening the suit.

In the letter, McGurk charged that Mount Prospect efforts to force compliance with building codes has "seriously delayed" construction progress, "interfering with the official functions of the U. S. Postal Service."

HE WROTE THAT legal action will be taken against the village, individual board members and other officials unless Mount Prospect issues building and water permits and drops its pending litigation against Herbert Swanson, contractor for the new facility.

Named as possible parties to the suit in McGurk's letter were Mayor Robert D. Telchert, Trustees George B. Anderson, Marie L. Caylor, Oscar T. Gustus, Richard N. Hendricks, E. F. Richardson and Kenneth V. Scholten. Others named were Donald W. Goodman, village clerk; Robert E. Pyle, village manager; Bernard H. R. Hemminger, director of engineering; Buell B. Dutton, director of building and zoning, and David Creamer, director of public works.

The letter gave Mount Prospect officials until Friday to drop the action against Swanson and issue the appropriate building permits or the suit would be filed.

The village board decided not to back down on the post office issue, although most trustees conceded a confrontation with the federal government would likely end in defeat.

"I DON'T THINK we can fend off the entire U. S. Department of Justice," said Village Attorney John J. Zimmermann. "But spending a little money now for some more advice can't hurt."

The U. S. Postal Service never applied for, nor was granted a building permit for the new facility when construction began April 3. Postal service officials contend the federally owned post office is subject only to federal regulations regarding building design.

MOUNT PROSPECT officials filed an action against Swanson on April 9 in order to halt construction, pending formal application for a building permit and adherence to local building codes. The federal government subsequently intervened in the case, which has been stalemated in the courts.

In a memo to board members, Dutton itemized areas in which the new post office does not comply with local codes.

- THOSE AREAS are:
- The property is zoned R-1 residential, not business.
 - No plat of subdivision has been recorded placing property into lot of record.
 - No Metropolitan Sanitary District permit has been issued.
 - No public improvement bonds have been submitted and accepted to cover storm sewers, sanitary sewers, water mains, parkway trees, sidewalks, curbs and gutters.
 - Automatic fire suppression system (sprinklers) have not been installed throughout the structure.
 - Ventilation requirements have not been met.
 - On-site signs should meet the requirements of the zoning ordinance.
 - Parking stalls do not meet village requirements.
 - No water or sewage permits have been issued, because no application is on file for a building permit.

Village officials believe compromise could be reached on most of the items, except that of the sprinkler system. The partial system to be installed in the post office is not adequate to meet fire hazard standards, village officials said.

"If there's a fire in that building, they won't send to Washington, D. C. for a fire engine," said Telchert. "They will expect us to come running."

Telchert said the village should continue with its legal efforts, despite the threat of lawsuit, to "discharge the village's responsibility to make that building as safe as possible."

$1.5 million loan approved by Dist. 59

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has approved borrowing $1.5 million to pay expenses in the education fund.

The district expects to have a deficit of $1.4 million in the education and building funds at the end of the year, according to the $15.5 million budget approved by the board Tuesday. To cover these expenses, the board approved issuing teachers' orders, a method of borrowing money through the bond and interest fund to pay teachers' salaries.

The anticipated deficit includes figures for teacher salary increases approved by the board Tuesday. The new contract gives teachers a 4 per cent cost-of-living increase in addition to the 4 per cent raise for an additional year of experience in the district. The 4 per cent cost-of-living raise is costing the district about $267,000. Al Stone, assistant superintendent for personnel, said the total cost of the contract's increases will be determined in about two weeks.

TEACHERS WILL be paid through teachers' orders starting Sept. 12. Six pay periods will be covered by the orders this year with the final payment being made Nov. 21. The board also will decide by that date whether another $250,000 order will be issued.

RUDY SPURNEY, an ironworker, looks over blueprints for the new post office under construction at Elmhurst and Central in Mount Prospect. Village attempts to force the U.S. Postal Service to comply with local building permits have failed. The village now faces possible federal lawsuits.

Bids for grading park land opened

Bids for grading park land at the Dwight D. Eisenhower Elementary School, Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, were taken under advisement Tuesday night by the Prospect Heights Park District Board.

Board members reviewed in special session two bids received from area firms. Submitting the low bid of $17,250 was Lenny Hoffman Excavating and Trucking Co., Northfield. Doelch Brothers Inc., Wheeling, submitted a bid of $25,500.

The park district wants to level a hill on the 12-acre school site to increase the size of the present playground area and add a baseball field by spring, 1976.

The bids were turned over to architect Jim Deal for review, but the district hopes to award the contract as soon as possible.

ADVERTISEMENT SELECTING THE RIGHT PRESCHOOL OR DAY CARE CENTER FOR YOUR CHILD

1. Selecting the pre-school.
 - a) Is it conveniently located?
 - b) Have you examined the facilities?
 - i) Do they conform to all local and state regulations?
 - ii) Is the environment that in which you want to leave your child for part or all of a day?
 - iii) In what surroundings will the child's meal be prepared and served (if necessary)?
 - iv) Who will prepare and serve the meals?
2. If it is necessary for the child to be transported to and from the school, what kind of equipment will be used to transport him?
 - i) Will it be a vehicle that is regularly inspected and serviced?
 - ii) Are the drivers competent?
 - iii) Have their driving records been examined? (Sept. 2-8 - National School Bus Safety Week - is receiving support by all professional school bus transportation organizations as well as schools)
3. Are you looking for a sitting service or a place where the child can prepare for the future?
 - i) Find out how the child will spend the day.
 - ii) Will the child spend the entire day in play or will he have classes that will help prepare him for future educational endeavors?
 - a) Is merely a baby sitting or play school atmosphere is desired then that is what the parents definitely should seek.
 - b) If, on the other hand, you want the child to learn at the same time then you should examine:
 - i) The curriculum offered by the institution you are considering.
 - ii) The faculty - who is going to teach the child? What are their qualifications?
4. Do you want your child to be "strictly private" in a private institution or do you want him to associate with and learn about his community and the world around him?
 - i) If the former is true you might want to consider a tutor or a school that emphasizes individual instruction in math or science or some other subject.
 - ii) On the other hand if you want him to learn about and participate in community activities, general health and hygiene, how a supermarket operates, what happens at the fire department when an alarm goes off, in general, what comprises a community and how to live in it, then you should seek a more liberal school for your pre-schooler.
5. When you enroll your pre-schooler, do you want the child to enjoy an occasional outing to museums or nature trails to understand what their instructors are teaching them about this mysterious world around them or do you want to know that they are within the confines of the school every minute?
6. Future performance. What is the record of the children who attended the particular pre-school you are interested in in comparison to other students when they enter kindergarten or first grade. Talk to school principals.
7. What is the general atmosphere at the pre-school? Is it homelike and one which will make the child feel at home or is it alien and cold?
 - i) Is it lively and bright or is it drab and cold?
 - ii) Are there indications that the children's work is being rewarded by recognition such as art work on the walls, etc.?
8. Cost. In the words of Flip Wilson, "What you see is what you get." After examining all of the aforementioned points it's especially important today to consider cost. One important point to remember is that pre-school education is like any other consumer product. You can get substitutes at a very low price and you can go overboard for luxuries but if you shop carefully you can obtain for your child a well rounded pre-school educational program at a reasonable cost. If you give careful consideration to the points mentioned you'll start your child and yourself off on the right foot toward educational security.

New milk pricing schedule OK'd

River Trails Dist. 26 students may be paying different prices for milk each month this year as a result of a sliding-price schedule adopted by the school board Tuesday night.

The sliding scale was adopted to meet federal requirements for milk reimbursement, said Ralph Benudoin, Dist. 26 business manager. The price could vary between 2 and 7 cents per half pint, but probably will vary between 3 and 5 cents, Benudoin said.

The price will be determined each month according to the selling price set by Modern Dairy, Elgin, the district's milk supplier. Benudoin will send a letter to each school advising them of the new price, and they will in turn publicize the price in their newsletters.

Some board members suggested setting a median price for milk, saving any profits to cover months when the price may go above the median. But Benudoin said school districts are prohibited from making a profit on milk sales or school lunches.

Test schedule changed

Board members voted to change the district's achievement testing schedule this year in order to provide ability testing as well.

The district previously gave SRA achievement tests in grades two through eight, said Alan Levin, district curriculum director. In order to spend the district's testing budget of $2,480 most effectively, board members accepted an administrative recommendation to give SRA achievement and ability tests in grades one, three, five and seven.

The SRA testing program will cost the district $1,600 this year, said Peggy Golden, board member. The remaining testing budget probably will be used for the investigation of new testing systems and teacher training to administer the tests, she said.

The district also is piloting the Wisconsin Design in Reading testing program in Indian Grove and Bond Schools this year.

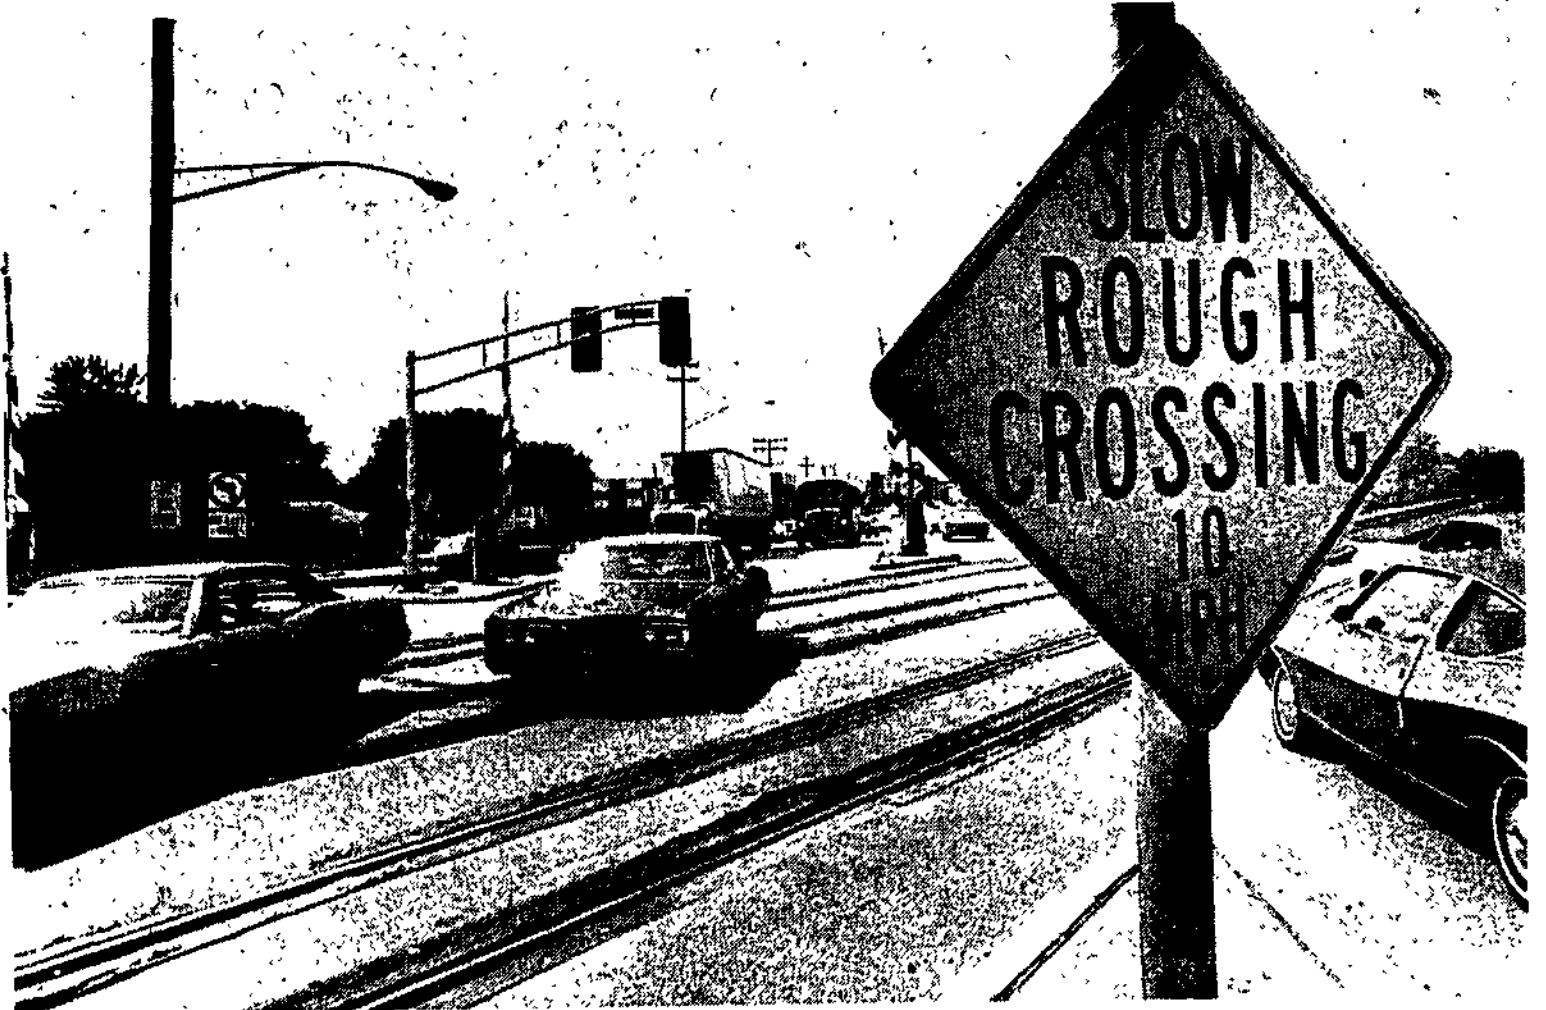

Book vote tabled

Board members briefly considered the idea of holding a referendum to incorporate book fees into the general tax rate but tabled the idea for further discussion at a later meeting.

The idea of such a "free textbook" referendum was raised by Harold Goldman, 1820 Bittersweet Ln., Mount Prospect, a district parent. Goldman said he and several other district parents were irritated at having to pay school taxes and up to $11 per child for books each year.

Board members instructed administrators to prepare their suggestions on the idea for discussion in two months.

Administrators also will present information on possible referendums to raise the education and building fund rates at that time. The district faces a $166,000 deficit this year, mainly caused by expenditures in those areas.

ROUGH CROSSING signs were erected Wednesday at the intersection of Northwest Highway and Central Avenue in Mount Prospect because of poor roadbed and track conditions. Village officials were prompted to put up the signs after state and railroad officials failed to respond to the potentially dangerous situation. Accidents have been reported there.

Signs warn motorists of poor roadbed conditions

Crossing signs were erected Wednesday at the intersection of Northwest Highway and Central Avenue in Mount Prospect to warn motorists of poor roadbed conditions there.

Robert Eppley, Mount Prospect Village Mgr. said the village acted after the state and Chicago and North Western Ry. failed to take steps to correct the situation.

"The roadbed there is in really bad shape," said Eppley. "Spikes have worked up from the ties. Mufflers and bumpers have been torn off of passing cars."

Eppley said motorists should not drive more than 5 m.p.h. over the intersection.

The village manager said the state retains control of the right of way at the intersection, but has not replied to several Mount Prospect requests to fix the crossing.

"In fact, the state may simply remove our signs from the intersection whether they're needed or not," said

Eppley. "The state simply doesn't like someone else's signs in its right of way."

Eppley also said attempts by train engineers to get the railroad to respond to the track condition at the crossing also have failed.

"The situation is bad enough that I feel we've got to give the motorist some warning," Eppley said.

Rosen replaces Sheyker

Leora Rosen was elected president of the school board Tuesday, replacing Michael Sheyker in that post.

Sheyker resigned Aug. 15 for business and personal reasons. His seat on the board was filled by the appointment of Peggy Golden.

Frank Smith was elected secretary of the board, replacing Mrs. Rosen.
